DEATH WITHOUT A STRUGGLE.

Pope Leo XIII. After a Lingering Illness, Died at the Vatican in Rome at 4:04 This Afternoon, Rome Time. He Was Surrounded by the Princes of the Church and the Members of His Family.

Rome, July 20.—Pope Leo died this morning at 10:41 New York time, 4:04 Rome time. The end was peaceful, the Pope being unconscious.

Rome, 9 30 a. m.—Pope Leo is in death's stupor. Creglio arrived at the Vatican at 8:30 this morning and is waiting to make an official announcement of the Pontiff's death. Mazzoni entered the room with Corgleia. The following official bulletin has just been issued: During the night the Holy Father slept only at two short intervals and his general condition continues constantly grave. His pulse is 94, respiration 32, temperature 6.2. Signed Laponio, Mazzoni.

Rome, July 20.—While the attendants at the Pope's bedside were praying today Leo, who was believed to be dying, suddenly aroused and said to Cardinal Oreglia: "To your eminence, who will soon seize the reins of power, I confide the church in these urgent times."

This is taken to mean that the Pope wishes Oreglia to be his successor. Surrounded by princes of the church and members of his family the passing away of the aged Pontiff was as peaceful and gentle as his life had been. There was no struggle—only the "Peace that passeth understanding" when the spirit left the frail, earth-worn body.

Oyster Bay July 20.—The President was deeply touched over the death of the Pope and expressed deep appreciation at his exalted character. He said he was uttering an expression for all the people of the United States without regard to religious faith.

THE SHERWELL TROUBLE.

Mr. Baxter Shemwell Again in Trouble at Lexington.
Mr. Baxter Shemwell, so well known in Salisbury is again in trouble at Lexington.

The Lexington correspondent of the Charlotte Observer says: Messrs. Walsler & Walsler, as attorneys for Mr. Brevard, are going to enter suit to foreclose a mortgage for $3,000 on a tract of land near here, owned by Shemwell. Messrs. Walsler & Walsler notified Mr. Shemwell that they had this for collection and were willing to adjust it without litigation. To this Mr. Shemwell made a very discourteous reply. On two occasions, it is said, Mr. Shemwell went to the office of Messrs. Walsler & Walsler and made threats as to what he would do if they instituted suit.

Friday Mr. Shemwell arrived on the noon train from the West, went to the Hotel March and registered. About 7 o'clock that evening, as Mr. Z. I. Walsler was coming up street, Mr. Shemwell stopped him and said: "Did you get my letter?" Walsler replied: "We did." Shemwell said: "Did you understand it?" Walsler replied: "It was very plain."

It is supposed that Shemwell made the following remark to Mr. Walsler: "You are a d— rascal and your brother is one also." Walsler then at once stooped down and picked up a rock about the size of a man's fist, but before he could use it Shemwell had drawn his pistol and demanded that Walsler drop the rock, which he did after a slight pause.

The two stood and gazed into each other's eyes for a few moments and then Walsler turned and continued his course up street as if nothing had ever happened. Shemwell walked over to the hotel and remarked that he wished people would not meddle in his affairs. Mr. Z. I. Walsler informed his brother, Mr. Z. V. Walsler, what had happened. Mr. Z. V. Walsler, ex-Attorney General of North Carolina, having armed himself with a pistol, not concealed, walked up town right by the residence of Dr. W. J. Vestal, where Shemwell was seated on the porch. Excitement was intense and trouble seemed imminent, the street being lined with both men and women.

It being near train time, and as Mr. Shemwell expected to leave, he went to the depot, where he was approached by Chief of Police R. F. Heltman with a warrant. Shemwell declared he would not come back up street, but agreed to sign a bond of $50, with his brother, Odell Shemwell, as security, for his appearance for trial Monday at 3 p. m.

Smith, the Printer, is especially prepared to furnish nice printed stationery for professional men.
