That Justice May Ever Have A Champion; That Evil Shall Not Flourish Unchallenged.

Entered at the post office at Warrenton, North Carolina, under Act of Congress of 1879.

The earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea.—Habakkuk 2:14.

I do not wish to expiate but to live. My life is not an apology, but a life. It is for itself and not for a spectacle. I much prefer that it should be a lower strain, so it be genuine and equal, than that it should be glittering and unsteady. I wish it to be sound and sweet, and not to need diet and bleeding.—Emerson.

FROM THE DAILY PRESS

One unpleasant consequence of the swelled head is the cold shoulder.—Boston Herald.

England has abolished the tax on tea, but it's too late now. Boston is set in her ways.—Los Angeles Still, maybe your wife would be as wonderful as that one in the movie if she had a husband as wonderful as that one in the movie.

FORMS OF PERSECUTION

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for June 2.
 Forms of Modern Persecution. Jer. 38:4-13.

IN these lessons, drawn from the Prophecy of Jeremiah, we have already pointed out that the prophet who sincerely and faithfully rebukes the wrongs of his age, even if he does so with a reluctance that only a sense of godly duty can conquer, and even if he upholds at the same time the way of right and truth, inevitably becomes denounced as a pessimist.

He is fortunate in his earnestness he does not provoke great hostility against himself.

It was not long, as we have seen, until the very people, his own people, whom Jeremiah was seeking to help cried out for his death; and it is interesting, also, to note that it was those who claimed to be in positions of authority and influence, politically and religiously, who were foremost in calling for the death of this man of real religion and of true patriotism.

Here in our lesson the princes of the country are crying out to the king for the death of the prophet. How very modern and related to our own day is the very thing for which these princes demand Jeremiah's death! They claimed that Jeremiah was weakening the hands of the men of war, and that he was endangering the safety of the nation.

It would be unwise and inappropriate to bring into this column discussion of the ultimate and very difficult questions that relate to national defense and to the problems of world peace.
 Above all, it would be out of place to come into the area of controversy between the apostles of military "preparedness" and those who go to the opposite extreme of an uncompromising ideal of nonresistance.

But it ought to be manifest to any one who responds with the slightest sincerity to the teachings and ideals of Jesus, Prince of Peace, that the world is never going to see the end of war until we preach and practice peace, and that there are risks associated with that preaching and practice that must be as readily faced and accepted as any other of the risks which cannot be dissociated from life.

When they cry for the death of Jeremiah, all he can do is to remind them that he is king only in name, and that he cannot stand out against their wishes. Thus it was that Jeremiah was cast into a dungeon—a dungeon so deep that they let him down with cords, and so foul and muddy that he sank into the mire.

Fortunately, there was one man in the kingdom who had not lost all sense of decency or courage. Let us note that he was a servant and a black man. But this man, Ebed-melech, whose soul was clean and whose will was strong, spoke boldly to the king on behalf of Jeremiah and against the princes. The king who had yielded to the princes now yielded to his masterful servant, and the Ethiopian went with 30 men to take Jeremiah out of the dungeon.

Like most men in whom there is such a fine association of decency with strength and courage, there was in this man, Ebedmelech, a touch of gentleness and courtesy. Jeremiah had been let down with cords into the dungeon.

Probably these cords had cut painfully into his flesh, but now in pulling him out this thoughtful Ethiopian takes rags and cast-off garments, and has Jeremiah put these under his armholes so that they may protect him from the tightening and cutting of the cords. Surely there is in this something beautifully suggestive.
 It is fine to do great and courageous things, but there are those who go even beyond this in doing strong things and good things with the souls of poets and artists.

eradication of bovine tuberculosis.

Warren County can afford—A township system of road work which costs the taxpayers unnecessary money and does not give us good county roads.

Warren County can not afford—
 Or so its board of commissioners ruled last first Monday to continue the county nurse at a cost of $1,050, allowing the maximum proposed salary.

We trust that our board will reconsider this question Monday. The welfare of our people demand it. Let us catch a vision of tomorrow. If we pass bond issues to future generations then by all means let us be fair enough to guarantee insofar as possible a healthy citizenship to take the torch from falling hands.

ECONOMY—LIFE THE TOLL

"Nearly one third of all births are attended by midwives, the counties ranging from 4.4 per cent in Alabama to 73 per cent in Warren."

This quotation comes from an article in the News Letter of the University of North Carolina which is printed in full on page 6 of today's edition.

Now one of the principal duties of the county nurse has been, is and will remain the proper instruction of the large group of midwives.
 This instruction has reduced already the number of infant mortality deaths in this county.

Our board of commissioners, taking a broad view of their duties, should not consider the abolition of a nurse. Certainly when Warren is at the bottom of the counties of the great State of North Carolina, it is not the time to talk economy upon a matter of life and death.

ABOUT THE TIMES

Some folks say that times are tight. Well, what of it?
 They are not as tight as a new shoe though they pinch a little more.

They are not as tight as the gentleman who placed his money in the bank and listened every evening for its steady grunt as it fought to draw above six per cent.

They are not as tight as the grip of adversity where health or honor are lost.

the social pest who used to stick with one until past 11 o'clock and the stentorian call of the master of the hour, "Its bedtime, boys."

 some fellows we have seen on festive occasions.

In fact, they are not tight at all.

They never really will be to those who possess health, courage, honor and energy.
 Times are just not as easy, that's all.
