Strange Specimens of Animal Life Found in Arizona.

Reptiles and Insects Both Harmless and Otherwise.

There are many species of lizards abounding upon the sandy "misas," writes a Globe (Arizona) correspondent to the San Francisco Chronicle; one can hardly move a rock without disturbing the sista of one or more of these bright-eyed, inoffensive little creatures, which seem to prove themselves descendants of Eve, for more curious bits of animal life were never known. Thus curiosity will even overcome their natural fears for while writing upon a large rock two or three came out and ventured clear up to the paper, tasted an envelope, and upon being frightened away soon returned to pursue their investigations, which could a person keep quiet enough, would be carried to a rather obstinate extent.

The horned toad is another little animal which seems to have a fondness for human company, and many of them make their home under porches and steps. They much resemble a large lizard, save that around their necks is a number of sharp projecting horns about half an inch long and the same distance apart, and which gives to them a most ferocious look. They are of a dark stone color and perfectly harmless. There are quite a good many centipedes, which, however, it is well to inspect from a distance. Upon seeing the first one running across a room a person is ready to take his oath that the reptile is not less than three feet in length, but which, upon actual measurement, would probably be about nine inches, as that is the average length. They are of a sort of transparent brown and have two rows of legs the entire length of the body. They are put together in sections, and look like the hundred-legged worms often found in Ohio around rotten wood or under old boards. It is not the bite of the centipede that is so poisonous, but each end of his numerous claws contains the venom, and when frightened, or an attempt is made to brush him off, every claw is fastened into the flesh and the poison discharged. The only way when one gets on to any portion of the flesh is to keep perfectly quiet until the visitor walks off of his own account. This, however, is by no means easy thing to do, as one at a first impulse is very apt to make a decided endeavor to remove the offender. This poison is never known to prove fatal, but produces an intense irritation which will affect the whole system in the same manner as the bite of a rattlesnake.

Tarantulas are to be found quite plenty in the mountains, and when camping out our party had frequently to shoot a number in order to clear a spot on which to spread their blankets. This may seem small game for shooting, but a man's revolver is his handiest weapon in this country. These tarantulas look like huge spiders, with legs about two inches long and covered with long black hair. It is not safe to get too near one of these creatures, as they are capable of springing into the air several feet, and are apt to alight too near one for personal comfort; yet if left alone they will never molest one. But they are furious warriors among themselves, often fighting one another for several days. Their bite is poisonous, but not dangerously so. Scorpions are found to be quite plenty around the foot-hills, and their sting is very painful. They resemble a monstrous flea and are very fond of crawling into beds. Many people, newcomers especially, are in the habit of making a thorough examination of their couch before retiring, not caring to receive the warm reception which would be awarded them by these small intruders. There is a small insect about the size of a flea, dark brown color and without wings, which lives in the sand and is said to be the most poisonous of anything here. It is called an "Indian killer," that being the only name for it that can be learned. However, it is almost unknown, and after a residence of several months I have never seen but one, and that a dead one.

A Hen Commits Suicide.

A Sumter, (Ga.) woman owned a guinea hen that wanted to sit; she had her nest broken up. She filled another and persisted in sitting, but her owner had determined otherwise, and again broke up the nest. The poor fowl looked on sorrowfully and saw her maternal home blighted, turned, with a drooping head, walked up to the well, flew up to the curbing, and then plunged head foremost into the deep waters below. When they got her out she was dead. —Atlanta Constitution.

A Wonderful Steam Carriage.

A Lewiston (Maine) genius is putting the finishing touches to a wonderful steam carriage, resembling in appearance a grocery's wagon, which is expected to travel at the rate of a mile a minute at first, and faster when all the improvements are on, if the driver has all the requisite courage. It is expected to go on ordinary road tracks. —Pittsburg Times.

Church Going in Old Kentucky.

The church, a bare white building, with green shutters, stood just off the road, surrounded by a well-trodden grass plot. On one side was a row of hitching posts, with rude troughs for corn; also a large shed for shelter in case of rain. About these points the farmers grouped, discussing crops and neighborhood news, comparing, and occasionally, it must be confessed, trading horses; while the women exchanged whispered confidences and young people flirtatious greetings. It was no uncommon thing to see a belle dismount with that fearlessness and consequent grace in horsemanship which seems to be a birthright with most Kentucky women, and then, stepping out of an alpaca riding skirt, appear miraculously in all the crisp freshness of white draperies and blue ribbons. Such an arrival caused a flutter of excitement, which was only allayed, or turned into another channel, when some young fellow dashed up on a local celebrity in horseflesh. The social features of "meeting" continued until the minister came in sight, ambling along on his well-known mare, whose sides, as he rode, he continually kicked, more from force of habit than from any hope of quickening its conservative pace. Behind him came his worthy helpmate, with a delegation of their offsprings; the lady seated well forward in the buggy, her arms extended at full length, holding the reins very far apart, and flapping them up and down on the horse's back after the manner of her sex. The minister led the way into the church, and preached a good, old-fashioned, drowsy sermon; after which everybody started for home, with that cheerful alacrity born of a duty fulfilled and a pleasure in prospect in the way of a good dinner. —[Atlanta.]

New Cad's Riding at West Point.

Mounting the stairs to the gallery, we look down upon a large space strewn with tanbark, at one end of which is a row of some twenty horses with watering-bridles. Soon the performers file in and come to a halt in front of the horses. Do they intend to ride only with the watering-bridle, without even saddle or blanket? They will try to, at all events. The instructor commands: "Stand to horse! Prepare to mount, Mount!"

In obedience to his command the cadets spring, struggle, leap, and kick in their endeavors to bestride their steeds. The moment they are mounted several horses develop astonishing bucking propensities, to the anguish of their riders and the delight of the gallery. Now they start around the hall at a walk, it seems rather tame, doesn't it? But soon the command "trot" is given, and the fun begins. The poor fellows bounce about on the horses' backs like Indian-rubber boys, and wobble from side to side like jumping-jacks. The trot is accelerated, the horses take the gallop, and dash around the hall, tumbling their riders in heaps at the corners, while those who by chance are still mounted grasp frantically at their horses' manes. Finally, the gait is reduced to a walk; line is formed; the dismounted yearlings, nothing daunted, catch their horses and remount, and then the performance is repeated. —[St. Nicholas.]

Flies Walk Up.

"I have only known of one instance where baldness proved remunerative," said an old gentleman to a St. Louis Globe writer. "A friend of mine, who had a shining pate, fell into the habit watching the actions of his tormentors, the flies. He noticed that a fly always walks upward. Put a fly on a window, and up he goes toward the top; he can't be made to walk downward. So my friend hit upon an idea. Why not use that habit against them? Forthwith he made a window screen, divided in half. The upper half lapped over the lower, with an inch of space between. Well, as soon as a fly would light on the screen he would proceed to travel upward, and would thus walk straight outdoors. On reaching the top of the lower half he would be outside. Not being able to walk down, he had no way to return to the room. By this means a room can be quickly cleared of flies, which always seek the light. My friend has got out a patent, and proposes to begin a systematic war against the household pest."

Poisonous Baby Carriages.

"Poisonous Perambulators," says the British Medical Journal, "are probably one of the least suspected of dangers, yet, nevertheless, one which experience has shown to exist, and, therefore, one against which the parents of a family would do well to be on their guard. A case is recorded this week of a child, aged four months, who, on its return after being out under a hot sun, was seized with sickness and vomiting, the vomited matter being a green colored fluid. From inquiries made by the medical man it was elicited that the child had been seen to suck a green strap of the perambulator, and the true cause of the mischief was at once suspected, namely, arsenic poisoning. An analytical examination of the strap confirmed this view, arsenic being found to be present in great abundance. In spite of all that medical aid could effect, the child gradually sank from exhaustion."

Singing Sands.

In one of the South Pacific islands are some wonderful singing sands. These sands are in a small desert. In the centre of the desert are about a dozen cocoanut trees and about five miles distant is the ocean. Ka Pule, a native guide, and myself reached the trees about noon. Our horses as well as ourselves were about used up, traveling through the deep sand under a blazing sun. As we lay stretched at the roots of the towering cocoanuts, the trade wind set in, cool and refreshing from the ocean. Notwithstanding the heat and our wearied condition, there was an enchantment about the situation that caused me to think of the beautiful stories I had read in my childhood. I began to feel the soft touch of slumber, and all at once I heard a faint musical tinkling as if troops of fairies were coming to greet us as they used to do the enchanted princes in the olden days. I tried to locate the melodious sounds. In all directions there was nothing but hot, glowing sand. I looked up—there was nothing but the beautiful tropical sky and the tremulous atmosphere. Still louder sounded the music; it was all around us; it filled the air. I gazed toward the ocean, and there, apparently a short distance away, was a beautiful lake, with its waves dashing upon moss-covered stones. It was not there when we first arrived at the place, and I became half convinced that it was the work of enchantment. Ka Pule had fallen asleep, and, gazing at the lake and listening to the music in the air, I rested my head against the rough bark of a tree. As I did so I heard the distant gurgle of a brook. I could plainly hear the water splashing over the glistening stones and dying away in quiet eddies. I was more and more bewildered and at length awoke. Ka Pule told me what I had heard and directed his attention to the lake. He explained that the seeming lake was a wailiula or mirage; that the sound of gurgling waters came from an underground stream, and that the music was caused by the stirring of the flinty sands by the wind. Anyway, the whole experience was beautiful, and I have often said that I once made a visit to fairy land. —[Stockton (Cal.) Mail.]

A Misleading Proverb.

"Don't say nothin' to me 'bout a bird in ther hand bein' worth two in ther bushes," said the tramp, "cause it ain't so—I've tried an' I know. I took a bird out uv er bush ther other night—it were something uv a high bush—an' I hadn't more'n got it nicely in my hand 'fore er man blazed 'way with a double-barreled shotgun an' filled my legs so full o' buckshot I can't hardly carry 'em 'round. It 'ud bin a blame' sight better fer me of ther'd bin more'n a hundred birds in that air bush than jes' the neck o' one in my hand—with shot a-crackin' inter my legs. I tell ye, podner, these old proverbs air misleadin' an' need revisin' fer this age." —[Dakota Bell.]

The Greatest of Misadventures.

The biggest missionary enterprise on record has been accomplished by the Rev. George Muller, founder of an orphanage at Bristol, who has just returned from a preaching tour round the world. The indefatigable evangelist has been absent ten years, during which time he has traveled over 130,000 miles, extending through the United States, New Zealand, Australia, the Malay Peninsula, China, Japan, and the journey home through Europe. What makes the feat really extraordinary is that Mr. Muller is now 82 years of age, and is reported to have finished in splendid condition. His united congregations during the tour amount to over a million persons. —[London Truth.]

He Lived By It.

Visitor—Perhaps, madam, you could get your husband to put his name down on the roll of our society.
Lady of the house—What is your society?
V. (impressively)—The Society for the Revocation of Crime.
L. of the H.—I don't think my husband would care to put his name down for any such thing. He makes his living by crime.
V. (horrified)—What! Is he a criminal?
L. of the H.—No. He's a policeman. —[Boston Courier.]

Doing Him an Injustice.

"I don't want that young pot around here any more," said a father to his daughter; "he will never amount to anything."
"Why, papa," responded the girl, "George has discovered a sure cure for corns and bunions, and has given up poetry forever."
"Oh," said the father, "I'm afraid I've misjudged the young man. Just let things go on as usual." —[New York Sun.]

The Burion Barometer.

Eminent scientist—The planetary indications give assurance that there will be no rain for the next three days.
Man with a bunion (smiling with lofty superiority)—There will be rain, sir, in less than 12 hours.
And there was. —[Boston Beacon.]

The greatest good is done most quietly.

Heroes and Heroines.
There are few who endure bodily troubles without complaint. Did you ever meet among the heroes or heroines of your acquaintance any such there have been one of a Jewish cast of countenance that jaundiced aspect generally, which the most unpracticed eye recognizes as the product of a disordered liver, who did not complain, and put up with the soreness of the recalcitrant organ, of pains beneath the rig at shoulder blade, of dyspeptic symptoms, constipation and headache of course you never did, and you never did, the individual was not using Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, or he would not so have looked—so have complained. To purify the blood when contaminated with bile, and correct its effluvia into its proper channel, to re-establish regularity of the bowels, banish bilious headache and remove impediments to complete digestion, nothing can approach in efficacy this peerless alternative and tonic. Malarial complaints, always involving the liver and kidneys and bladder inactivity, are remedied by it. It is a capital appetizer.

A one-horse concern—trying to pick out the winner.

All "Played Out."
Don't know what ails me lately. Can't eat well—can't sleep well. Can't work, and don't enjoy doing any thing. Am't really sick, and I really ain't well. Feel kind o' played out, some way. That is what I feel. I can't say every day. If they would take Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" they would soon have no occasion to say it. It purifies the blood, tones up the system and fortifies it against disease. It is a great anti-bilious remedy as well.

It is a wise child that resembles its richest relatives.

Many People Refuse to Take Cod Liver Oil on account of its unpleasant taste. This difficulty has been overcome in SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. It being as palatable as milk, and the most valuable remedy known for the treatment of Consumption, Scrofula and Bronchitis, General Debility, Wasting Diseases of Children, Chronic Coughs and Colds, has caused physicians in all parts of the world to use it. Physicians report that little patients take it with pleasure. Try Scott's Emulsion and be convinced.

An engaging smile—A lover's grin at his fiancée.

"I Feel So Well"
"I want to thank you for telling me of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes a lady to her friend. "For a long time I was unable to attend to my household duties. I kept about, but I felt thoroughly miserable. I had terrible backaches, and bearing-down sensations across me and was quite weak and discouraged. I got it and got some of the medicine, and after receiving your letter, and it has cured me. I hardly know myself. I feel so well."

3 Physicians Failed.

alone. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and using the local treatment recommended in his "Common Sense Medical Adviser." I commenced to improve at once. In three months I was perfectly cured and have had no return since. I wrote a letter to my family paper, briefly mentioning how my health had been restored, and offering to send the full particulars to any writing me for them, and enclosing a stamped-envelope for reply. I have received over four hundred letters. In reply, I have described my case and the treatment used, and have earnestly advised them to "do likewise." From a great many I have received second letters of thanks, stating that they had commenced the use of "Favorite Prescription," and had sent the $1.50 required for the "Medical Adviser," and had applied the local treatment so fully and plainly laid down therein, and were much better already."

3 Physicians Failed.

Mrs. E. F. MORGAN, of No. 71 Lexington St., East Boston, Mass., writes: "Five years ago I was a dreadful sufferer from uterine troubles. Having exhausted the skill of three physicians, I was completely discouraged, and so weak I could scarcely get up. I was suffering from leucorrhoea, bearing-down pains, and pain continually across my back. Three bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' restored me to perfect health. I treated with Dr. —, for nine months, without receiving any benefit. The 'Favorite Prescription' is the greatest earthly boon to us poor suffering women."

TREATING THE WRONG DISEASE.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion or prostration, another with pain here or there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent, or over-busy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, assuming them to be such, when, in reality, they are all only symptoms caused by one womb disorder. The physician ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages his practice until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine, like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery.

THE OUTGROWTH OF A VAST EXPERIENCE.

The treatment of many thousands of cases of those chronic weaknesses and distressing ailments peculiar to females, at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has afforded a vast experience in nicely adapting and thoroughly testing remedies for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the outgrowth, or result, of this great and valuable experience. Thousands of testimonials, received from patients and from physicians who have tested it in the more aggravated and obstinate cases which had baffled their skill, prove it to be the most wonderful remedy ever devised for the relief and cure of suffering women. It is not recommended as a "cure-all," but as a most perfect Specific for woman's Peculiar ailments.
