TELLS OF KERR'S UNIVERSITY WORK

EDITOR OF CAROLINA MAGAZINE GIVES PRAISE

To Young Warrenton Man For Excellency of His Work At State University During His Four Collegiate Years

The following write-up was sent by Mr. Tyre C. Taylor, Editor Carolina Magazine, University of North Carolina. We take pleasure in giving honor to whom honor is due—Ed. By TYRE C. TAYLOR

The people of his home town and Warren county will take delight in hearing of the splendid record made at the State University by John H. Kerr, Jr., son of Judge J. H. Kerr, of Warrenton. Few men have done so much in student activities during their stay here, and few men have left so lasting an imprint on the life of the campus. Let me itemize:

In the very beginning of his college career, while yet a Freshman, Kerr broke out in the Phi Assembly, and on every question that presented itself argued with so much force and reason that before the end of the year he was recognized by all as the ablest first-year man in that body. Since that time he has held almost every office in the gift of the Assembly, and during the Winter quarter, as society president, gave the Assembly an efficient, earnest, and able administration.

In debating he has represented the University in two regular inter-collegiate debates, the first against John Hopkins, at Lexington, Va., last year and the second at Baltimore against Washington and Lee during the present Spring quarter.

In the field of publications Kerr has been an equally aggressive worker, writing almost weekly for the student publications, the Tar Heel and the Carolina Magazine. On the first of these publications he was, while yet during his Junior year, the Managing Editor, a position second in importance only to the Editorship itself.

But the great achievement which will cause Kerr to be held in grateful remembrance by the University and his fellow class-mates was his work as Junior President of the class of 1921. The following, taken from a recent editor in one of the student publications, gives some idea of the magnitude and importance of this work:

"But the biggest thing the Class of '21 has done was under the captaincy of her Junior president, John Kerr. It consisted of a tearing down of the barriers and the building up of a better feeling between Fraternity and non-Fraternity. Today there is scarcely a trace of the old-time bitterness remaining. Class elections split on no lines that could be called frat. and non-frat. This year the Seniors held a number of their smokers in fraternity halls, the percentage of fraternity men in college is larger than ever before and the relations between frat. and non-frat. men are in every way most cordial. This happy state of affairs has not always existed. Those who attended the University ten or twenty years ago recall the bitterness that existed between the two classes of University men, the long drawn out fights, and the generally unhealthy spirit that prevailed on the campus and out in the State as a result. It was not until the Class of '21—afire with the principles of democracy and idealism then burned into the souls of men everywhere by the great war—got on the job with Kerr at the helm that the Old Order of things with its stupidities and futilities went by the way to show its head no more."

As Chairman of the Greater University Student Committee, an organization which was founded for the purpose of giving out facts regarding the needs of the state's educational institutions during the recent drive for increased appropriations, Kerr performed an invaluable service which won for him the thanks of the University and the title among his fellows of the Organizer.

As one of the Founders, and this year President of the Campus Cabinet, the constructive, upbuilding force in student government, Kerr has shown what can be done in the way of guiding and directing student opinion along proper paths. Under his direction the scope of the function of the Cabinet has become almost unlimited; one month it had all the Governor-

JOURNAIST AT STATE CAPITOL

In Raleigh yesterday were four Columbia University men on an automobile tour from New York to San Francisco and back. Three are students in journalism—Joseph A. Fleitzer, Altoona, Pa., C. A. Shamel, Gibson City, Ill., and W. Brodie Jones of Warrenton, N. C. The other one, Dixon Shamel, is an A. B. Graduate of Columbia but is engaged in business.

The party had a camping outfit with them and plan to camp out each night. They left New York Thursday, June 2 and came to Warrenton where they remained at the home of Mr. Jones until yesterday morning. They left here yesterday afternoon expecting to reach Greensboro for the night. They had a letter of introduction from Mayor John F. Hylan, of New York to Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco, and a letter from Mr. J. W. Cunliffe director of the Columbia school of journalism. They expect to get back to New York about October 1.

Mr. Fleitzer, who is with the United Press, will represent that organization on the tour and will get special feature stories for it. He has had an interesting career. He had been in Germany for four years when the war broke out, visiting Germany, visiting Germany, Russia, Austria and Scandinavia. When the United States entered the war he entered the service being assigned to the Engineer Corps and serving until he was shell-shocked and had to return home.

During the day the young journalists were in Warrenton they did the greater part of the work on the Warren Record owned by Mr. Howard F. Jones, father of W. Brodie Jones, one of the members of the party. All three wrote special articles, Mr. Fleitzer discussing "Warrenton the Town Complete; Views of a New Yorker in Town for a Day" and also taking a whirl at reporting some incidents of police court. Mr. Shamel on "Clinic Treating School Children" while Mr. Jones told the story of a baseball game between Warrenton and Cokesbury and a womanless wedding.

The traveling journalists called on former Secretary Daniels and had him to pose with them for a picture which will be one of the souvenirs of their transcontinental journey.

Mr. Jones, who was with his father's paper some time before going to Columbia, besides pursuing his journalistic studies at Columbia, during the last few months had a position in the proof reading department of the New York Times.—From Saturday's News and Observer.

A CARD OF THANKS

In behalf of the colored people of Warrenton county who had their children treated at the clinic last Friday, I wish to thank the State and county doctors and nurses for the kind service rendered by them during the treatment; and also to the good ladies of the town for the interest shown by them by their presence and kind words of cheer, and the milk and other necessities given by them for the nourishment and comfort of the children.

There were twenty two colored children and, as far as I can ascertain, they are all getting on fine.

While we regret that all the children who needed treatment were not able to be treated last Friday, we hope in the near future it will be made possible for them to receive treatment also.

Respectfully
OSSIAN E. ELLIS.

DENDINGER VISITS WARRENTON

TO GO BEFORE BOARD COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

First Monday in July And Ask For An Appropriation To Aid In Fight Against Bovine Tuberculosis.

By BIGNALL JONES
Dr. W. C. Dendinger, from Raleigh, of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry was in Warrenton Friday. He is co-operating with the State in the eradication of bovine tuberculosis.

Dr. Dendinger's purpose here was to see the chairman of the Board of County Commissioners concerning an appointment with that body. The first Monday in July he will appear before the Commissioners and ask for an appropriation to aid in this work. The Board of Commissioners have the authority to do this under an act of the last legislature, ratified March 9, 1921. The work is to be done on a 50-50 basis; the Government paying half the cost and the county paying half.

Meanwhile Dr. Dendinger is going about his work of lining up the people behind this important work.

"It is estimated that about 2 1-2 per cent of the cattle in North Carolina are infected with bovine tuberculosis," stated Dr. Dendinger. "In New York and New Jersey about twenty per cent of cattle are infected and it has become one of the problems of these states. North Carolina should look after this very infectious disease before it reaches this alarming proportion."

Studying this question from an economic viewpoint, Dr. Dendinger brings statistics to bear showing that during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920 in packing houses under Government inspection 228,148 cattle were condemned on account of various diseases. 45 per cent, or nearly half—103,664—were condemned on account of tuberculosis.

The Government inspects only about 65 per cent of cattle slaughtered. It is estimated that 30,000 carloads or feed were wasted in this manner during the fiscal year 1920, besides the work attendant to raising these cattle.

But the financial loss is the smallest part of this disease. Besides the money loss set forth above, the disease is very contagious to children.

Dr. William H. Parker, Director of Laboratory New York City Public Health, states: "In children under 5 in tuberculosis cervical adenitis 57 per cent of those due to bovine tuberculosis. (This is given cause tuberculosis). That 68 per cent of abdominal tuberculosis, 26 per cent general and 16 per cent of tuberculosis meningitis is due to bovine tuberculosis." While older people are not as susceptible to this disease, it is contagious enough to adults to be alarming.

The importance of this work is realized when we consider that even a score of tuberculosis infected cows may result in the death of many Warrenton county children from this dreaded disease.

Dr. Dendinger states that about $1500 will be required from the county if the work can be completed in one year, and says this is very probable.

Warrenton played Littleton last Friday afternoon at Littleton but from the accounts reaching this office, our boys were not up to their usual form. The score was thirteen to one in favor of Littleton. Warrenton had previously taken the laurels from Littleton on the Warrenton diamond, and in this game, Littleton returned the score with added interest.

The deciding game remains to be played.
