COLONEL LIVINGSTON'S SPEECH.

The President of the Georgia Alliance Makes a Strong Speech in Raleigh.

HE DON'T INDULGE IN PERSONAL POLITICS—DECLARES THAT THE SUB-TREASURY BILL IS CONSTITUTIONAL—NO THIRD PARTY—WILL FIGHT THE OLD PARTY.

Col. Livingston says:—The farmers of this county have been complaining of discrimination in our federal legislation.

That discrimination has been so powerful as to prevent prosperity in the fields of our farmers.

And for that reason we are organized, and not as destructionists to tear down.

Who are the farmers that belong to this order? There is not one article of necessity that you enjoy today that is not produced by them.

When those of you on the outside of the Alliance realize this you should see that you are dependent upon them and that your interests are identical.

And anything that they demand ought to receive your sober consideration.

The farmers have always been ready to make sacrifices for the public. Only a short while ago they came to the front in Georgia and put their cotton on the market at a low price to avert a financial crash.

They could have held it for a higher price but if they had the business of every commission merchant in Atlanta would have gone into the hands of a receiver.

The farmer practices rigid economy, and yet he is getting further into debt every year.

Do they not deserve a better fate? You are all willing to help them. But the hard question on which we split is, are you willing to help them on their plan, or do you want to make a plan for them?

Suppose the merchants of this country should have held a conference as we did at St. Louis, and formulated a plan for their relief, and should say at the same time that if anything better could be substituted in lieu of it they would be willing.

Suppose the farmers had turned up their noses and said it was no good, what would you have thought of them? Every member of Congress has hurled the sub-treasury bill back in our teeth and given us nothing better.

Well let them put up or shut up. Very few people know anything about the rotten financial status of the country.

I'll risk the declaration that no man in this hall knows anything about what the per capita of currency is in this country unless he got it through the Alliance.

Now comes the question who are you going to send to Congress to get relief for you? Are you going to send one of your own number or some fellow just because he wants to go?

Not one of your North Carolina Congressmen would have been opposed by the Alliance if they had only said they were willing either to support the Sub-Treasury bill or if they couldn't do it something that would give relief to the farmer.

(Here an Alliance man, present, spoke out and said that "they called the Sub-Treasury bill a wildcat scheme.")

The speaker said he didn't care what he or Senator Vance or anybody else called it. He hadn't come here to either oppose or champion Senator Vance.

"A wildcat scheme indeed," replied Col. Livingston, addressing the gentleman who had interrupted him. "It is a heap you know about it. If you were to meet the Sub-Treasury bill in the road you wouldn't know it from from a wild cat."

At this someone spoke up and told the speaker that it was a friend he was talking to, he was only alluding to what Vance and others said about the Sub-Treasury bill.

The cry has been started that the Alliance are going into politics. Yes, they are going into politics and don't you forget that. When this measure came before Congress the Democratic party and the Republican party were both suspicious of it and afraid of it.

They were going to start a third party. We are not going to start a third party, but we are going to fight for relief in our parties. But we are going to see whether it is the bosses or the people that are running our parties.

The question that the Alliance is bringing to the surface is the question of self-government. We believe that the government can be run in the interest of the people and not of a few.

We must stick to our measures. That is our first duty. I would not vote for Gabriel if he was to turn up here and advocate the infamous protective tariff that is now in force and I would not vote for my father if he opposed the Sub-Treasury bill.

This bill is constitutional and I can prove it. If the government can borrow money they can loan it. If they can loan money they can give it.

They can declare the methods of its distribution. This bill is also practical. Will it bring relief and at the same time not hurt other interests? The bill would have enabled the farmer to hold his cotton till the consumer wanted it. That is where the speculator puts it and holds it for a profit and he makes the profit that the Sub-Treasury plan would have allowed the farmer to make.

It would not hurt anybody but the speculator, and then only for a little while. He could afford to stand high and dry for a while to let the farmer get upon his feet. It would leave money in the South that now goes to New York and Liverpool.

One Sub-Treasury in each State without any warehouses at all would relieve us. But they say it is undemocratic. Thomas Jefferson and John C. Calhoun advocated this very principle.

Are they not good authority? The great leaders of both parties have favored it for fifty years. Then why stare us in the face when we talk about it? The plan is a flexible plan, and we are going to hold to it. We are going to force Congress to give it to us, or something better. The bill is the outcome of the plan, and may not be all right. Then we will have another bill, but we will hold to the plan. This idea of flexible currency is in accordance with the idea of supply and demand. Everything is regulated that way, why not regulate the currency that way? It doesn't interfere with bankers, railroad men, merchants or lawyers. Then, don't you think you ought to help us get this relief? We must stand as brothers and we need your help.

Whenever the Alliance has made efforts to better itself morally, socially or financially up to this time it has succeeded. Our people are paying their debts more promptly than ever before. We are becoming more sociable and mingle together more. Have we improved financially? Take the statistics of your counties and see. The people are opening their eyes. They see that you need relief and they are coming like men to your rescue.

But we cannot afford to be vain over our successes. We cannot afford to brag and to boast.

Col. Livingston closed by enjoining harmony in the ranks of the Alliance. He counselled them to be united and fight together against the iniquitous financial policy that centralizes the money in the hands of a few men. The bloody shirt was being waved, too, in the West to create strife but the Alliance had started in its good work and would go on in unity and harmony.

A Well Dressed Youngster.

Mrs. Emmons Blaine (formerly Anita McCormick) paid $1700 for her new baby's bassinet and trousseau.

The furniture of the toilet basket is ivory bound with the family monogram inscribed in silver turquois and small diamonds. The tiny shirts and caps are made of woven silk; and the skirts, dresses and bibs are of pure linen, finished with real Valenciennes lace; the beautiful flannels are hand-embellished with white silk Marguerites and rosebud designs and in the blankets and larry-coats the initials are boldly and beautifully raised in art needle-work.

Not only is the youngster's spoon silver, but the soap box, the rattle and bells, the drinking mug, the fork and platter are of sterling, and there are solid gold pins for the baby handkerchiefs and rings by the dozen for his babyship's fingers.

E. W. Jackson, a well-known boarding house keeper at Wilmington, walked out of a second-story window Wednesday night during his sleep and was found in an unconscious condition on the grounds below. His injuries are said to be fatal.

THE DOCTOR'S EDICT.

He will Allow No More Leg Vaccination to Please the Girls.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Dr. Garrett, the senior of the corps of medical inspectors in the health office, this morning received notice from his superior officer, Health Commissioner Wickersham: "Hereafter the medical inspector of this department will vaccinate no one on the leg without special instructions from the commissioner."

"It could not be helped," said Dr. Wickesham. "The mania for this thing has passed all bounds. The fashion had grown beyond the bounds of reason, and this department will recognize it no longer. Saturday evening one crowd of six girls, two of them young ladies, came here to be vaccinated. They told the inspector that they wanted the operation performed on their legs. 'We don't want to disgrace our arms,' was their excuse.

"The girls were vaccinated as they desired. But that's the last," said the doctor, bringing his fist down on the table. "I want no more of them, and won't bear them. If any girl is so fashionable that she is afraid a vaccination mark will detract from her beauty in an evening dress, she had better go to a private physician and have the operation performed in private. The old-fashioned way is good enough for this office, and that's what the young ladies must put up with. The only exceptions in the future will be on my recommendation, and the applicant must make a personal request of me. If there is any reason why she should be vaccinated on the leg instead of the arm it will be done. You have no idea of the number of applicants there have been for this thing lately. I believe it is a bad, nothing more."

News Gistings.

Big prairie fires are reported at North Dakota.

W. A. Shade, a noted American painter, died at Lucerne.

NORTH CAROLINA NOTES.

Sam Jones' meetings at Wilmington are meeting with great success, and much interest is being shown by the large daily attendance.

Crawford the young Democratic nominee for Congressman in the Ninth District, is making an excellent impression in his joint debate with Ewart.

R. F. Drake, Register of Deeds, of Nash county, died of paralysis Monday while at the dinner table. He had recently been renominated by the Democrats.

A tragedy took place at Marine Store, Onslow county, Monday, as the result of a fight by several young men growing out of a drunk quarrel. One named 'Close' was fatally stabbed and has died.

Rev. Sam Jones will close his very successful meeting in Wilmington this week.

There is a big row between the white and colored Republicans over the appointment of J. H. Young, colored, of Henderson, to the collectorship of the port of Wilmington.

C. F. Reed, of Wake county, has it is said, a vine on which there are 14 pumpkins, weighing on an average of 31 pounds each, making a total of 1271 pounds of pumpkins on one vine.

James Owen, a prominent citizen and at one time sheriff of Haywood county, was run over by a freight train while on his way home and killed Thursday night about ten miles from Asheville.

Herring Creech, who is known as a moonshiner, of Johnston county, has added another to his list of crimes by going Monday night to the house of a seventy-year old neighbor, called him out and shot him fatally. He has not been arrested.

The examination of applicants for pensions by the State Board has been completed. There were 1550 applications, of which 475 were new ones. The board will next consider 2565 applications for widows' pensions. The pension tax this year will approximate $70,000.

It is expected that Capt. Rogers of Northampton, the Democratic nominee for Congress from the Second District will resign on account of ill health. He is not able to make a canvass, and it is the opinion here of his alliance friends and other Democrats that another man will be put in the field. The Democrats realize that there is no room for anything short of an earnest campaign.

The present campaign is to be the most aggressive ever conducted in the State.

It is said the planters themselves are coming to North Carolina in search of labor for Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi and Kansas.

The old Camp Russel grounds have been purchased as the site for the soldiers' home to be established by the ex-Confederates of the State. That the Halifax county jail needs much repairing is shown by the fact that eight prisoners made their escape Sunday night, making the second delivery this year.

J. R. Dixon, train dispatcher for the branch lines of the Wilmington and Weldon road and for the Norfolk and Carolina, has moved his headquarters from Wilmington to Tarboro.

It has been decided to build a large Baptist school at Durham.

It is said that a large colony of Germans from Kansas will shortly locate in North Carolina.

It is said that the knights of Labor have gained 8000 members in the State during the present year.

The Davis Cadet School, at Winston, has begun its session with the attendance of seventy-five cadets.

Reports from the Eastern part of the State bringing intelligence of damage to crop by the incessant rains of the last few days.

The Rev. Sam Jones, who is conducting a series of meetings at Wilmington, was so unwell Wednesday morning that he had to preach sitting down.

Greensboro has just organized a Young Men's Democratic Club with a good roll, and much heavy work is expected of it in the present campaign.

There was considerable friction between the whites and negroes at a meeting at Milburne Thursday night where a joint discussion between the county candidates was in progress.

ELECT THE NOMINEES.

Can a White Man Vote the Radical Ticket Then Go Home and Look His Wife Square in the Face.

Referring to Mr. E. C. Beddingfield, who spoke at the Alliance picnic at Danbury, Friday, a correspondent of the Public Ledger says:

"He spoke in a pleasant tone of voice and continued from the old set to pack good sense in what he said. He is so fanatic, he is not dominated by wild and impracticable theories. He is imbued with Alliance principles and Democracy and knows how to serve them both up in a savory manner. We like him, he is possessed of the qualities of head and heart, and told the Alliance people that they had selected nominees in many instances and it was their duty to stand by the men they had nominated. He was opposed to any splitting, and during his speech stated several theories that he was a Democrat and could not see how a white man could be a republican and go home and look his wife square in the face.—State Chronicle.

He Wouldn't Stop.

Two or three days ago an elderly man was apparently waiting for a train at the Wabash depot began singing "Home Sweet Home," in a high pitched voice, and in two or three minutes everybody in the waiting room was laughing at him. The depot officer finally approached him and said:

"My friend that is against orders."

"What—to sing?"

"Yes."

"To sing 'Home Sweet Home?'"

"Yes."

"I don't believe it! I don't believe there's a town in this United States where a fellow who is clean busted and forty miles from home can't sing 'Home, Sweet Home,' all he wants to without breaking the law. You go away and—"

"Be it ever so humble There's no place like h-o-o-o-m-e."

Catalogue of the Dialectic Society.

We have examined with much satisfaction a copy of the new Catalogue of Members of the Dialectic Society, University of North Carolina, 1796-1890. It is the handsomest and most accurate of all similar publications which have come to us from the University. Old members, indeed all old students, will find something of interest in each of the 169 pages.

The editor, W. J. Battle, P. H. D., has done his work most thoroughly. The contents include: A full page engraving of the Hall; sketches of the society's history, by the editor, and by President R. H. Lewis, Hon. R. H. Battle, Dr. W. B. Phillips, Mr. E. P. Mangum.

Catalogue of all the members arranged by year of entrance, with briefly stated facts about each one; rolls of Confederate dead of both societies; alphabetical index of names. Copies may be obtained at 50 cents each, from Mr. W. T. Patterson, Chapel Hill, N. C.

GOOD ADVICE.

Several years ago I was covered with Boils to such an extent that my life was a misery. After trying a number of remedies without any benefit, I was advised by a wholesale druggist at Columbus to try S. S. S. (Swift's Specific). One bottle of S. S. S. cured me entirely. I have not had a boil since. To those afflicted with Boils or Skin Eruptions I give the same advice my wholesale druggist gave me—take S. S. S.
