Inscrutable People. BY CHARLES LEVER.

Certain people have been puzzles to me all my life, and I feel must continue so to the end. I have, however, No. 54 South Howard Street, the satisfaction—a meagre one, I own— aid I to know that the shrewdest men of they my acquaintance have not had any more success than myself in piercing the mysteries of these beings, and frankly admit that they have no solution to the riddle they present.

The commonest form of these inscrutables is the fellow who lives handsomely, going everywhere, doing everything, apparently denying him-self nothing, and possessing absolutely that same nothing for his whole legitimate income. I know several of these. Some of them I can vouch for are not players of any game, nor followers the West, I would most cheerfully re-, of any rich man, consequently not DR. V. E. TURNER, deriving support from these two, the most probable, sources of needy men; and yet I have met these men about in the world, freely mixing in a society which one would say is likely to ask some guarantees for the right of entrance; and without having any intimacies anywhere, apparently acquainted with every one, and generally regarded as necessary adjuncts of all even for a season, I cannot imagine;

I can recall one; he has come to my mind at the moment I am writing-a clever fellow, certainly, but probably I ought not to include him among the scrutables; for he had indeed a qualiwhich, well moulded and manipulated with the skill certain men know how to employ, is of itself a guarantee of worldly success.
