high class of popular and standard literature promised. Our liberal offer assures you a LITERARY BANQUET OF CHOICE THINGS lasting through an entire year. A cept prompty Romeo and Juliet; by WILLIAM BLACK. This author's stories are always racy and full of telling points. His "Romeo and Juliet," is an exquisite sketch of two foolish lovers, who mingle tender sentiment with the ludicrous in a way to make everybody smile.

Enoch Arden; and other gems; by Alfred Tennyson. For purity of style, genuine aweetness and touching pathos, the great poet has never surpassed his "Enoch Arden." In this poem of human affection he is at his best, and one cannot know the poet-laureate without knowing it. e Miss Toosey's Mission; and William Shakspeare; How, When, Why, and What he Wrote: by H. A. TAINE. There never has been compressed into such brief space so much about the immortal "Bard of Avon" as in this work by the brilliant French author. It will open the eyes of the reader to a thousand things never before dreamed of.

Doom; An Atlantic Episode; by Justin McCarthy. A powerful and thrilling story of life on an American liner. The situations are natural, the plot intense, the sketching exquisite. The hand of a master is visible from the "all aboard" at Liverpool to the terrible landing at New York.

The Lady of Lyons; by SIR E.

BULWER LYTTON. This is the Lady as seen in the celebrated play of the same name. It ranks as the prettiest picture of devotion and sincerest expression of the "tender passion" ever placed on the stage. The queens of the drains never tire of presenting it to admiring audiences. Bulldog and Butterfly; by David Christie Murray. A spicily told story of human character, yet not a bit overdrawn, Bulldogs and Butterflies are all around us. The author clothes his realism in garbs of pleasantry and humor. Hence his stories are hits. The Trial of Pickwick; by Charles Dickens. This is the first time the entire story of the gallant Pickwick's adventures with the impressionable Mrs. Bardell has appeared in connected form. It abounds in Indicrous situations and mirth-provoking incidents, whose interest is heightened by the wise comicalities of the importal Sam Woller.

Clouds and Sunshine; by Charles Reade. A happily told story of farm life, full of pretty rural pictures and pastoral sen-timents. An ingenious plot, exciting narrative, characters with passions and motives just like "city folks." All in all, one of the most interesting and readable efforts of the illustrious author. Sweet is True Love; by the "Duchess." A touching story of disappointment, estrangement and reconciliation. Full of pretty sketches of situation and character. A vigorous and pleasing narrative. One of the au-

The Haunted House; by SIR E. BULWER LYTTON. This is one of the great author's quaintest conceits and happily told stories. Weird and thrilling throughout. Everybody reads it with feelings of delight. Dr. Marigold; by CHARLES DICKENS. One of Dicken's crispest and most amusing sketches of a quaint and curious character. Readable, laughable, and asure antidote to dull care. Every community needs its "Dr. Maricold," and all lovers take kindly to his "prescription."

On Her Wedding Morn; by Berthn M. Clay. A very strong and charming character story, abounding in striking situations and stirring narrative. Enlists warmest sympa-thies and rivets attention to the end. Jack of All Trades; by CHARLES READE. The wonderful trials of an artisan who didn't stick to his trade. Full of comical situations, funny incidents of travel in Europe and America, and thrilling adventures as keeper of a colossal elephant. 38 other Books during the year 52.
