We never could quite understand why Ananias should have met such summary punishment when the Republican campaign managers are allowed to lie without muzzle. Here is a sample of the doctrine preached and circulated by them.

It would mean a period of uncertainty in reference to the Philippines and the Panama canal. For all, it would mean from two to six years of depression, unrest and uncertainty.

Which, of course is equivalent to saying that half of the voting population of this country is no more capable of self government than the Filipinos and that our plan of government, under which the republic has lived and prospered for more than 100 years, is so lamentably defective that it can operate successfully only when the Republican party is running it.

The New York Press tries to neutralize the effect of the New York World's onslaughts upon President Roosevelt by reproducing an editorial of that paper written in commendation of the President. This is fair in politics, but it would have sounded better had it come from a paper that hadn't damaged and praised in turn every Republican statesman.

The Republican campaign managers are accusing the Democrats of inciting revolution in Panama. Now if they can saddle the responsibility for the flood, the famine in Egypt, the Lisbon earthquake, the eruptions of Mt. Vesuvius and the fall of Adam, they will have made out a good case against us.

Herbert Spencer used to carry ear plugs with him to avoid hearing conversations. Wish we had thought of this when listening to young Holton's harangue the other night.

Italian Immigration in the South.

Each year the labor problem grows more serious for the Southern farmer.

The negro has always constituted the South's principal laboring contingent. But his increasing deficiency makes it necessary for additional help to be found. Without detracting from what is being done by the better class of negro workers, it is evident that the negro race cannot wholly meet in quantity or quality the demands for service that must be made on it for proper development of this great section of the country.

In a small way, a number of experiments in other kinds of labor have recently been tried in Eastern North Carolina. Finns, Poles, Portuguese, Austro-Hungarians and Italians have all been introduced as laborers. The Italians have come in the largest numbers, and though often worked under unfavorable conditions, have generally made satisfactory workers.

In other sections of the South, where it has been extensively tried, Italian labor has proved itself well-nigh indispensable in the cultivation of the immense plantations. Notably in Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi, it is an established fact that the Italian workmen are sought for and appreciated, because he has demonstrated his worth as a laborer.

In Mississippi thousands of Italians have been established in colonies by Lee J. Langley, who says they already "own their lands, are building their houses and becoming equal to every independent citizen of this country."

The Electoral Vote this Year. Somebody's always asking, "What is the electoral vote of such a State?" and anyway, there's the election tomorrow, so may be the following list showing the electoral vote of the States, as based upon the apportionment act of 1900, which is in operation now, will be worth while to have around during the day:

Mormonism as an Issue.

In no other political question of the day are the women so profoundly interested as in the repression of Mormonism. Of the "twin relics of barbarism," slavery went forty years ago, but polygamy survives and is aspiring to political power. The resolutions adopted by the Pennsylvania Mothers' congress denouncing the political aggression of the Mormon hierarchy express the feelings of all the women of the United States. But in the Smoot case the Republican party has been dallying with polygamy as a political force in the hope of getting the electoral votes of Utah and securing the votes of the Mormons in Idaho. The Smoot case was postponed last spring so that Republicans should not be compelled to act on it during the presidential campaign, and neither the Mormons nor American womanhood should be offended before the election.

FEATHERED MIMICS.

Strutches Roar Like Lions and Jays Are Great Imitators.

"The roar of the ostrich resembles the roar of the lion because the ostrich stole from the lion this sound, even as the playwright steals from another a plot."

An ornithologist made that odd assertion in a taxidermist's shop. He went on to elaborate it as follows:

"Birds from the ostrich down are imitative. The ostrich when he flies alone is silent, but in a country where lions abound he roars. Why? Because for centuries, admiring the majesty and grandeur of the lion's roar, he gradually learned to roar himself. Believe me, it is fine to see an ostrich throw back his little head and emit a roar like thunder."

"Buntines imitate pipits, and greenfinches imitate yellowhammers. They seek their food in the winter together, and they gradually steal each other's note."

"The Jay is an insatiable imitator. Some jays will include in their repertory not only the whoo-oo of the kite, the scream of the buzzard and the hoot of the owl, but also the bleat of the lamb and the neigh of a horse."

PROPER BREATHING.

Use the Nostrils, Not the Mouth, and Take Deep Inhalations.

Did you ever observe whether you breathe through the mouth or nostrils? It makes a wonderful difference. When we talk we are forced to breathe through the mouth, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. When not speaking the lips should be well closed, and the breathing should be entirely by the nostrils, but this is not all. The habit of slow, measured, deep breathing that covers the entire lung surface is of more value and importance than you will ever believe until you have tried it, and when you have established the habit of breathing in this manner you will say some remarkable things in its favor. It will reach all points of your physical system. All the benefits that occur from a healthy condition of the blood will in a greater or less degree be yours, for the manner and completeness with which the inhaled air comes in contact with the blood in the lungs are of the utmost importance to every vital process. The lungs are a kind of furnace, in which the oxygen of the air is consumed and combined with other elements, a process necessary to life, the perfection of which depends upon the purity of the air and the manner of inhaling it.

CANDLE AUCTIONS.

The Way Public Sales Were Formerly Conducted in England.

Candle auction was a well known method of procedure in England in the early days of the East India company. Public notices of such sales were first put up at the royal exchange. When the day came a candle exactly an inch long was placed on the auctioneer's desk. Directly the sale began the candle was lighted. So long as it continued to burn bidding went on merrily, but the instant the flame died away the goods were knocked down to the last bidder.

In this manner immense consignments of silks, indigo, spices and so forth were disposed of, thousands of pounds changing hands during the burning of the inch of candle.

Before the auction began a list was read over of the names of persons not permitted "to bid at the candle." This contained the names of those who had failed to pay their debts or had in any way wronged the company, who "blacklisted" them in consequence.
