SHAM ARMOR.

Story of a Once Famous Vessel In the Russian Navy. Among the anecdotes told by Colonel F. A. Wellesley in his book, "With the Russians In Peace and War," is one concerning a once famous vessel of the Russian navy. When the ironclad Peter the Great, from which so much was expected, was in course of construction the deputy acting minister of marine, on being suddenly asked by the czar what progress the ship in question was making, lost his head and replied that she would be ready for sea in three weeks. "The emperor expressed great natisfaction at the news and said that he would shortly inspect the vessel at Cronstadt. It so happened however, that, far from being ready for sea, the ship was still in dock and that her armor plates. which were being rolled in England, had not even been delivered. In view of the emperor's threatened visit all useful work on board the ship was stopped, and hundreds of men were is the Perfection of set to work night and day at the erec-Laundering. Every trace tion of cabins, the covering of the ship with sham armor, the crection of wooden turrets and the like.

"When the Duke of Edinburgh came smoothness, and no wear to Russia I told bis royal highness this story," continues Colonel Wellesley, "which he was most reluctant to believe. I told the duke, however, that bands-perfection, in a he would soon have an opportunity of judging for himself at a naval review, and I predicted that, as he was a naval Do we get your next officer and therefore sure to detect anything wrong, some excuse would be made to prevent his going on board made to prevent his going on board that particular ship. AT A MAORI FEAST.

An Odd Welcome and a Slip on the Part of the Cook. Telling of his experience at a Maori feast, the New Zealand correspondent of London Public Opinion says: The Maori girls did a pretty welcoming dance, singing and dancing slowly backward all the way till we got to the inclosure around the meeting house (whare purie), where the speeches were to be made. Then the older people cut amazing capers, shouted themselves hoarse and made the most repulsive faces you ever saw by way of welcome to their chief. Chairs were pur for us on the veranda of the whare, which was prettily decorated with beautiful After some time of this and the presentation of mats, etc., we were invited into the whare to lunch. It was laid most correctly on big tables with cloths, but the menu consisted of roast duck, chicken, beef and sucking pig and, so it is said, potatoes, peas and knemaros (sweet potatoes), cooked in a Maori oven. I chose cold duck, with peas and potatoes. The duck arrived quickly, but the Maori girl who brought it said, with broad smiles, "The potatoes aren't cooked yet!" So my lunch consisted of duck, bread and two oranges. Just as I finished the potatoes arrived in pretty plaited green flax

HANDSOME NEW APPLE.

Fruit a Good Shipper and Trees Good Bearers.

Handsome one naturally expects a Kentucky product to be. So it is no surprise that the name Fall Beauty has been selected as appropriate for a new apple which has originated in the Blue Grass country. The apple, according to the description of H. Garman of the state experiment station, is not only a beauty, but has other good qualities. The apples are sometimes deeper on one side than the other, but generally quite symmetrical. The weight seems to average a fraction above half a pound. Other points are: Color, deep purplish red, sometimes completely so, again only or largely on

Mr. Garman says: While it is adapted only for fall use, it ripens at a time when few apples as good are in a condition for the table, the early ones being long gone and the late ones not yet sufficiently ripe. It keeps very well, Unfortunately the cut cannot show the richness of the coloring of the Fall Beauty.

According to Mr. Piper, the propagator, the growth and foliage of his trees resemble those of the Rome Beauty. In bearing, he says, it is as regular as Rome Beauty or Ben Davis.

Not a Commercial Quantity. The Uruguay potato (Solanum commersonii), which has attained considerable newspaper notoriety of late, has been given some attention in this office on account of the disease resistant qualities claimed for it. We have succeeded in obtaining a few tubers for our own trials and have also become acquainted with the results of several experiments made last year with seed introduced by our office of seed and plant introduction and distribution. Our representatives abroad have also acquired some information regarding it. We have, however, not been able to secure any confirmation of its meritorious qualities. It is a wild variety with very small tubers. Those that we have had in this office have rarely exceeded one inch in diameter. They are said to be bitter. The plant is very stoloniferous (putting forth suckers), and it is doubtful whether it is adapted to our climate. The question of disease resistance also remains unproved. Further use will be made of the species in our plant breeding work. We will state to your readers that the plant is not a commercial quantity in any sense of the word; that, aside from its possible value to plant breeders, it little or no seed on the market: that seed is difficult to obtain from foreign sources, and that the department has no seed for distribution and no printed. ton, Department of Agriculture, in Orange Judd Farmer.

The importance of Advertising. Time was when advertising was regarded as "blowing one's own horn," and there have been in it at times fakes and frauds, just as there have been in other lines of business. All that has changed very perceptibly in the past three or four decades. Business men have realized that the world is too large to ask the people in it to bunt around and find out for themselves what the manufacturer makes and what the merchant has to sell. The possible consumer must be found and told about what is for sale and why he should buy it. That is all there is to advertising.-Indianapolis Star.
