ALLIES MAKING MORE PROGRESS

Both in West and East the Allies Are Gaining and Pressing Forwards Against Enemies.

BULGARIANS BEING CUT OFF FROM COMRADES

In the West the British and the French Continue to Make Progress Against the Huns.

(By the Associated Press) In the encircling of St. Quentin and the drive against the Germans and Bulgarians in Macedonia the allies are making further progress against enemy resistance.

Heavy fighting in the region of Gricourt less than three miles northwest and Sellenzy two and a half miles northwest, the British despite hard counter attacks have gone forward and repulsed the enemy with heavy losses.

On the French section to the south only artillery has been active between the Aislette and the Aisne where the French have repulsed the Germans in important operations near Morisy farm and eastward toward Chemes Dames.

Apparently the allies in Macedonia have completely succeeded in splitting apart the Germans and Bulgarian forces on both sides of the Varda, while the Serbs are pressing northwest along the drive towards Vesles which it is not believed the enemy can be able to hold.

Standing on the heights of the Bulgarians frontier south of Demir kapu pass the Bulgarians are offering stiff resistance to the allied advance.

MAY DECLARE WAR ON TURKEY

United States Also May Be Forced to Name Bulgaria Among Poes in the Field.

EVENTS TRENDING THAT WAY ACCORDING TO SIGNS

Significance of Developments in the Balkans and Palestine—Pressure on Every Hun Front

(By JUDSON C. WELLSER (Staff Correspondent of The Globe. Copyright, 1918, by J. C. Wells.) Washington, Sept. 23.—Developing events in the Balkans and Palestine war areas may force a declaration of war by the United States against Turkey and Bulgaria.

The administration, in sympathy with some powerful American influences which are close to educational, missionary and commercial concerns in the Levant has been opposed to a declaration. Several weeks ago a delegation of near-eastern experts laid the case against a declaration before the administration, and were later head by the foreign affairs committee of congress.

But the military condition has changed since then. The basic ground on which a declaration was urged was that at any time American participation might be necessary in operations against the Balkan Huns, and that no real good was accomplished by continuing a state of nominal neutrality.

Some time ago, when the Macedonian offensive of the allies flared up anew, it was pointed out in this correspondence that this was the beginning of a programme of putting pressure on every Hun front, and that the road to Berlin might yet be found to lie through Vienna.

In the light of what since has happened—the great British victory in Palestine and the allied advance in Macedonia to a point whence the railroad to Salonica is imminent—menaced—the full importance of that forecast is more apparent.

I have heard some very intelligent calculation of the probable cost of taking Metz, and of the time required, which were designed to support the idea that major activities might presently be transferred to other fronts.

It is plain enough today that the allied operations in Palestine and Macedonia are threatening to crush Turkey and squeeze Bulgaria out of the war.

Washington, Sept. 25.—Jack Frost will kill the "gasless" Sunday order is the hope today of officials of the fuel administration.

The advent of cool weather will restrict the use of automobiles, they state, and a modification of the present ruling may be expected in the course of three or four weeks.

While Dr. Garfield has made no announcement of a change in policy, it is felt that the gasoline situation will be relieved before cold weather sets in, and owners of cars may be allowed to use their machines on Sunday.

Needless automobile touring will be discouraged, but a limited use of cars on Sunday would not materially interfere with the fuel administration's conservation plans, officials believe.
