

Tribute To Memory of Mr. William Odom

Mr. William Odom of this place quietly passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John O'Reiley of Hollister on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 25, in the 69 year of his age.

A good man has gone from us and we shall greatly miss him. He was a member of Bethlehem Church for a number of years—since his boyhood, and in his quiet unassuming way did the best he could, was faithful to his church, his home and his friends. He was a splendid neighbor and loved to be neighborly, never speaking unkindly of any one but looking for the good in all. He leaves two sons and three daughters namely, Messrs. Dempie and Howard Odom; Mrs. Charlie Sturges of Middleburg, Mrs. John O'Reiley and Mrs. William Ross of Hollister besides a number of grandchildren. Mr. Odom had been feeble for some time but was stricken with paralysis about a week before his death. He was conscious most of the time but could not eat. Rev. Bethel, in the absence of the pastor, held the funeral service at the church at Arcola after which he was tenderly laid to rest in the cemetery here.

A FRIEND.

Old Scot: "Dinna cry, ma wee lad-die. If ye dinna find yer penny afore dark, here's a match."—London Mail.

It makes a true Virginian boil, he declares, to witness the wonderful progress being made in North Carolina, in good roads and numerous other respects, and then to visit his own home state and view the resigned spirit of self-satisfaction. Think what these Tarheels would do with such a seaport as Norfolk, or with other unexcelled Virginia natural resources.

Our correspondent's personal account of the widespread awakening in North Carolina has been confirmed by too many observers to be viewed with the least skepticism. North Carolina beyond all question is setting a pace that is causing the state to be singled out for comment in every part of the Union. North Carolina newspapers are this week giving columns of space to the reproduction of James Arthur Seavey's article in The New York Times of October 22, discussing at great length the phoenix like upspringing of a new era down home.

Says Mr. Seavey: If ever a commonwealth went in, head over heels, wholesale and retail, latitudinally and longitudinally, to boom and develop itself, that commonwealth is the Old North State. That which has hit North Carolina is not even a forty-seventh cousin of the old western boom. It is possible that the native captains of industry would object to its being called a boom at all. It is rather a financial industrial, and commercial regeneration—the phoenix of the new South risen from the ashes of the old.

And the Times's writer does not reach the halfway line of his article before he gives away his whole secret: The whole commonwealth has come to realize that parts cannot be greater than the whole; that in the long run, what is good for Raleigh is good for Asheville, and that what works to the disadvantage of Charlotte bodes no good for Salisbury. Teamwork is performing the miracle—teamwork and universal appreciation of the fact that nature has endowed the State with the makings.

This is the combination our correspondent would like to see applied in his native State. He knows it will work; it is working all about him in North Carolina.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Meat Market

Eat, Drink and be Merry

Around the festive board on Christmas day memories are molded for 'future years' reveries.

The Fatted Calf graced the feast centuries ago, in a parable we all know, but it wasn't an original idea.

Through all time, man has built traditions around a table of plenty.

Your Christmas dinner should be a feast of goodthings—and most important should be your meats.

Nations of the world each have their own tempting morsels. All except America—our own melting pot—where tastes and customs intermingle until selections included a varied choice unequalled.

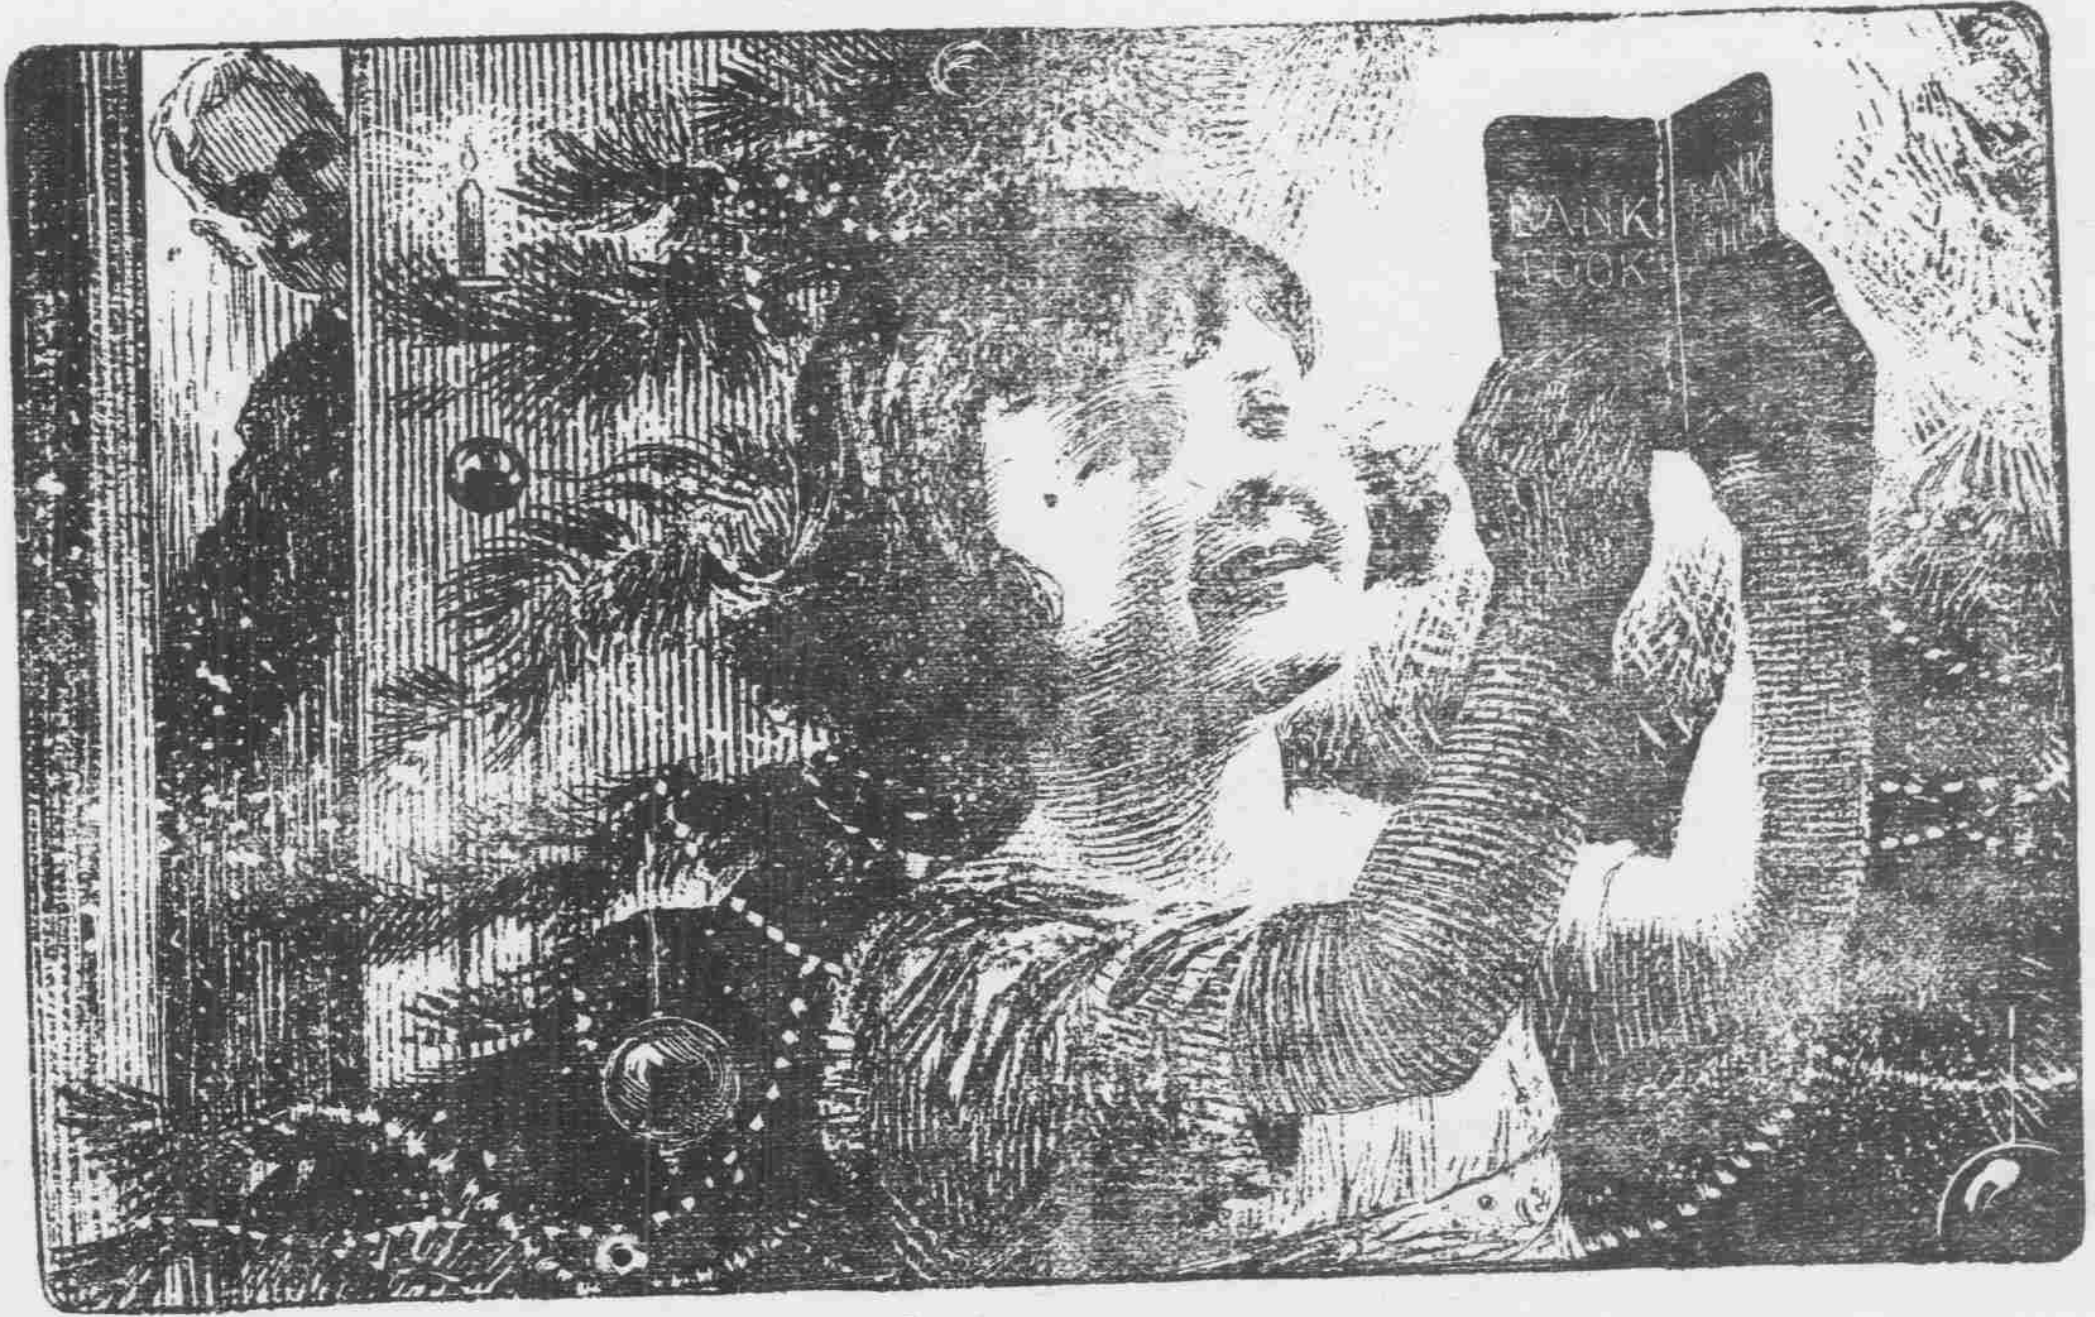

Maybe a fowl—turkey—duck—goose—chicken. Maybe a suckling pig—or the old English feast piece—"a boar's head."

We have made a special effort this year to supply you with choice cuts of meat—no matter what your taste may be. And the prices—are reasonable.

Hang a Savings Account on Your Christmas Tree

NO present will be more prized than a savings account in this bank. Mother will treasure it, sister adore it and brother will say, "Oh, boy!"

If baby lets the sawdust out of her doll, it is done for, but if she tears up her pass book, she can have another. We suspect that father himself would be pleased with such a gift.

A savings account is a lasting present. And it grows from year to year!
