It may be interesting to the friends of Mr. W. Brodie Jones, former editor of the Warren Record and recently a student of Journalism at Columbia college, New York, to know that he is expected in Warrenton Sunday. Mr. Jones will be accompanied by four fellow-students. They left New York in a Ford car Thursday (yesterday) morning and expect to reach Washington that night, spending the day in Washington, reaching Richmond Saturday night and on to Warrenton Sunday.

Mr. Jones and his associates expect to make a tour of twenty-nine states and possibly part of British Columbia during the Summer and early Fall. For this purpose they will use a Ford, and we may be pardoned in quoting part of a letter bearing on his trip:

"We got out our car this week and it is a 'humdinger.'" A firm gave us a set of Distel wheels as an advertisement. We even attract attention on Broadway when we ride up with the neatly painted sign "Coast to Coast on Distel wheels." We have also a letter from Mayor Hylan, and numbers of letters from the School."

Mr. Jones and his friends expect to be in Warrenton several days and will then leave through Western North Carolina and on to Chicago and the great West, returning by way of Niagra Falls and on to New York.

JEFFERSON DAVIS

The South honors itself today in paying honor to Jefferson Davis. The United Daughters of the Confederacy will meet this day to pay tribute to Mr. Davis and to give hearty welcome to this town of a remnant of that immortal band who followed with unflinching steps the beacon of liberty held aloft by the President of the Confederacy—the Honorable Jefferson Davis, statesman and patriot.

It has been fittingly said of him: "He was a statesman with clean hands and a pure heart, who served his people faithfully from budding manhood to hoary age, without thought of self, with unbending integrity and to the best of his great ability."

At the unveiling of a statute of Senator Hill of Georgia Hon. Henry Grady, the golden-tongued orator of the South, introduced Mr. Davis who was present to deliver the unveiling ceremonies. Mr. Grady's introductory remarks were so beautiful, so appropriate and so filled with the golden threads of truth that we reproduce them in part:

Henry W. Grady's Tribute to Davis
"Had the great man whose memory is perpetuated by this marble chosen of all men one witness to his constancy and his courage, he would have chosen the honorable statesman whose presence honors this platform today, Jefferson Davis—first and last, President of the Confederate States. It is good, sir (turning to Mr. Davis), for you to be here. Other leaders have had triumphs. Conquerors have won crowns, and honors have been piled on the victors of earth's great battles, but never yet, sir, came man to more loving people.

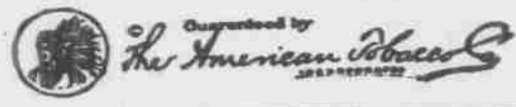

Never conquerer wore prouder diadem than the deathless love that crowns your gray hairs today. Never king inhabited more splendid palace than the millions of brave hearts in which your dear name and fame are forever enshrined. Speaking to you, sir, as a son of a Confederate soldier who sealed his devotion with his life—holding kinship through the priceless heritage of his blood to you and yours—standing midway between the thinning ranks of his old comrades, whose faltering footsteps are turned toward the grave, and the new generation thronging to take the work that falls unfinished from their hands—here in the auspicious Present, across which the historic Past salutes a glorious Future, let me pledge you that the love we bear you shall be transmitted to our children, and our children's children, and that generations yet unborn shall in this fair land hold your memory sacred, and point with pride to your lofty and stainless life.

My countrymen (turning to the audience,) let us teach the lesson in this old man's life, that defeat hath its glories no less than victory. Let us declare that this outcast from the privileges of his great government is the uncrowned king of our people, and that no Southern man high or humble, ask a greater glory than to bear with him, heart to heart, the blame and the burdens of the cause for which he stands unpardoned.

In dignity and honor he met the responsibilities of our common cause. With dauntless courage he faced the charges. In obscurity and poverty he has for twenty years borne the reproach of our enemies and the obloquy of defeat. This monument—to this blessed Easter week—that, witnessing the resurrection of these memories that for twenty years have been buried in our hearts, has given us the best Easter we have ever seen, since Christ was risen from the dead, this monument finds its richest reward in the fact that we can light with sunshine the shortening end of a path that has long been dark and dreary. Georgians, countrymen, soldiers and sons of soldiers, and brave women, the light and soul and crown of our civilization, rise, and give your heart's voice, as we tell Jefferson Davis that he is at home among his people."

ican soldier killed on German soil. But by way of preventing its happening again he "would wish a nation so powerful that none will dare to provoke its wrath."

As long as the President of the United State is so ignorant of the mere superficialities of history as to know that there never has been and never will be, a nation so powerful that none will dare to provoke its wrath, the prospect for world peace is bleak and dreary. Three millions of Americans dared to provoke the wrath of the mighty British empire; and their daring is the reason why there exists an American presidency for Mr. Harding to hold. Starving Russia dares provoke the wrath, not of a single nation, but of the civilized world. Human courage has no freeing-point. Men who are convinced of the righteousness of their cause will often walk into the jaws of destruction. Does Mr. Harding intend to make America more powerful, from the military standpoint than all the rest of the world combined? We doubt it. Yet it will have to be more powerful than that before Russia will not dare to provoke its wrath.

"So powerful that none will dare to provoke its wrath"—poppycock! The legions of mighty cherubim led by the Archangel Michela are not that strong; for we are reckless men provoking Heaven's wrath every day.

The only way for America to help promote world peace is by being so just and reasonable that none will find cause to provoke her wrath. The way for a man to protect his person and property is not to go around armed to the teeth, but to live within the law, and lend his support to its enforcement against any other man who breaks it. The way for a nation to protect itself in this century is exactly the same.

Mr. Harding's utterance is more befitting the chief of some nomad tribe, or the holder of some robber baron's castle, than for the elected head of a great civilized government. Rant and cant are appropriate enough to barbarians; but they strike a discordant note among civilized men.

FORD PRODUCING 4,000 CARS A DAY

Ford is building cars at full speed. And, according to an official statement from the factory at Detroit, the demand for Ford cars and trucks still exceeds the output, despite the fact that a new high level of production has been reached.

By the first of May the figures representing the daily production were in the neighborhood of 4,000 a day, so the May schedule was set at 101,125 cars and trucks, not including the output of the Ford Canadian plant or any of the foreign assembling plants. The output mounted daily: May 12th brought forth 4092, the greatest number that have been produced in one day so far this year. Since the month has 25 working days, present indications point to a new high record. A comparison of Ford production figures for 1920 and 1921 discloses the fact that for April 1921 the output was greater by 24,514 than for the corresponding month of a year ago. The output for May 1921 will probably overshadow May 1920 by between fifteen and twenty thousand cars and trucks.

Approximately 43,000 men are at work in the Detroit plant of the Ford Motor Company. The factory is operating on full time, six days a week and three shifts a day.

"We were never in a better condition than we are right now," said Henry Ford recently.

NOTICE OF SUMMONS - AND WARRANT OF ATTACHMENT North Carolina—Warren County W. G. Coppersmith Vs.

W. W. Warren
