CENTENARY DRIVE SUNDAY

HUGE CALL FOR MISSIONS LAUNCHED MAY 18-25TH

Church Membership Asked To Remain At Home From 3 To 6 To Be Easily Found By Solicitors; Prospects Good.

The Methodist Centenary movement is launched in the southern church next Sunday, May 18th, to raise $35,000,000 for the expansion of the church in the fields of missions and primarily to give a deeper spiritual life to the rank and file of Methodism.

In this great move in Warren county, the Warren charge under Rev. C. A. Jones and Mr. J. B. Davis, with the active assistance of laymen and local church officials, stands ready. The Warrenton charge under Rev. J. T. Gibbs and W. Brodie Jones, due to the efficient work of the local church authorities, is also ready to launch its great campaign. The two charges are to raise over $20,000 in the five years. The various ams. have been apportioned to each church and a working basis established which, every indication points, promises success.

The drive will raise the largest sum ever undertaken by any denomination, $35,000,000 to be pledged next week and paid in five equal installments during the coming five years. The Northern church and Canada deeply interested in this campaign have already floated their drive amount of $80,000,000.

The purpose of county church officials and drive heads is to oversubscribe the amount assigned to their respective churches in the Sunday afternoon interview which will be afforded every Methodist between the hours of three and six o'clock, if possible. Members of the denomination are asked to remain at home Sunday afternoon until interviewed or until six o'clock. This needed co-operation will facilitate the work of the team captains.

The entire spirit of the campaign is for voluntary contribution by the individual church member prompted by a realization of the great need of christianizing influence in the world today.

The following "Summons to all Methodists to Attend Church Sunday, May 18, 1919" on behalf of the Bishops, by the Senior Bishop, E. R. Hendrix, strikes the keynote of the Methodist's world campaign. In line with its suggestion a church meeting will be held here Sunday morning at 11; at Warren Plains following Sunday School; at Hebron, following church services and at Macon following Sunday School. It is presumed that a similar program will be followed on the Warren charge. Bishop Hendrix's letter:

"The hour has come—God's hour and man's hour. Other churches are also planning to observe this hour but on a smaller scale, but the world is challenged to observance of Methodism which at once celebrates a hundred years of organized missionary effort and the close of the world's war. Before peace was planned we were preparing to share in the campaign to follow the great war by a worthy campaign with Christ as our Leader to extend his kingdom throughout a sorrowing world. It was to be a campaign of Thanksgiving, of Consecration, of Reinforcement, of Reconstruction. It implied the following up of the plowshare of war with the seed basket and sickle of peace. Every mission field at home and abroad made its askings in the light at once of its needs and its opportunities. With the New Testament now in six hundred languages we feel that the time is ripe for our church to send out five hundred additional missionaries in the next five years. What heroes they follow, fit though few, in the great mission fields which have been pioneered. Our conquering Lord has opened the world to us to occupy in His name, has guarded the seas, has shortened the distances until now the world has become a great neighborhood where the watchmen can see eye to eye.

"Let the campaign which opens on May 18th be ushered in by a great Church-going Sunday that shall fill our Churches, both with crowds of worshippers and the spirit of faith and prayer. It is our Lord who summons us to meet Him in the place of worship. Let ours be the Church's answer to His gracious call for service. He is mobilizing His army. Let the foundations of hell tremble under the footfalls of the hosts of the Lord as the cry goes up to Heaven, the Lord of hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge.

"We are summoned under a new sense of the unlimited resources of Christ who declares afresh, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." His resources are ours if we seek them. We dare not look alone to our own resources which God has put into our hands until the wealth of the world is in Christian lands. "He giveth thee the power to get wealth." But it is the spiritual resources hid in Christ that we most need. Happy the result of the world war that has given us a deeper knowledge of the resources in Christ, the riches of His compassion of his patience and His grace, until the bleeding world calls out our compassion as did Jerusalem when our Lord wept over it. The world's greatest need today is the necessary Christ and those who know him and his resources. While the world is moved by those who have made the supreme sacrifice during the greatest war in human history let all men know Who made the supreme sacrifice for all men.

"It was on the eve of passion week as our Lord's life was closing that 'Jesus sat down over against the treasury.' He was observing with loving solicitude men in their relation to their property. His eye rested upon the widow, possibly the victim of the rich who devoured widow's houses, yet she cast in her all, being measured in the sight of her Lord not by what she gave but what she had left. It was then our Lord took the widow's mite and placed in his crown." He still sits over against the treasury and as the multitudes are casting in their gifts into the treasury and these gifts will be tests of our gratitude and our faith. None will be too large to measure fully our gratitude, or too small to escape his notice as a tribute from a grateful heart. It is the habit and motive of giving that will be most pleasing unto Christ.

"Take and give for me and thee" was what our Lord said in directing the gift of a bodyguard apostle. Our gifts may even be vicarious as His sufferings were. If we give with the internal mind and heart we hasten the gathering in of the world harvest. The world is watching while we give, and many who have not yet owned Him as their Lord will join in our giving if it is worthy. Let it be Scripture measure, pressed down, shaken together, running over, and so our promised offering of Thirty-Five Millions will grow to Fifty Millions."

Notice To Farmers.

All farmers interested in the organization of a credit union should attend the meetings at Arcola Saturday, May 17th, at 2:30; at Warren Plains, Saturday, May 17th, at 7:30. Mr. W. E. Garnett from the U. S. Bureau of Markets will be present at these meetings to explain the organization and operation of the credit union. You can't afford to miss hearing Mr. Garnett on this subject.

Demonstration A Gratifying Success

The Home Economics Department of the Woman's Club met on Tuesday at 4 o'clock p. m., at Miss Rankin's office according to appointment.

The cake making demonstration was exceedingly interesting and instructive. Economical Golden Cake, and "Angel's Food" were compounded before the large audience of interested women, and the baking was done then and there upon a new Perfection oil stove. The icing was made and a part put back on the stove to thicken so as to ornament the cake which was done by using an ordinary cornucopae of letter paper. The icing was beautiful and the ornamentation quite artistic. Coloring matter was green and pink icing and a graceful wreath of pink sweet peas adorned the cake. A pink rose with rosebud and leaves was made separately to demonstrate that any flower could be chosen according to the taste of the cake maker. The cakes were cut and eaten and declared to be delicious. Mrs. Connell and Mrs. Nathan Palmer, the Presiding officer and Secretary and Treasurer, were interested helpers at the demonstration.

Miss Rankin is not only very efficient in her department, but exceedingly pleasant—ready to answer the numerous questions asked her.

We were glad to welcome visitors from the country and hope they will continue to come and induce others to do so.

Many showed their appreciation of the good work being done by Miss Rankin by joining this department which now has thirty members.

How It Was Done

Angels Food Cake

1 c. egg whites (8 to 10), 1 tsp. cream of tartar, 1 c. flour, 1-4 c. sugar, 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. vanilla or almond.

Beat whites until they foam, add cream of tartar and beat until stiff. Add sugar slowly, salt and extract. Fold in flour. Place in ungreased pan. Bake at a moderate temperature 20 to 25 min. Open the oven door often and do not be afraid of the cake falling. When it first shrinks from the sides of the pan remove from the oven. Turn pan up on stem and let hang until perfectly cold. Cut around edges and gently pull from bottom.

Economy Golden Cake.

2c. sugar, 1c. crisco, 1tsp. extract, 1 tsp. salt, 10 egg yolks, 1c. water or milk, 4 tsp baking powder, 4c flour.

Cream crisco and sugar; add eggs well-beaten, extract, salt and liquid. Beat thoroughly, sift flour and baking powder four time and add. Do not beat more than two minutes after flour has been added. Just enough to get all lumps out. Cut paper to fit bottom of pan. Grease well and flour. Bake in a moderate stove oven from 45 to 60 minutes.

Decorating Icng.

2c. sugar, 3-4 c. boiling water, 1-2 tsp. cream of tartar, 1-2 c. sugar, 5 egg whites, 1-4 tsp tartaric acid or 1tsp lemon juice.

Closing Exercises At Wise

Excellent Commencement Program Featured By Speech of President Poteat.

It was possible to put so little time in preparation for commencement this year that not much of a program could be expected. All were very agreeably surprised, however, for the exercises were as good as usual, if not better.

The baccalaureate sermon was preached on Sunday, May 4th by Dr. T. E. Cochran, of Wake Forest College, who took for his text the familiar "He grew in wisdom and in stature and in favor with God and man." Dr. Cochran impressed his hearers with the fact that an education no longer consists in the acquisition of the three Rs, but in the perfect development of the three H's—Head and Hand and Heart. He endeavored to show that opportunities for success in life can be found anywhere and everywhere; that all depends on the person and not upon his environment. He illustrated this point by using several stories taken from Dr. Russell Conwell's famous lecture, "Acres of Diamonds."

The musical given on Monday evening, May 5th by the pupils of Miss Bunn was exceptionally good, all showing much improvement over their previous performances. Especially noteworthy was the playing of Miss Agnes Paschall, Miss Lucy Tucker and Miss Lucy Perkinson. The little operetta "A Day in Flowerdom" was especially pretty and graceful and gave variety to the program.

The graduation exercises on Tuesday evening was unique and a departure from the usual order. The funeral of the class of 1919 was elaborate and impressive.

The members of the class are Miss Zela Newman, Miss Estelle Isles, Miss Viola Perkinson, and Mr. Sturgis Collins. Mr. Collins deserves especial mention from the fact that he has worked as night operator at Paschall all during the session, showing how earnestly he desired an education. All of the class expects to pursue their studies further and prepare themselves for greater usefulness.

Last and best of all was the address of Dr. Poteat, President of Wake Forest. It is to be regretted that it was so late when he began speaking, because he naturally felt that everyone was getting tired. He began by waking his audience and putting it in a thoroughly good humor by telling two or three exceedingly funny stories. None who heard it will soon forget the story of the dandy who got mad when asked was her "pogram" full. After getting everybody aroused, Dr. Poteat became more serious and spoke for a few minutes on "Democracy." The speaker appears to have all the attributes of a genuine democrat himself. He said that democracy was both a spirit and a view, that many had the view but few the spirit. He warned his hearers of the great peril to democracy of socialism and anarchy and said some fine things about the two safe guards against these perils, religion and education. He spoke of North Carolina's promising future and insisted that its greatest crop was not cotton nor tobacco, but its thousands of beautiful children born of the native stock. For the second time recently we have had brought to our attention the fact that North Carolina stands next to the bottom of all the states in the matter of educating its children. Mississippi stands at the very bottom, North Carolina comes next. It seems that the time has come when instead of trying to evade this matter, every person who lives in this state should look it squarely in the face, get thoroughly ashamed of it and then do something to remove the disgraceful stigma. We can no longer plead poverty as an excuse. Let us spend our ever increasing wealth where it is most needed—Upon Our Schools.

Dr. Poteat, we want you to come again and that very soon.

Nothing New to Him.

"Indeed, I have," responded the sailor. "I've been torpedooed six times!"

BUSINESS LOOMS LARGE

REFLECTIONS FROM MIRROR LOOKS BRIGHT TO U.S.

Business Conditions To Be Good For Long Period Is Opinion of Economic Expert; Optimism Indeed Justified By Facts.

(By Edward D. Jones)

If we could only look in our mirrors and see ourselves as we really are we would be compelled to laugh much against our will. We are truly a funny bunch. We worry ourselves over what never happened, and at certain stages in the game are more afraid of our shadows than the average woman is supposed to fear a mouse. Think of the feelings of thousands of people who pitched over their stocks at panic prices during the war "scare" and who are tempted almost beyond what they are able to kick themselves. No wonder they groan when they see current prices for the stocks they once had, but disposed of in panic.

This morning, when we read about the Victory Note results, each of us is probably a bit ashamed of himself, for we were not going to buy any more obligations of Uncle Sam and have them go down four or five points after we bought them. We had all done our bit with the Liberty issues and that was enough—let the banks finance the Government. Yet we all bought the Victories. That knowing looking the mirror would reveal that the laugh was on us.

We rage and fume over politics and threaten all sorts of dire things, but dear old common sense has come to our rescue so far, and although it makes us look ridiculous in that revealing mirror, it saves us and has been our persistent and insistent saviour for the 143 years of our existence. Here we are the richest and most powerful nation in the world, yet the youngest.

After all, most of us never do grow up. We act all through our lives like children, doing all sorts of foolish, even idiotic things, but come out all right in the end. Any man who is willing to look back at the fool things he did between 12 and 25 years of age will be inclined to wonder that he is alive, or possessed of any of this world's goods.

There could be no better illustration of what fools we make of ourselves than our attitude a few weeks ago toward Victory Notes, compared with what we have seen accomplished. Just now we are figuring on what we will and will not do as to a League of Nations and in our trade relations with the world under the new conditions which are unprecedentedly in our favor. Very likely we shall do a great many of foolish things in the process, but the big results will come to us just as they always have. Therefore, when we look in the mirror a few years hence, although we shall have to laugh at what is revealed, we shall take pride in the results. As time heals all sorrows, so that same time mercifully bring to us forgetfulness of our blunders.

A Big Text For Every Business Man

One of the city newspapers concluded an editorial on the United States feeding the world with these words:

"When prices fall it will be because abundance has overtaken famine and subdued it, and that is not yet."

In those few words is the real text for every talk on general business, for in it is that old axiomatic law of supply and demand which never has been and never will be repealed, no matter what the orists may write, or the business men of the world do. So long as demand is greater than supply, so long will business be good, and the greater the demand the better the business. The world never was in need of so many things as it is today and somebody must supply them. There may be problems of how the needy will pay, but these can always be solved and generally in a satisfactory way. When a man must have something he is spurred to supreme effort to get it and to pay for it.

Business is, after all, a good deal like an auction. When there is some article that several people want the price goes up, bid by bid, so commodities of all kinds with men of (Continued On Fourth Page)
