Delivered by Carriers in Salisbury, Spencer and Chesnut Hill.

Entered as Second Class Matter, December 23, 1904, at the postoffice at Salisbury, N. C., under the act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

The mud has responded to an encore.

A Cincinnati judge has decided that wives may not search their husbands pockets. Here is their chance to show their contempt of court.

A Chicago man shot his daughter last week while she was playing the piano. No other cause is assigned.

When David B. Hill retired from politics, the only ceremony observed was his kissing himself good bye.

A New York fellow who had not spoken to a woman in 27 years, married a widow. He will continue to be silent.

The so-called English sparrow is said in reality to be a Russian sparrow. Still that looks striking a country that's down.

Senator Spooner says the La Follette managers are calumniators and liars. There is a strong feeling of reciprocity among some republicans.

The Connecticut courts will allow Bryan $30,000 of the Bennett estate for educational purposes. The Colonel will doubtless feel that he has much to learn.

"How many men did the Czar send to the front?" asks a newspaper. We really don't know, but there were a great many more sent than came back.

Karopatin said during the war that no Japanese soldier should be allowed to return to Japan. It seems that way surely, for the Japs have taken up permanent residence in Manchuria.

"Owing to the polygamous habits of flowers, the study of botany has been discontinued," says a Brunswick, New Jersey, college paper. Another case for the Smoot investigating committee, by Ned.

The Guatemalan ant has disappeared leaving the boll weevil with a clear field. The ant has probably been listening to the speeches of Republican Senators and Congressmen and has come to the conclusion that the South is not worth saving.

FAITH THAT MOVES MOUNTAINS

The Charlotte Chronicle, with a confidence approaching the sublime, says: Salisbury is now "rejoicing" at the prospects of getting a new passenger depot during the present year. The Chronicle has faith in it. It believes that before 1906, Charlotte, High Point and Salisbury will each have a new depot.

WHAT THE CHEMIST SHOWED.

(Minneapolis Journal.) The chemist of the South Dakota food commission extracted enough coal tar dye from a bottle of port wine taken from an original package in the presence of members of the Legislature to dye a brilliant wine color nine square feet of heavy woolen cloth. From a bottle of tomato catsup he took enough dye to color a like amount of woolen cloth. A single bottle of pop produced coloring matter of still greater power.

DON'T RECOGNIZE DEFEAT.

Prove Your Manhood by Battling on Bravely After Reverses.

After 12,000 of Napoleon's soldiers had been overwhelmed by the advance of 75,000 Austrian troops he addressed them thus: "I am displeased with you. You have evinced neither discipline nor valor. You have allowed yourselves to be driven from positions where a handful of resolute men might have arrested an army. You are no longer French soldiers. Chief of staff, cause it to be written on their standards, 'They are no longer of the army of Italy.'"

In tears the battered veterans replied: "We have been misrepresented. The soldiers of the enemy were three to one. Try us once more. Place us in the post of danger and see if we do not belong to the army of Italy." In the next battle they were placed in the van, and they made good their pledge by rolling back the great Austrian army.

He is a pretty poor sort of man who loses courage and fears to face the world just because he has made a mistake or a slip somewhere, because his business has failed, because his property has been swept away by some general disaster or because of other trouble impossible for him to avert.

This is the test of your manhood, how much is there left in you after you have lost everything outside of yourself? If you lie down now, throw up your hands and acknowledge yourself worsted there is not much in you. But if with heart undaunted and face turned forward you refuse to give up or to lose faith in yourself, if you scorn to beat a retreat, you will show that the man left in you is bigger than your loss, greater than your cross and larger than any defeat.

"I know no such unquestionable badge and ensign of a sovereign mind," said Emerson, "as that tenacity of purpose which, through all changes of companions or parties or fortunes, changes never, bates no jot of heart or hope, but wears out opposition and arrives at its port."

It is men like Ulysses S. Grant, who, whether in the conflict of opposing armies on the battlefield or in the wear and tear of civic strife, fighting against reverses, battling for a competence for his loved ones, even while the hand of death lay chill upon him, "bates no jot of heart or hope," that bring victory from the most forbidding circumstances. It is men like Napoleon, who refuse to recognize defeat, who declare that "impossible" is not in their vocabularies, that accomplish things--Success.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

It is well to take time in thinking before making accusations.

A woman who can use her eyes with effect is a dangerous rival.

Women take fright easily over a lover's compliments to another of the fair sex.

There is a species of treason in carrying water on both shoulders in a love affair.

In every man there is a disposition to do the grand where women are concerned.

It hurts a woman's pride to have another woman share with her a man's attention.

When one man sneers at another it is fair to presume jealousy is at the bottom of it.

When a man regards himself as irresistible it is time to do some quiet thinking and self abnegation.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Correggio and His Life.

Little is known of Correggio, which would argue that he was of a retiring disposition. He was born in the little town of Correggio, twenty-four miles from Parma. In the latter city he was educated, but in his seventeenth year an outbreak of the plague drove his family to Mantua. By 1514 he was back in Parma. For some years he worked here and painted many famous pictures. It may have been because of grief over the death of his young wife, but at the age of thirty-six, indifferent to fame and fortune, he retired to the little town where he was born. All that is known regarding his death is the date, March 5, 1534.—Charles H. Caffin in St. Nicholas.

WHAT A BLESSING!

Many People in Salisbury Are Learning to Appreciate.

What a blessing it is. Sought after by thousands. Salisbury is finding it out.

Many miserable man is made happy now.

Nights of unrest, days of trouble. Any itching skin disease means this. Itching Piles mean it.

Eczema just as bad and just as bad to cure.

But Doan's Ointment relieves at once and cures all itchingness of the skin.

A blessing to a suffering public. Here's Salisbury proof back our statement:

L. A. Peebles, salesman and book-keeper residing at 420 W. Kerr street, says: "My wife was troubled with itching on her hands. We learned about Doan's Ointment and I obtained it at the Salisbury Drug Co's store. We think there is nothing to equal it on earth for it cured her of the affliction which had bothered her for years in spite of all she tried to do to get rid of it. We both recommend this Ointment without hesitation."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name--Doan's--and take no other.

TRAP NESTS.

A Practical Experience of Their Value to the Poultry Breeder.

I am using the nests made and used at the Maine experiment station, Orono, Me., to which I am greatly indebted for my success. The first season using these nests I had fifty-eight White Wyandotte pullets. At the end of six months' laying, commencing with Nov. 1, pullet No. 6 had laid three eggs, while pullet No. 10 had laid 104 eggs. I killed No. 6, and examination showed that she would not in all probability have laid many more. At this time I was starting my incubators and using pedigree trays to separate the eggs from the first, second and third best layers, the chicks being marked at hatching time. Pullets Nos. 3, 11, 18, 19, and 21 were considered good layers, though nothing extra, but in the following six months laid almost continually. Nos. 11 and 18 passing the 200 mark for the year, while the other three were near it. But No. 10, which promised so much at the end of the first six months, only laid one egg in the next five months. What I wish to show by the foregoing is that if you have a number of birds you will find it impossible without the use of trap nests to tell the good layers from the poor, and as the poor layers always lay in the spring what eggs they have, at which time most hatching is done, it would be a foregone conclusion that your flock of layers would be growing poorer instead of better. The trap nests not only allow of selecting pullets that one knows will be good layers, but the breeder is also able to secure cockerels from the same brood, and my experience has been that mating of hens of good laying qualities with a cockerel from a good layer usually produces good layers. I am confident that many a failure in the poultry business could have been avoided if trap nests had been used, writes a Michigan poultryman to Rural New Yorker.

Hens in Maine Farming.

We in Kennebec are having a water famine. The ground shut up without the usual rains, and farmers are put to great trouble for water for their stock. The ground is well covered with snow in northwestern Kennebec, but the sleighing is poor and the sledging is hard, yet lumbering is going on and cordwood is bringing a good price. It is almost impossible to get choppers, and when we get them they ask $1.25 a cord for piling up hard wood.

Hay is very plentiful and stock is wintering well. Cows are low in price, though good Jerseys that have just come in sell readily. Apples do not sell at all, so far as I know. Butter brings a good price, and winter dairying is common about here.

The cows are about all Jerseys, and many are using a Holstein bull, but the cross doesn't seem to take well with the dairymen in general. We get a much larger yearling and far better looking, but when they come to give milk they are not in it with the Jerseys. I think it will be a long time before the Jerseys are driven out by the Holsteins. We want a better looking animal than the creamery Jersey, but we want the Jersey cream, and that seems to be the ruling consideration with dairymen.—Maine Cor. American Dairymen.

Productive Beans.

According to the Cornell experiment station the following varieties of beans have given largest yields: Blue Pod Medium, Marrow Pea, Day Leafless, Medium and Boston Small Pea. Phosphoric acid in the form of South Carolina rock is probably more likely to give profitable results with beans than any other commercial fertilizer.

When a woman acts as if she weren't jealous it is a sign that everybody knows she is trying to fool them. A woman does a lot of thinking trying to figure out whether the baby is going to be a great man or a good man.
