FRIEND SORROW Do not cheat the heart and tell her "Grief will pass away Hope for fairer times in future And forget to-day" Tell her, if you wish, that sorrow Need not come to-day; Tell her that the lesson taught her Far outweighs the pain. Cheat her not with the old comfort, "Sorrow will be forgot," Bid her not "seek other pleasures. Rather lament— Bid her not "seek other pleasures. Turn to other things." Rather show her aged sorrow Till the captive sings. Rather bid her go forth bravely. And the stranger greet. Not as foe, with a spear and buckler, But as dear friends meet: Bid her first strong "kiss hold her. By her dusky wings. Listening for the murmured blessing Sorrow always brings. —ALFRED A. POPE.

DANCING AT THE UNIVERSITY, State Christmas. A trustee of the University, who is said to be Col. John M. Galloway, of Rockingham, has planned in circular form, his views about dancing at the University and as it is too interesting a document to be confined to a few leaders, the Chronicle gives it to the public.

THE OLD. From time immemorial it has been the custom for the under graduates at Chapel Hill to give a ball complimentary to the graduating class, on Thursday night of commencement week. In olden times this ball was one of, if not the principal event of commencement week, and attracted young people from all parts of the country. About 1851 or '52 the foundation was laid for a very handsome building just east of South Building. From the beginning it was called the Ball Room. When completed it did not belie its name. There was a recitation room for the base ment, and arrangements for books on the first floor, but it was evident that the first and foremost object was to furnish a commodious and elegant room for the commencement ball. The writer well remembers the ball when his class graduated. The Governor of the State was present with his staff, Ex-Governors Morehead, Graham and Manly were present; Chief Justice Ruffin and Senator Sadger were present. The trustees and faculty were fully represented. President Swain was in his glory, with a pleasant word and a joke for all. Many persons that night heard the legend of his being born under the shadow of the same mountain as John C. Calhoun, and being exactly the same height as George Washington. Many private gentlemen were there, fully used in culture and attainment to these public dignitaries, never having sought public position, they were not so widely known. Honored and dignified members were there with their fair and blooming daughters, some did not, but all were recipients of polite attention. There were comfortable nooks and recesses, well provided with seats, where the non-dancers could enjoy themselves. There were two points of honor observed by the students: 1st. No student was to dance every set. 2d. No young lady visitor was to be neglected. It is as much the object of university education to make a polite and courteous gentleman as the profound and accomplished scholar. All went merry as a marriage bell, and at the proper hour, a signal by the trustees, the ball broke up, having been an old-fashioned, enjoyable, happy mingling together of the best people of the old North State.

THE NEW. For some years past the dancing has been mainly given over to the boys. The natural result has been that too much time has been devoted to it. It is difficult to gather a quorum of the two societies for their literary exercises on Tuesday night. On Wednesday morning, in Memorial Hall, the students are conspicuous by their absence. To remedy this evil it is recommended that dancing be abolished on Tuesday and Wednesday nights. On Thursday, when all college exercises are over, Gymnasium Hall, just outside the college campus, be given up to the students, and there without restraint or responsibility on the part of the college authorities, the boys be allowed to dance "ad libitum." It is this last clause which the writer proposes to criticize. If dancing be sinful, immoral, or even highly impolite, it is the duty of the trustees to abolish it altogether. If it is none of these things, but on the contrary an innocent, healthy amusement, then it is equally the duty of the trustees to furnish the opportunity for this amusement, so that it is properly conducted and to be responsible therefor.

The trustees and their agents, the faculty, stand in "lean parents" to every boy in attendance at the University. One father tells his son: "Son, I have no prejudice against dancing, but you cannot dance in my house. On Saturday night, when the week's work is over, you can take your companions, go to the bars and there dance till you get tired, neither I nor your mother being present or responsible.

Another father says: "Son, you have worked faithfully and deserve some recreation. Bring your friends next Thursday night, and your mother and I will help you enjoy yourselves in a little dance." Which parent deserves most respect—which dance will produce better results? This trustee thinks the trustees must control and be responsible for everything done at the University. 3d. That dancing properly conducted is an innocent and healthy amusement.

Methodists from patronizing the institution, we would advise a continuation of the ball. It is, therefore, in the interest of the University that we write in all well in the interest of morality, and those who want to popularize the University will do well to consider these things.

THE WALNUT COVE COAL. It was learned here to-day that the coal property at Walnut Cove, Stokes county, is to be developed at once on a broad scale.

THE MERCHANTS TAX. The Supreme Court to-day filed opinions in the three cases involving the State's right to impose a tax upon purchases made by merchants. The court declares that the tax is not an interstate but on the occupation of carrying on business in this State, and graduates the tax on the amount of purchase whether made within or without the State. It does not discriminate against the products of other States. It is a privilege tax on an occupation.

THE WALNUT COVE COAL. The property is owned by the Greensboro Coal and Mining Company, which has been prospecting several months on the veins near that place. The investigations, it is understood, have proven entirely satisfactory and the company has decided to put in a plant taking out one hundred and fifty tons of coal per day. Some of the machinery has already arrived and the other is now on the way, so that in the next few weeks operation will be commenced in earnest. The company will enlarge its operations as the market develops.
