REGISTER URGES FARMERS TO STICK

Owe Same Allegiance To Cooperative Move As To Church and School, He Believes.

LOYALTY WILL WIN FIGHT

By R. S. REGISTER

I have had the pleasure and privilege of meeting and doing business with a large number of farmers in several counties, and have found none of them superior to the splendid farmers of Warren County. I have lived in this county for over ten years, and have been greatly impressed with the splendid type of citizenship, especially among the farmers. Most of them stand solidly for spiritual and educational uplift.

To the farmers who have signed the Co-operative Marketing Contracts, allow me to congratulate you upon joining, in my opinion, one of the greatest movements for your financial betterment, that you have ever undertaken. This new way of marketing tobacco and cotton, has already proven to be the greatest thing possible for the people of North Carolina and South Carolina and Virginia. Practically everybody is agreed that had it not been for co-operative marketing, tobacco and cotton, would be selling today at a much lower price.

The bankers of Florence, S. C. in a signed statement published in the News and Observer some days ago, said they were 100 per cent for Co-operative Marketing. Read the article published in the News and Observer, Oct. 4 part of which reads as follows: "On 24 of the Association Markets, the entire delivery from 34 grades was sold to leading manufacturers before the first day of Co-operative marketing had ended in Virginia and Western Carolina."

RAPID PROGRESS BEING MADE ON NORLINA COOP COTTIN GIN.

"The farmers will no doubt be pleased to know that the work on the gin house and the cotton storage house is progressing rapidly. The gin machinery has arrived, and we expect to have the gin houses and machinery installed and ready for business within the next two or three weeks. When the gin is completed it will be one of the best in this section," says the Association Managers.

"We have a competent architect supervising the construction of the cotton storage house which is being built to comply with the State Department requirements.

"Cotton is being received at Norlina daily. We have plenty of room in our present storage house to take care of several hundred bales. Bring your cotton to Norlina and deliver it to Mr. H. C. Fleming, local manager, and receive an advance of $50.00 per bale at the time of delivery," the Warren County Cotton Warehouse Co.

CITIZENS EXPRESS INTEREST IN MOVE

Editor J. T. Stainback Outlines Building and Loan Plans Here Tuesday Night.

BODY NAMES COMMITTEE

Public recognition of the need for more homes here and an interest in providing them through the building and loan plan held the close attention of a representative group of business men in the Court House on Tuesday as Editor J. T. Stainback, Secretary-Treasurer of the Roanoke Rapids Association, gave the A. B. Cs. of the community building organization.

"Organization of a Building & Loan Association would do more for the town than any other agency at this time," former Senator Tasker Polk said in introducing Mr. Stainback. Mr. Polk recounted in brief the progress the town had made with particular emphasis upon the value of the new hotel. "New homes mean more property and a decrease in tax rate," he told the property owners. The trend of the happy introduction was one of progress, the speaker declaring that "civilization has ever followed the ring of the hammer and the hum of the saw."

Mr. Stainback expressed his pleasure at being present, won his way into friendship by a quiet compliment to the hotel and town, and outlined in direct, embracing, clear style the purposes and methods of operation of a building and loan association.

"Better citizens through home ownership is the first purpose of the building and loan plan. Home ownership is a foe to radicalism," the editor held. "No agency, except your churches, would be of more value to your town, for it inculcates thrift and fosters co-operation for mutual welfare."

"There is fifty million invested in building and loan associations in the State, and there hasn't been a failure since the passage of the North Carolina Building & Loan Act. The associations are under the supervision of the State Insurance Commissioner, the books are audited yearly and loans are made, after the directors pass upon their advisability, only for three-fourths of value on unincumbered real estate.

"The stockholders," Mr. Stainback continued, "pay into the association at the rate of 25c. per share a week—these shares may be paid monthly—at the end of six years the stock has matured at $100. Loans are made from the investments of stockholders in order of application and after due consideration by the Board of Directors."

Other details were clearly explained and made even plainer by questions from the audience.

An organization committee of B. B. Williams, C. R. Rodwell, V. F. Ward, H. A. Moseley, C. E. Jackson, and W. L. Witherspoon was named to secure other stockholders and to perfect plans for an organization. As soon as the charter is secured, a meeting of bona fide stockholders will be called and the officers of the association chosen.
