

BANDITS SEIZE $200,000 AT MINT

Masked Men With Sawed-off Shotguns Kill Man Who Resists Hold-up.

GUARD SHOTS LEADER

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 18.—Masked bandits, armed with sawed-off shotguns and without regard for human life today fatally wounded Charles Peterson, guard of the Denver branch of the Kansas City Federal Reserve Bank, stole $200,000 in currency of denomination mint and escaped. The robbery occupied less than a minute's time. Tonight every highway in the state is guarded and police and federal authorities have dispatched armed squads in pursuit of an automobile apprehended by seven men, who were speeding northward shortly after the robbery. One of the occupants was bleeding profusely, according to the report.

The robbery occurred while the money was being transferred from the mint to a Federal Reserve delivery truck. Fifty packages of currency of $4,000 each was seized by the robbers. Witnesses differ as to the number of men participating in the hold-up.

Denver police unhesitatingly declared the holdup was the largest and most sensational ever executed in Colorado.

With sawed-off shotguns, two of the bandits bombarded the front door of the mint as they leaped from their automobile.

Guards Fire From Windows.

Fifty government employees summoned by an alarm bell seized shotguns and rushed to the doors and windows of the mint shooting at the hold-up men who returned the fire and at the same time calmly proceeded to load the fifty packages of currency into their own car.

The four members of the Federal Reserve Bank crew employed in the transfer of the funds, J. E. Olson, cashier; C. T. Linton, J. Adams, and William Havener, had just left the entrance of the mint and were walking toward their machine standing near the curb when another car containing the bandits drove up along-side the wire enclosed truck.

According to witnesses, two or three men carrying guns leaped from the car and with a shout of "hands up" opened fire on the reserve bank employees.

Guards of the mint and other inside employees then rushed out upon the steps of the government building to shoot at the robbers.

Linton, according to the police, attempted to throw the money into the gridded back compartment of the reserve truck at the holdups' command and he was shot by the leader of the bandits. Linton died without regaining consciousness.

Their work of transferring the currency which they had taken from the guards to their car completed, the bandits re-entered their automobile amid a rain of bullets from guards in the second story of the mint and sped toward the civic center.

Bandits Wounded in Flight.

As the car gathered impetus the leader of the highwaymen, standing on the running board, turned toward the government building as though to fire a final volley at the guards. As he did so, Peter Kiedinger, a guard who was on duty at the main entrance, fired with a rifle at the bandit who was seen to crumple up on the running board and was pulled inside the car by the driver. Kiedinger is positive he wounded the fugitive.

The money was the property of the Denver Federal Reserve Bank, the mint merely being a depository for it due to the lack of sufficient vault in the bank building.
