LAST OF THE SERIES.

THE WORK OF THE ROYAL ARCH MASONS.

Three Teams From Hickory Have Been Put Through in the Past Three Weeks Enjoyable Meetings.

During the past three weeks the R. A. M's. of Chapter No. 20 have been keeping step to a royal and select tune. Eight M. M's. of the best timber (Hickory, in the country being desirous of advancing further into the mysteries and of further improving themselves in the arts of this ancient and honorable institution, have been coming to No. 20 in order to work in her quarries and so acquaint themselves with the work as to enable them to preside over any lodge—even of Past Masters—with the ease and dignity of any who passed that way before. And we know that no diadem of Eastern Potentate was ever more worthily worn than were the honors which were won by the distinguished guests and companions who have wrought so faithfully with us. Their coming has been a source of pleasure as well as material benefit to us all and will ever be cherished in memory as one of the bright oases, amid the desert strands of life, where we have rested for a season to refresh ourselves by the babbling brooks and nestle the lofty palms. It may not be amiss to add that one of our craft also placed us under lasting obligations for the creditable manner which he represented our home chapter. The sage of Monticello never graded the presidential chair to the glory of his country more fully than did the sage of Dunn's Mountain adorn the oriental chair of our noble order.
