Officer Lovell Falls To Floor When Garment Gives Way In Scuffle

IS SOUGHT BY OFFICERS

James Jerman, burly negro of Warrenton who has been in the toils of law on several occasions, is a fugitive from justice now due to an escape made Saturday night when he broke away from Officers M. M. Drake and E. C. Lovell.

The break for freedom was made when the officers attempted to place him in the lock-up Saturday night. The titanic culprit had been escorted to the calaboose by the Warrenton police force and as Officer Lovell released him to open the door, the negro made a break, and after a scuffle, gained his freedom when his shirt to which Officer Lovell was swinging tore and the police fell to the floor.

The arrest was made Saturday night in connection with sentences given Jerman several months ago when he became drunk and disorderly on the streets of Warrenton and fled to the home of W. H. Dameron where he closeted himself from officers who were pursuing him. He was found guilty at that time in Mayor's court and in Recorder's court on charges and had served the time given him by Recorder Taylor and recently been released from the roads. He was wanted in connection with the Mayor's sentence when he was plucked from the streets Saturday night.

Jerman has succeeded in eluding the officers since Saturday night and it is thought that he has left
