INCREASE BUDGET

Upon Necessity of School Support In War Time.

Educationally the decade that follows war will be, I believe, the richest comparably greater than ours have picked up much war material. doubled their educational budgets. It is clearly the inevitable policy of wis. infantry in the operation.

Our handling of our educational affairs in the next few years will furnish once more a test of our statesmanship and give unce more a clear revelation of what relative place we give education in the things worth while in commonwealth building. The necessity of war economics will show what we value in terms of what we nourish and of what we sacrifice. If schools are the first public-service inthem and yet build other things; ii they cannot compete with business for the services of the few good men and women they need--we shall know in concrete terms that in time of storn we feel that they are still the first to be cast overboad, and not, as we have claimel to believe, the basis of the democracy for which we are fighting.

No Sacrifice Too Great

No sacrifice is too great to make fo the schools, and no patriotism is mor genuinely productive than the patriotism whose faith in the schools is s deeply rooted that no public distrac tion or disaster is permitted to blight them as the source of all of our reconstructive power.
