IT IS SAID

Money Saved is Money made!!

THE EMPIRE

has devised how this can be done. Just read below and be convinced by the Great Cuts and Bargains we are offering:

Shoe Department.

- 100	DE 152 C. 16	B. C. T.	- 5 Jan 1				2	YE SA
Ĺ	adies'	and	Men's	$5.00	Sho	es at		$4.18
	144		44	4.00	"		÷.	3.18
etal.				2.50	and	$3.00	Shoes,	1.98
Α	Lot	of Sa	mple S	Shoes	boug	ht at	Reduced	Pric	e, at		-	-	1-1	.69
L	adies'	$1.2	5 Slipp	pers'		-		.75
N	len's	3.50	Low S	Shoes,	: -	-	. 4	2.00

Ladies' and Gents' Furnishings.

Men's 20c Shirts,	-	-	-	-	$.39
Men's $1.00 Shirts,	-		-		.89
$1.50 Heavy Fleece	d Un	đerwe	ar Su	its,	.75
Wright's Health $2.	00 U	nderw	ear, S	uit	1.50
Ladies' Coat Suits,	nice o	quality	7,	L	3.00
Misses' and Childre	n's Co	oats,	•	-	1.00
Misses' and Child	ren's	Coats	s, ext	tra
quality, -	7		•	-	2.00
Children's Trimmed	Scho	ool Ha	ts,		1.00
$5.00 Bath Robes	(mal	ke nic	e Xn	nas
presents, -		-	•	-	3.50
$6.00 Bath Robes,	-	8		-	4.20
					II. 54

Furniture Department.

	$2.50	Rugs,		-	-	-	-	$ 1.00
	9.00	Willow	Rocke	rs,	8	-	*	5.00
-	7.00	Willow	Rocke	rs,	-		-	3.98
		Oak a			gany -	Genu -	ine -	11.50
	11.00	Chiffon	iers,	-	-	•	-	7.59
	3.75 a	and 4.00	Wash	Sta	nds,	-	-	2.50
	15.00	Dresser	8,			-	-	11.00
	10.00	Dresser	8,	ď. .	-	• =		7.50
æ	7.50	Dresser	8,		= 1.	-	-	6.00
	Good	Ingrain	9x12	Drug	getts,	-	- 	3.98
	18 00	all Woo	ol Drug	gett	S,	-	-	12.00
	18.00	Brussel	ls,	-	-1	- ,		13.50
	27:50	Axmin	ister,	-	-	-	-	19.50
	15.00	Cut Gla	iss Boy	vls re	educed	to		10.00
	10.00	Cut Gla	ișs Bov	wls re	educed	to	-	7.50
	7.50	Cut Gla	iss Boy	wls re	educed	l to	-	3.98
	5.00	Cream	and S	ugar	Cup,			3.00
					3	1 2

Everything in this mammoth establishment will be sold at the same ratio. Come quick before the rush. First come, first served.

Grandpa's Bear

The Bear Treed Him Inside the Trunk Instead of Outside.

By ELEANOR B. GARDNER.

Copyright, 1909, by American Press

 "Grandpa Colonel, tell us a story." "Well, well! Suppose I tell you bout a bear. "Sixty or more years ago, in the days when California was only poor, faroff Mexican California and nothing more and I was a very young officer in Uncle Sam's little army, I once found myself stationed at a certain inland town, if a collection of adobe or mud huts deserved the name, situated about sixty miles distant from the then scarcely larger village of Yerba Buena, the now mighty city of San Francisco.

'We were doing garrison duty, a single company under old Captain Jack B., an easy going commander, who gave us little to do and plenty of time to do it in.

"So, as the hours hung somewhat heavily upon our hands, Captain Jack and I-the only officers at the posttook to hunting and shooting, with now and then a little fishing by way of change to vary the monotony of our soldier life. Countless flocks of wild geese, brant and lesser waterfowl came by thousands to banquet upon the wild oat fields and make their reedy homes among the wide marshes which separate the firmer land about Sonoma from the spreading bays that terminate in the Golden Gate.

"We had goose for dinner, brant for breakfast and cold duck for supper and lunch till old Jack declared his belief that he should quack if we ate any more such fare.

"One morning I had been very successful at duck shooting, and when I tired of the sport I proceeded to shoulder my piece and secure my game for the homeward tramp of three or four miles.

"As I lost sight of the shooting grounds and began to enter the live oak groves scattered here and there along the higher ridges bordering the marshy edges of the bay I found myself suddenly enveloped in one of those dense mists which sweep up at certain seasons from the sea, like the ocean vapors of a Newport summer

"As I had no special path and was traveling only by familiar landmarks, now rendered indistinct by the hoary haze, I was obliged to move more slowly and soon felt satisfied that I had

"Reaching at length a space open upon three sides, the fourth being thinly wooded, but without a particle of undergrowth, I paused for a moment to survey, so far as my limited horizon would permit, a tract of country which was new to me. Moreover, I hoped to hear the sound of running water, which, as I knew the general direction of the streams, would serve to guide me in taking what sailors call a fresh

"While listening intently I heard from the wooded side of my narrow visible world a sort of pounding, as if some man with large boots and no corns had found his feet unpleasantly cold and was endeavoring to warm them by stamping in a manner which betokened an utter disregard for shoe

"Then came a wheeze like that of a gruff giant troubled with the asthma and finally a mixed compound of crunching and mumbling, as if a huge hog were eating hard corn. My attention now being thoroughly aroused by so remarkable a combination of sounds, I peered into the gloom until I fancied I could perceive the vague, misty form of some creature stirring up the fog within twenty feet of the spot on which I had halted.

"It is no, it can't be yes, but it i a grizzly! Don't I wish I was at home! "That's what I thought. You see, I hadn't come bear hunting. I was duck shooting and had no conveniences for Grizzly the better satisfied I was that of my chamber. he had every convenience for killing ugly, hateful ways seemed to rush into bruin again poked in his great paw in ject in natural history just then I butt of my gun by way of a peace ofshould have gone up to the head of fering. I was willing just then to have ishment first, and, what is worst, I within their grasp. and then took a step toward me.

and have never been willing to in- bunt when, my eyes becoming accustrude myself into company where I tomed to the darkness, I discovered a have not been invited, I felt some deli- faint indication of light behind me. I cacy in continuing to be a witness of crawled toward it and dropped out his repast and was accordingly with backward.

western wilds, when, to my horror, he favored me with a grin-such a grin!and it was followed by a snap and a

"As he quickened his steps toward me I unconsciously hastened my own, when, taking a long stride backward, I found myself suddenly prostrate in a sort of dry ditch or slough, where I lay for a moment half stunned in company with my dead birds and duck gun.

"As I recovered myself I could hear my grunting and grumbling friend. doubtless not a little astonished at this sudden disappearance, go tramping up and down in the vain attempt to nose me out in the fog.

"I had now time to think and, as merchant might say, 'take stock' of my position and prospects. On the one side I was chased by a bear-a bungry bear, a cross bear, a bear disturbed at his breakfast of sweet acorns. I had lost my way. I had only a ducking gun, which, however formidable to wild geese, was a mere plaything when brought to bear upon the thick, tough hide of an acorn fattened grizzly, whose gross weight might be somewhere in the neighborhood of 900 pounds. As for my hunting knife, had left it at home. What wonder if, as an Irishman might say, I wished that I had left myself there before I

"Against all this I had the consolatory assurance that the grizzly bear never climbs, which, as the trees were all on the side of the bear, did not add much to my sense of security. But my principal hope lay in the fact that I was just then hidden by the gully. the depth of which varied from eight to twelve feet, with precipitous sides and a dry bed, which probably led down to some neighboring stream of

"'Now,' thought I, 'I have only to crawl along this ditch, reach the stream, cross it and bid goodby to grizzly.'

"I had just picked myself up and was proceeding to carry out my plan of escape when I heard a crackling and breaking of the underbrush which fringed the ditch and by which I was partly screened from view. This was speedily followed by an angry growl as the treacherous earth gave way and let Mr. Bear with no gentle tumble directly down into the very gully into which I had fallen.

"Fortunately for me, bruin had not only a greater fall, but tumbled into the ditch at a point somewhat distant from my hiding place, and the little ferret eyes did not at once perceive me. An unlucky stumble, however, which I owed to a twisted root, betrayed me, and he turned and gave

"They have a very expressive phrase in California when a person is desired to leave suddenly. It consists of but two words, 'You git!' My dears when that bear tumbled into my gully 'I got,' and when he took up the chase I continued 'to git' in a style which astonished even myself.

"When I first saw him fall I certain ly hoped that he had broken his nose at least or even dislocated his great ugly neck, but that hope vanished in

"He was evidently not a whit the worse for his somersault.

"It was no longer a matter of ceremony. I sped over the ground like a hunted deer, while my stout friend came lumbering and puffing on behind, like a portly old gentleman who fears he may be too late for the evening train. I was expecting every moment to feel the blow of his heavy paw, when, turning an angle of the gully, I perceived, with no little dismay, that the ditch in front of me was blocked by an immense fallen tree. The smaller end of the broken trunk, being toward me, showed an opening wide enough to admit my then somewhat more than usually slender form.

"There was little time for hesitation. could hear the bear's heavy tramp behind me. A moment more and had plunged into the opening and drew my gun after me, just as my fat friend rounded the turn of the slough in hot pursuit. Running blindly on, he endeavored to force himself after me, giving the log a shock which made me tremble for the security of my new

"One or two furlous plunges tended to convince him that I could enter where his huge frame could not, for he seemed to reflect and finally introcarrying home a bear even if I should duced a paw, from whose farreaching kill one, and the more I looked at Mr. grab I retired into the inner recesses

"Finding that his attempts in this way were equally futile, I began to "All I had ever heard or read of his feel a little more at ease, and when an inquiring sort of way I managed to "If I had been examined on this sub- push a dead duck out to him with the peace at any price short of surrender.

"We stood looking at each other. It But Sir Bear had no thought of reason to know she loathes worse than was evidently a surprise on both sides. such a compromise. He tore away and she does myself."-London Tit-Bits. I stared very hard at the bear with made the feathers fly with his cruel wide open eyes, while the bear stared teeth and claws in a style which gave very hard at me with wide open month. me a pretty lively notion of what I could see he wasn't at all alarmed. He "I had begun to think seriously of stopped eating, gave a sniff and a sort giving my pursuer the benefit of a of interrogatory 'Who are you?' grunt charge of duck shot in the hope of putting out one or both of his ugly "As I am of a retiring disposition little eyes and making him give up the drawing in as unostentations a way as "The creek was below me, and I good manners would permit, when it dropped into it in a moment and pushseemed to occur to bruin that he owed ed, apparently unheard, to the opposite it to good fellowship to cultivate my bank, whence prudence, coupled with some doubts as to the possibility of "Declining that honor, I dropped discharging a wet gun, induced me to into a backward walk, keeping my leave Ursa Major to his log boring face, after the manner of royal presentations, toward this monarch of the to camp."

OUR SENSE OF SPACE.

Experiments With Infants to Show

That It is innate. There are many optical illusions which show that our perception of distance, height and space are acquired rather than instinctive, and in the domain of psychological physiology one of the standing controversies touches this point. The German school of Leipzig is luclined to affirm that all our perceptions of distance, area and solidity and our ability to distinguish between right and left, up and down, before and behind, are acquired as a result of long practice and experience.

A person blind from birth who has learned to distinguish triangles, squares, circles and objects of other forms by touch is not able immediately after the acquisition of sight to distinguish these familiar objects by sight alone. He or she is still compelled to rely on feeling. In the beginning all objects appear to such a person (and perhaps they do so in the case of babies) as shapeless, tremulous spots of color situated close to the

In the course of the debate that raged in Germany some experiments were made with babies. It appeared that in bables what must be described for want of a better term as a sense of space seems to exist. The infant was held in the arms of the experimenters for about a minute, at the end of which interval the child was permitted to drop upon its bed. In every instance the child exhibited a dread or panic when it felt the arms of the persons holding it relax. The babe, even at the age of one month, seemed to understand that its support was departing. It held, or, rather, clutched, at anything it could reach, whether the arm, neck or collar of the person holding it.

From these experiments it has been inferred that there must exist a sense of space almost from infancy. What is the dread of falling but a manifestation of an innate sense of space?-London Post.

SLOW DEATH.

Disease Usually Takes a Long Time to Kill, Says a Scientist. Few indeed are the men and women of full age, say twenty-five, who have not yet contracted the malady that will kill them, according to that distinguished scientist and physician Dr. Felix Regnault. Normally, as coutemporary investigators are beginning to find out, it takes twenty years for a fatal malady to kill a patient. It may take thirty years. The popular impression is that a man may die suddenly or that he may require only a year to die in or six months. To be sure, a man may be killed or a child may die in a few months at the nge of one year. But, ordinarily speaking, all deaths are very slow, indeed, and about 95 per cent of civilized adults are now stricken with fatal diseases. They do not know it. They may not suffer from them. In due time they will have their cases diagnosed as cancer or tuberculosis or diabetes, or what not. But so inveterate are current misconceptions of the nature of death that the origin of the fatal maladyin time-will be miscalculated by from ten to thirty years.

In the case of human beings death, barring accident, is nearly always caused by some specific malady. This malady is as likely as not to be cured -what is called cured. The cure, however, no matter how skillful the treatment or how slight the disease, has left a weakness behind it in some particular organ of the body. One of the organs is, if not prematurely worn out, at least so worn that its resisting powers are greatly diminished. All of us in this way when we have reached a certain age possess an organ that is much older than the rest of the physique. One day we shall die because of this organ. Even if we live to be very old, indeed, we shall not die of old age, but of weakness of the lungs or of the kidneys or of the liver or of the brain.-Current Literature.

A Ten Years' Penance.

It is happily seldom that the revenge of a disappointed husband takes quite such an extreme form as in the case of the man whose will ran thus: "When I remember that the only happy times I ever enjoyed were when my wife sulked with me, and when I remember that my married life might, for this reason, be considered to have been a fairly happy one because she was nearly always sulking. I am constrained to forget the repulsion the contemplation of her face inspired me with and leave her the sum of £60,000 on condition that she undertakes to pass two hours a day at my graveside for the ten years following my decease, in company with her sister, whom I have

Didn't Like the Walk.

A north country pitman went with "I think the bear got over his aston- might expect were I to trust myself his wife one Saturday night to do a little shopping. They visited a large drapery establishment, and the obsequious shopwalker, having ascertained their requirements, said to the couple politely, "Will you please walk this way?" But unfortunately he walked very lame. "No, mistor," said the pitman, "Aa nivvor hev waaked that way, an' Aa'm not gannin' te try!"-London Scraps.

Not Deceived.

Courier-Journal.

"Never in my life have I deceived my wife." "Same here. Mine only pretends to believe the yarns I tell."-Louisville

'Tis the mind that makes the body rich.-Shakespeare.