"WE WILL MEET AGAIN IN THE MORNING."

It was the beautiful exclamation of a dying child, as the golden rays of the sunset streamed on him through the open window: "Good-bye, Mamma, good-bye; don't cry, mamma: We'll meet again in the morning!"

Oh! will it be the sunset and dark is the night, but soon the daylight will be dawning; The first glimpse of rose shall blossom once more;

Art thou doomed in a far distant region to roam, To meet the cold gaze of the stranger? Doest thou yearn for the smiles of the loved ones at home?

Will thou pray to God to shield thee from danger, Ah! the night of the waters may shadow thy life, Then soon will the daybreak be dawning, Then thou wilt smile once more with the dawn.

Doest thou miss the sweet voice of a fond loving wife, Whose smile brought balm to thy sorrow? Didst thou ever see her decline in the sunset of life, Nor feel a bright hope for the morrow? Doest thou ever see her again, that might be dark?

Oh! will it be the daybreak be dawning; For we'll meet again in the morning!"

Art thou weary, oh pilgrim on life's desert road, Doest thou sigh for the shade of the willow? Have thy choicest fruits proven bitter to taste, And smothered all the dreams of thy childhood?

Thou wilt see the pilgrim faint not on the way, Too soon will the daybreak be dawning, Too soon will the daybreak be dawning, For we'll meet again in the morning."

Oh! servant of Christ! too heavy the cross, Has thy burden in the Master's path been laid, And thou art weary, "My God, I'm forsaken!" Boast cheer up, dear brother! the night cannot be dark, For soon will the daybreak be dawning, For we'll meet again in the morning."

Will all be made crowns in the morning.

THE IMMIGRATION QUESTION.

Wilmington Star.

Among other things done by the Immigration and Industrial Congress, which met recently at Augusta, Ga., was the appointment of a committee to formulate a plan for the encouragement of immigration to the South and the investment of capital in this section. This committee is composed of excellent material. The probabilities are that it will recommend a liberal system of admitting immigrants, with the appointment of agents for the proper distribution of private information in reference to the South in these sections of countries from which immigration may be desired, and that's about all that we see it can do.

While there has been a good deal of talk about immigration to the South, there has been very little immigration, but as much perhaps as could be reasonably expected. But this is a twofold question which should be viewed from both sides, and an imaginary effort by indolent management to prevent it to prove an unmitigated evil. Immigration is desirable, no doubt, but not in the sense that it is generally understood, such immigration as is now being effected, and has had for some years past. We want a limited and a select inflow, not the promiscuous multitude of the present, and which is a question of quality, not of quantity.

The citizen looked at his wife in amazement. He knew that she was capable of carrying out her programme, and he knew he must prevent it. She looked off the Breckinridge button and promised to oppose the colonel.

"We should be delighted with your public opinion," he said, "but we cannot see in the public mind any real feeling against either man or woman who has been elected to office."

"These are samples of the work the women are doing in the election of C. J. Breckinridge."

THE PURPOSES OF THE SUGAR TRUST.

The investigation by special committee in the Senate of the influence brought to bear by the Sugar Trust on certain Democratic Senators, while in nearly every instance, it has shown that no blame attaches to these Senators, has yet brought out the fact that the Sugar Trust has been holding conference with the Democratic Senators, and has been holding conference with the Democratic Senators, and has been holding conference with the Democratic Senators.

There is not much probability of any considerable volume of European immigration being turned this way for some years to come, and it is well that it is thus, for the South is not at present adapted to the kind of labor that is adapted to the North, and it is well that it is thus, for the South is not at present adapted to the kind of labor that is adapted to the North, and it is well that it is thus, for the South is not at present adapted to the kind of labor that is adapted to the North.
