Right Wins Again.

Wednesday, May 16, the District of Columbia appropriation bill came before the House of Representatives on a report from the conferees, Messrs. Grout, Bingham and Allen. We have already published the particulars regarding this bill; the determined efforts of Fitzgerald, of New York, to tack on appropriations for various sectarian institutions in the city of Washington, which were successfully opposed by Grout, of Vermont, and others. When the bill reached the senate, appropriations were inserted for St. Joseph's Orphan asylum and the Church Orphanage-association of St. John's parish. These were for only $1,000 each, but the principle was at stake just as much as though the amount had been many times as large, as they at one time were. The House refused to concur and conferees were appointed, and in conference, as reported on May 16, these items were recommended to be stricken out. This brought out another contest in the house, led again by Fitzgerald, of New York.

It should be understood that the Department of Charities for the District have informed Congress that its amply capable of caring for all orphans in the District and that these sectarian appropriations are unnecessary. Mr. Fitzgerald again attacked the motives of those who oppose these appropriations. During the debate Mr. Grout announced that he had made application to Mr. Lewis, Superintendent of Charities, for a boy to take home with him, saying: "In the first place the Government now has provision for these boys. We have what is known as the Industrial Home School, which, on the statement of the Superintendent of Charities to whom the gentleman has referred, will accommodate 65 more boys. Then the Board of Children's Guardians have full authority to contract to put these boys in private families, here and there and everywhere else. By the way, I myself made application to the Superintendent of Charities to furnish me a boy to take home, and I hope he will. That illustrates the situation."

Mr. Fitzgerald, of New York—Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. Grout—Certainly. Mr. Fitzgerald—Do you intend that this boy be instituted in your house? I ask that in good faith. If you do, do you not think you are violating your theory of paying the Government no money for religious instruction?

Mr. Grout—No, because that would be private money. I am going to take care of the boy, and perhaps I may pay them something besides. They do not give me anything for taking care of him.

Mr. Fitzgerald—The gentleman has not answered my question whether he intends to attend to the moral welfare of the boy.

Mr. Grout—Yes, if I take a boy home with me, there is a Catholic church within five miles, a Congregational within a mile and a half, a Methodist and Universalist church within two miles and a half, a Baptist within five miles and an Episcopalian church within five miles and the boy can go to anyone of those churches he wants to.

Mr. Grout wound up his argument by saying: "But the reason why these institutions were left out, if the gentleman has completed his question, lies in the law enacted in 1897, which is as follows:

"And it is hereby declared to be a policy of the United States to make no appropriation of money or property for the purpose of founding, maintaining, or aiding by payment for services, expenses, or otherwise, any church or religious denomination or any institution or society which is under sectarian or ecclesiastical control; and it is hereby enacted that, from and after June 30th, 1898, no money appropriated for charitable purposes in the District of Columbia shall be paid to any church or religious denomination, or to any institution or society which is under sectarian or ecclesiastical control."

A joint committee appointed by the two Houses some four years ago to investigate as to the status of these different charities reported this provision as to sectarian institutions, and it is under the law that it was stricken out. A separate vote was demanded on these two items. The motion being that the House recede and concur in the Senate amendments which was lost by a vote of ayes 43, noes 65. Fitzgerald tried to get a roll call but failed, so the question is apparently settled for the present session.

We were pleased to see the firm stand taken by General Bingham for the correct principle against all sorts of persuasion and cajolery. He made no remarks in the House on the subject but as a conferee he firmly stood by Gen'l Grout who had charge of the bill, and we were in a position to know of his sentiments. We were also gratified with the result of some hurried work done among certain senators which showed in the fact that the senate conferees did not make any serious insistence for the objectionable amendments.

In conversation with a man in Washington who has had years of experience in the District of Columbia affairs and congressional matters relating thereto, he said: "This we hope marks the downfall in the House of Representatives of the proposition to appropriate money for the support of Roman Catholic and Protestant Episcopal orphan asylums in this city. This part of the controversy may therefore be considered as settled for the present.—The American."

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been helpless for five years in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work. This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle-working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run-down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by Theo. F. Klutz & Co. Druggists."

The following, giving the opinions of two statesmen from Maine, are very significant:

Senator Hale, in answer to a question from Senator Spooner if he had any suspicion that the promise given by congress for Cuban independence is not to be kept, replied: "I have very grave suspicion."

And a correspondent of the New York Evening Post says:

"Ex-Speaker Reed is still cracking satirical jokes at the expense of the expansion policy. He wrote a letter a few days ago, when the Neely excitement was at its height, to a member of the House, in which he said, in a spirit of fatherly advice: 'I hope you gentlemen in Congress will find means, constitutional, if possible—though that matter does not seem to bother you—to stop the petit larceny in Cuba, which island you intend later to steal entire.'"

This is a cool breath for summer, and, coming from Maine, would indicate to Mr. McKinley that the ice crop up there is holding out splendidly. Or it may be that Maine is really and sincerely ashamed of the conduct of her missionaries and ministers in Hawaii, and revolts at any further step of that character.—Raleigh Post.
