Darkey Songs.

(New Orleans City Item.)

Darkey songs are on the wing now-a-days, and possessing as they do a weird, fantastic form and melody of their own, they deserve the place that is given them in the corner of our literature. I do not propose to give you a darkey song of great pathos or humor, but simply to try and reproduce a very popular negro ditty, only wishing that I could send the melody too. It is as follows:

BILE THEM CABBAGE DOWN.

"My marster bought a servant girl,
He tuk her from de 'Sout';
She combed her hair so very tight
She couldn't shet her mouf.

"I took her to the barber shop
To have her mouf made small;
But when dat gal did open her mouf,
She swallowed 'taters an' all.

"I had a fiddle, hit was painted red,
De strings was made of twine;
De only chune what I could play—
'I wish dat gal was mine.'

"White man goes to college,
Nigger goes to field,
White man learns to read and write,
Nigger learns to steal.

"June bugs got de golden wing,
Lightnin' bug de flame,
Red bug's got no wing at all,
But he gets there all de same."

Between each stanza they insert with great gusto to a swinging Negro melody the following chorus:

"Bile on, bile on,
Bile dem cabbage down,
Say, look a-ber niggers, dont you monkey wid me,
Bile dem cabbage down.

It is impossible to describe the joyous roll of the chorus as all the voices join in at—"Bile on."
RUTH RAMEY.

FARM NOTES.

Keep your farm and your farm will keep you.

Contentment is better than money and just about as scarce.

Want of care does more harm to the farmer than want of knowledge.

Study is the bane of boyhood, the ailment of youth, the indulgence of manhood and the restorative of old age.

The farmer who does not kill the weeds in cultivated crops promptly, while small, works at a disadvantage all the season.

He who is the most slow in making a promise, is the most faithful in the performance of it.

If twenty men will clear a piece of weeds in one day, how long will it take one man to do it? Most certainly, not in twenty days.

After a few years of thoroughly good farming little trouble is found from the oxeye daisy, however injurious it may have been at the beginning.

Too many young men believe that "the world owes every man a living" and that it requires no effort on a man's part to make the collection.

With corn more than with any other crop, tillage is manure. Thorough cultivation will develop plant food in any soil fit to grow corn, and will be all the more effective if the field has been manured before planting.

The great fault in managing pasture lands is, in letting them get impoverished, and turning stock upon them too early in the spring and keeping them too late in autumn. Another thing, a sufficient variety of seed is not sown on them. English farmers usually sow from six to twelve sorts or more, and thus if the weather does not happen to soil one kind, or two, it may all the others, and thus ensure a reasonable bite of grass during the whole season.

Butter is only 13 cents to-day, ma'am! he said, as he brought the jar from the wagon to be weighed. Land's sakes! but what has dropped butter 2 cents? Elaine's speech on the fishery question, ma'am. And how's clothes lines? she anxiously asked. Advanced 3 cents, ma'am. Greatstars! What's that for? Drought in Texas. Well, I swan! but it does seem queer how one thing bobs up as another bobs down, and it's allus agin farmer folks. Is Tilden dead? I guess not. Thank heaven for that! You hain't got no excuse to jump salaratus on me.

In answer to an advertised loan of $2,000,000, three per cent, city bonds, the comptroller of New York received proposals aggregating $14,000,000, one firm offering to take the entire loan at $105.03. Would that some plan might be devised whereby our farming classes might secure loans of these surplus funds on solid farm mortgages, bearing three or four per cent. interest. One of the serious drawbacks to profitable agriculture to-day is the high cost of money needed for improvements. The tendency of rates of interest in this country is toward lower figures, and the farmers should have the advantage of the change. Farmers in North Carolina cannot live and pay from 8 to 12 per cent.

White Hands.

White hands are coming in fashion again, lawn tennis, boating, and all the masculine accomplishments having for a time induced women to unnecessarily redden their hands. Chapped and red hands are never pretty. The daughters of fashion now have dishes of hot water, shaped like a flower leaf, on their toilet tables, in which they steep their hands for a while before going to bed, then anoint them with vaseline and put on gloves lined with a preparation of cold cream. These gloves should be of washleather, and several sizes too large for the hand. In the morning wash the hands with almond powder in water, and in hot water at that, afterward dipping them for a moment in cold water to prevent chapping. Then rub them from the finger tips back to the wrist. If a manicure is not brought in sor the nails an ivory instrument should be used for the pushing back of the skin from the root of the nail and each nail carefully trimmed with a sharp knife, then rubbed with a sharp pad of chamomis skin.—[Courier-Journal.

Unconquerable Nature.

Charles G. Leland, wandering through England, and seeing the castles where the wealthy nobles live, writes to the Chicago-Inter-Ocean: It is curious to observe, though, how nature clings to the last to the old places. Among these palaces and estates, cultivated to an inch, some wild land is still to be found. The other is still common in the streams; in my host's morning room is the picture of a wildcat killed last year near the house. On the road, yesterday, I met a gypsy woman selling tinware. In her wild, dark face and strange features one could see the nomad who had never slept under a roof, and who still remained a semi-savage among people who almost ignore her existence. The peasantry, in their stolid air and harsh dialect, remind one of Saxon serfs. After all, it is evident enough that, if anything were to happen to cause this great, thin, sugar-frosty cupola of upper society to fall in, the old hard rock of uncivilization on which it is based would soon come to light.

Architecture for Women.

Southern papers suggest architecture as a profession for women. There are magnificent and costly houses whose kitchen arrangements are a marvel of inconvenience; and the woman of the house often says with a groan: "No woman would have planned things so." By all means let women be architects. They would naturally make better architects than men, for the reason that they have more practical knowledge of convenience and economy, especially in the arrangement of dwellings and other buildings or in other buildings appropriate wholly or in part to the use of their sex. There are, or could be, a thousand little intricacies about our houses which the masculine mind could never conceive, but which would add immeasurably to the comfort of the tidy, ambitious housewife. Since the trace of a woman's hand is so easily discernible in indoor decorations and adornments, should she not cultivate and develop this, as any other talent, giving to her varied genius a wider field of activity and usefulness.—[Chicago Times.

Knights of Pythias.

TRONTO, ONT., July 18.—The Supreme Lodge of the Knights of Pythias, at yesterday afternoon's session decided that it was inexpedient at the present time to take any measures looking to the establishment of a rank for ladies. A large committee was appointed to assist in erecting a suitable memorial in honor of Samuel Holder Hines, who lost his life while endeavoring to rescue a friend from a burning building.

A Good Education.

To read the English language well, to write a neat, legible hand, to be master of the first four rules of arithmetic, so as to dispose of at once, with accuracy, every question of figures which comes up in practice—call this a good education. And if you add the ability to write pure grammatical English, I regard this as an excellent education. These are the tools; you can do much with them but you are helpless without them. They are the foundations.

To SEE HIM EDIT.—An Atlanta reporter who once "pulled a hand press" on a country weekly, tells this story: One day while the paper was being worked off a man from the country came in and walked all around the room, finally stopping near the press and watching the work very earnestly. Anything I can do for you, asked the man at the lever, pausing between impressions. Naw, was the reply, I don't want nothin', I jist come in to see yo edit.

A Man of Grief!

LIKE LAZARUS!

HIS RELIEF AND JOY!

The Doctor says: When Mr. James Edwards, of Senoia, Ga., began to take "Guinn's Pioneer Blood Renewer," I saw him. He was covered, body and extremities, with a characteristic syphilitic eruption that seemed to have baffled all treatment. I saw him the second time in about ten days, when he was so changed in appearance by having the scales removed and the eruptions healed, that I barely knew him, and in a remarkably short time he was relieved of all appearance of toxic disease.
