

DENTAL CLINIC
CLOSES FRIDAY

Between 800 and 1000 Children Examined; Branch Gives Lectures

PRE OF SIXTH TOOTH

Between 800 and 1,000 white children were examined in the dental clinic conducted in the schools of Warren county for eight weeks, which came to a close on last Friday afternoon, according to Dr. Nathanial Newman, State director of dental hygiene.

Dr. Branch gave an illustrated lecture at the Norlina school on Friday morning and in the afternoon spoke before members of the parent-teachers association and the friends of the Norlina school. Afternoon he gave a lecture at the Warren Parent-Teachers Association and on Saturday morning spoke to the teachers of Warren county gathered here for a county-wide teachers meeting. The subject of the teeth was the subject of Dr. Branch's lectures in all of the county's schools, which he illustrated with X-ray pictures. However, matters concerning public health were brought in during the course of his remarks.

The clinics in the Warren county were held by Dr. Nathanial Newman of the State board of health children between the ages of 5 and 13 were examined. While in some cases limited time prevented all dental work needed, cards are being sent out to parents of children needing other work, asking them to take their children to their regular dentist immediately.

In commenting on the work, Dr. Branch said that the State was concentrating its attention on the sixth tooth in the child's mouth. This is a permanent tooth, but, unfortunately, the majority of mothers know it is only one of the baby teeth and neglect to give it the proper care when it is found to be decayed. This in a large number of cases results in the loss of one of the most valuable teeth. Of course, the dentists are trying to care for all teeth in our effort to promote the public health through lectures and clinics, but we feel, on account of its importance, that if we can only let the mothers realize the importance of this tooth that we have made a great step forward.

Miss Liza Tannahill Dies At Polk Home Here Monday Night

Miss Liza Tannahill died at the home of her niece, Mrs. Tasker Polk, on Monday night. She lacked one month of being 92 years of age. Old age was the cause of death.

Funeral services were held at the Polk home on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock by the Rev. J. R. Phipps, Presbyterian minister of Littleton. The body was taken to Petersburg where interment was made in the old Blanford cemetery. Mrs. Tasker Polk and Miss Tannahill's nurse, Messrs. James Polk and Henry Falkner were present at Petersburg, as was also Violet, a faithful servant of the Polks, who had endeavored to love "Miss Liza" through years of contact, and asked to join her white folks in paying the last tribute of respect.

Miss Liza is survived by several nieces and nephews, great-nieces and great-nephews and by Lucy Fairfax Mitchell, a great-great-niece.

Kinston Furnishes Another Fish Yarn

KINSTON, March 20.—Arthur Ramsey hooked a one-pound "jack" in Trent River Monday. He was using artificial bait with three hooks. The fish fought valiantly and managed to break the hook. Ramsey played the jack a minute or two and then drew it in. After he had landed it he discovered he had had such luck as a fisherman would have only once in a lifetime.

In a effort to escape the fish had twisted the line into a perfect slipknot. This was tight about the neck back of the gills. The harder the fish tried to escape, the tauter the noose became. Veteran anglers who saw the capture said they had never heard anything of the sort.

W. E. Davis To Give Plants To Those Who Are Flower Lovers

A lover of flowers and proud of his plants, W. E. Davis, prominent farmer of Creek, this week writes The Warren Record that he has about 100 Hardy Hibiscus plants that he wants to give to its readers.

Mr. Davis said that he is not offering any of the plants for sale but wants to give them to those who will appreciate these flowers. They are fine for the garden or lawn, he says, grow from five to eight feet high and bloom profusely in June, July and August. They have great big crimson blooms which open as big as a plate. It is a hardy perennial and lives for years and blooms each year regardless of the weather.

"I also have a lot of Mallow Marvel plants to give away," Mr. Davis writes. "They are white, pink and red with red the predominating color. I have plants that bore more than 200 blooms last year. These are often called Hibiscus. H. G. Hastings says of them, 'These glowing marshmallows, with huge flowers over six inches across, are really gorgeous, perfectly hardy, tall, free-flowering and splendid for tall borders, showy clumps or specimen plants, blooming June to September, height four to eight feet, easily grown.'"

"Seedmen sell the plants for 35 cents; I have none to sell, but will enjoy giving them away, and when I see them blooming on your lawn or garden and see that you enjoy having them, then I will feel repaid for my trouble.

"Those wanting these plants can get them at my home, or if they will drop me a postal I will leave them at the Record office for them."

Officer Fires At Thief Who Entered Burroughs' Store

A shot from the revolver of Officer Lovell was responsible for added speed on the part of an unknown robber early yesterday morning and for the recovery of part of the loot lifted from the shelves of Burroughs Grocery Co. a few minutes previously.

Making his rounds the night officer noticed at 3 o'clock that a glass had been broken from the door of the grocery store and that the door was ajar. He entered and after a look around made a futile effort to arouse central in an effort to telephone the Burroughs.

Leaving the store, he saw a form darting across a back street. He fired. Three hams were dropped by the robber.

The officer then succeeded in telephoning Captain S. E. Burroughs. Mr. Burroughs found that in addition to the hams, the thief or thieves had made way with a small amount of cash left in the cash draw, cigarettes and cigars.

Woman's Club Asks That Trash Be Put On The Town Dump

Clean-up. The word is passed to every home owner of the community by the Woman's club which will inaugurate town clean-up week here next Monday morning. The town of Warrenton is to co-operate.

Merchants and others are asked to see that any trash hauled from their places of business or premises is carried to the present town dump on the Old Turnpike road. "We certainly do not want any trash dumped in sight of any other road leading into Warrenton. It is bad enough there, but we can't seem to get it placed out of sight of the road and if it must be dumped near any road we rather have it at the present place," a member of the club commented yesterday.

Both white and negro families are asked to co-operate for a real drive toward community cleanliness during all of the week.

Limer Says Readers Will Like New Book

By J. WILLIAM LIMER

One of the new books in the Memorial Library should have many readers, telling as it does, the life history of the Stuart Prince "Bonnie Prince Charlie, one of the most attractive characters that we know anything of, spoken of by his enemies as "The Young Pretender", but looked on by friends and adherents, who could be counted by thousands, as the lawful heir, through his father, to the throne of a kingdom. Those who read it will learn how the kilted clansmen, led by their chieftains, left the mountains and glens of the Scottish Highlands, putting in peril their families, possessions, life itself, to follow a gay and gallant adventurer, and will read how they swept down through the lowlands crossed the Border, and marched toward London, after fighting a pitched battle with disciplined troops, setting the whole country aflame.

Some time ago a friend asked me to tell him something of Flora Macdonald, as he had often thought he would like to know more of her history, and the part she played in saving one of the Stuart princes from being captured, and I wonder if there are not some of our readers who feel the same way. If they will read the book they will find the whole story remarkably well told, and will find our own state brought into it, and incidentally will learn why Scotland cherishes the name and memory of Flora Macdonald as that of one of her greatest heroines, equally with that one who in order to delay for a few moments those who sought her king's life, closed a door, and, finding that the bar had been made away with, thrust her arm into the bar socket, thus holding the door and gaining a little time for the fleeing monarch.

After reading the life of the "Bonnie Prince" if you would like to read more of the times in which he played a part, ask the Librarian for Sir Walter Scott's "Waverley". Romance certainly! but such romance, telling of an adventurer who played for a kingdom and a crown, his life and the lives of those who took part with him being the forfeit.

Many a good thing has been pulled off on Friday, the 13th—by fellows who forgot the date.

CLINICS TO BEGIN COUNTY SCHOOLS

County Nurse Asks That All Pre-School Children Be Given Examination

PHYSICIANS WILL HELP

Pre-school clinics will begin in Warren next week, Mrs. Joe Jones, county nurse announced yesterday. The first of the county clinics will be held at the Macon school on Monday, March 25.

Other dates and places are Littleton school, March 26; Norlina, March 27; Wise, March 28; Warrenton, March 29; Drewry, April 1; Vaughan, April 2; Afton, April 3.

The object of these clinics, Mrs. Jones pointed out, is to examine all children who will enter school next Fall. In this way any physical defect found can be remedied during the Summer.

"Many children," the nurse continued, "enter school with defects of tonsils, teeth etc, and therefore are not capable of doing the work that other children do, and as a result must spend another year in that grade.

"We are asking the co-operation of all the parents of the county in bringing the children to the consolidated school in their district on the days listed. While we have sent letters to some of the parents notifying them of the clinics, others have not been notified due to inability to obtain their names and correct addresses."

Mrs. Jones will be assisted in the work connected with the clinics by several of the county physicians.
