THE PRESIDENT TOUCHES THE BUTTON. The holiday was on and the people proceeded to the full enjoyment of it. The urban and suburban citizens and their cousins from the remote backwoods were goodnaturedly mixed up with the foreigners. Representatives of all nations el bowed one another in the broad avenues of the great white city. Swarthy Turks from the shores of the Bosphorus walked side by side with their traditional enemies, the fierce Cossacks of the Don; sooty Nubians jostled yellow Lascars; subjects of the shah hobnobbed with denizens of the land of the white elephant; the Esquimos -children of the frozen north-sauntered through the long reach of roadway, gazing curiously at the Japanese, whose home is near the equator. In another place a party of Arab donkey drivers divided the honors with three Hindoo snake charmers from Upper India in the eyes of a family from Missouri, consisting of father, mother and five children. The elevated road carried similar incongruous groups, and the cable cars resound ed all day with the tongues of all nations.

Above the heads of the throng floated the flags of all nations. The union jack of old England swung side by side with the tricolor of France; the red and yellow of Spain was everywhere, and the Austrian eagles flew on the breeze along with those Very naturally the first thought of the sightseer is to look up the relics of the celebrated mariner whose name is given to the exposition. They are found in the reproduction of the Convent of La Rabida, which is a facsimile, as nearly as may be, of the historic structure in which Columbus sought refuge after being repulsed in his efforts to gain the assistance of the Portuguese court. MUSTERED OUT!

Sing of the dead! They are not dead! The absent ones are sleeping, Why stand out with uncovered head? What cause have we for weeping?

CHORUS:-Muster'd out from earthly sorrow, Usher'd into heavenly bliss!

We shall meet them on the morrow Of the life that follows this. Its grief or pain can never Reach them in those best regions fair, Where peace shall dwell forever.

Brave souls were they. For their dear land They gave their richest treasure, They offered freely heart and hand,— Their valor knew no measure They ever live. They cannot die, These dear though absent brothers, For first amid the hosts on high Are those who died for others.
