

PARTY ABANDONS NORMALCY TREND

Pennsylvania And Indiana Primaries Indicative of New Republican Ideas.

OLD GUARD LOSING GRIP

New York World.

The Pennsylvania primaries confirm what the Indiana primaries clearly indicated. The rank and file of the Republican Party have again struck their tents and are marching back from normalcy.

What Gifford Pinchot accomplished in Pennsylvania is little short of a political miracle. Without an organization and without strong, popular leadership, he wrecked the Republican machine by the sheer force of a moral issue. All the special interest that have controlled Pennsylvania politics for years were lined up against him—the Republican organization, the railroads, the mines, the great corporations and the financial interests that have so long been the government of the State—and he beat them.

Mr. Pinchot is not a commanding figure in the sense in which that term is ordinarily used in politics. Like Mr. Beveridge in Indiana he was a former Progressive who had returned to the party but had never been comfortable, but unlike Beveridge he had few of the elements of personal popularity. He began his campaign against the organization on the issue of an honest administration of the State's affairs and he never lost sight of the issue. His opponents described him variously as an atheist, an anarchist, a socialist, a Bolshevik, a single-taxer, an advocate of confiscation, a visionary reformer and a dangerous radical; but Mr. Pinchot kept after the machine.

To make it plain that Mr. Alter represented everything that the Harding Administration represents in government, all the conservatism, all the safety and sanity, the Alter managers took their candidate to Washington, ostentatiously escorted him to the White House and had the Presidential blessing bestowed upon him. Mr. Pinchot in the mean time kept pegging away at the scandals of the Republican State Administration and at the necessity of giving Pennsylvania a different kind of government.

Until the Indiana primaries were held, nobody believed that he stood the ghost of a chance of winning. Then came the Beveridge victory, which put new heart in the Pinchot workers. The organization, however, still relied on its ancient strongholds in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh to give it an easy triumph; but both cities failed it. Their majorities were not sufficient to overcome the Pinchot vote in the rest of the State, and he carried sixty-one out of the sixty-seven counties, an impressive record of uniform strength outside the districts wholly dominated by the machine.

There was no specific national issue in the Pennsylvania primaries aside from Senator Pepper's majority in the face of the campaign made against him by the advocates of the soldiers' bonus; but in a larger sense the result in every way is national. The Old Guard rules in Washington, but it is losing its grip on the party. The pendulum is swinging rapidly away from the reactionary politicians who seized the Republican organization in 1920 and undertook to re-establish the Hanna system of government. The popular discontent that over-whelmed the Democratic Party two years ago is now overwhelming the Republican leaders who tricked the country and obtained power under false pretenses. The lesson of Pennsylvania is far more impressive than the lesson of Indiana; for if there is a State in the Union in which the organization could have safely counted itself supreme, that State is Pennsylvania the Old Guard is now facing two years of factional war for th control of the Republican Party in 1924, with the odds steadily increasing against it. That is the broad significance of the Pinchot nomination.

A Southern Volunteer.

Yes, sir I fought with Stonewall, And faced the fight with Lee, But if this here Union goes to war, Make one more gun for me! I didn't shrink from Sherman As he galloped to the sea; But if this here Union goes to war, Make one more gun for me.

I was with 'em at Manassas— The bully boys in grey; I heard the thunders roarin' Round Stonewall Jackson's way, And many a time this sword of mine Has blazed the route for Lee, But if this here old Nation goes to war, Make one more gun for me!

I'm not so full of fightin'

Nor half so full of fun, As I was back in the sixties When I shouldered my old gun; It may be my hair is white— Cich things, you know, must be— But if this Union's in for war, Make one more gun for me!

I hain't forgot my raisin'— Nor how, in sixty-two Or thereabouts, with battle shouts I charged the boys in blue; And I say I fought with Stonewall And blazed the way for Lee, But if this Union's in for war, Make one more gun for me!

Atlanta Constitution

His Northern Brother.

Just make it two, old fellow, I want to stand once more Beneath the old flag with you, As in the days of yore;

Our fathers stood together And fought on land and sea, The battles fierce that made us A nation of the free.

I whipped you down at Vicksburg, You licked me at Bull Run; On many a field we struggled, When neither victory won. You wore the gray of Southland, I wore the Northern blue; Like men we did our duty, When screaming bullets flew, Four years we fought like heroes; But when the war was done Your hand met mine in friendly clasp Our two hearts beat as one, And now, when danger threatens. No North, no South, we know, Once more we stand together

To fight the common foe.

My head, like yours, is frosty— Old age is creeping on: Life's sun is lower sinking, My day will soon be gone, But if our country's honor Needs once again her son, I'm ready, too, old fellow— So get another gun.

The above touching verse was submitted by a Confederate Veteran of Winston Salem, J. W. Witherington, one of the noble "boys in gray," who shares the sentiment of "A Southern Volunteer."

A good use for old tubes, says a Firestone expert is to use them in your emergency tire repairs. Place a piece between the casing and the patch and it will remove possibility of friction between them.

KEEP YOUR HOGS HEALTHY

Clean and Careful Feeding Essential in Successful Hog Raising

Here is a secret of successful hog raising practiced by many stock raisers and prosperous farmers. Don't feed your hogs sour or ill-smelling garbage.

The swill should first be sweetened with Red Seal Lye. Take one tablespoonful of Red Seal Lye and dissolve it in a pint of water. Mix this solution thoroughly with sufficient feed for 10 hogs. One-half a can of Red Seal Lye dissolved in one quart of water will sweeten a 50-gallon barrel of swill. Feed twice daily, night and morning.

Ordinary garbage ferments, forming an acid which is injurious to the hog. Red Seal Lye will remove this acid and make the feed more wholesome.

Swill which has been first sweetened with Red Seal Lye and fed to the hogs, will help make healthy, sturdy animals.

Make a strong solution of Red Seal Lye, sprinkle around your hog pens and wash out the feeding troughs. Use at least once a week. Be sure and get the old original, highest test, granulated Red Seal Lye. Accept no substitute.

THE UNIVERSAL TRACTOR

Henry Ford

HENRY FORD was 35 years getting ready for the new price on the Fordson. He started as a farm boy, planning to get rid of the drudgery, long hours and low money return that has always faced the farmer.

He wanted to furnish you with a tractor that would not only do your work better and faster, but at lower costs—and the 170,000 Fordsons now in use have proved that he has accomplished these things.

What you get in the Fordson for $395 f. o. b. Detroit is the greatest farm power unit ever offered.

Let us show you how a Fordson will cut farm costs, increase your bank account and take the drudgery out of farm work. Write, phone or call.
