

THE TORCH

A department conducted for
The Warren County
Memorial Library
By MABEL DAVIS
The Librarian

We are sorry to have denied you the pleasure of reading "The Torch" last week. But we had to lift Miss Mabel's enjoyable column in order to make room for an advertisement.—Editor.

New Books
Recent purchases included "Old Wine and New," Warwick Deering; "Return I Dare Not," Margaret Kennedy; "The Challengers," Grace Livingston Hill; "Mulberry Square" by Lida Larrimore came to the library through the courtesy of Miss Melissa Coleman. That, also, is a new book by a popular author.

There is no book fund at present other than that derived from fines. From that source, which is never large, must also come the supplies necessary to put books in readiness for circulation and material used in repair work. These are not small items and borrowers are usually careful to return books on time.

Fifty-Fifty Club
A book fund amounting to twenty-five dollars a month could be created to supply new books from May to October—the five months intervening before funds from other sources should become available for that purpose, if fifty persons interested in the library will volunteer to give fifty cents a month to that end. That plan was discussed in the library one afternoon and the half dozen persons present each gave it approval and volunteered to join the club. I can think of no larger returns for so small an investment, only $2.50 in all—the price of one new novel. In return one has the privilege of reading many of the season's best books. If you feel inclined to lend a hand and become a member of the Fifty-Fifty Club you may do so, becoming a charter member on payment of fifty cents.

Hats Off to the Agricultural Class
The librarian is indebted to Mr. Bright and the Agricultural Class of the John Graham High School for the addition of two new book cases, thus relieving the congestion at the library. Their kindness and skill have been complimented by all who have observed their work.

Class of '32
The graduating class of the John Graham High School—in appreciation of the fine books supplied them by this library—they said, called in a body to present a beautiful copy of "Everybody's Washington," a new biography by A. A. Knappe. The library is indebted to the senior history class and their teacher, Miss Katherine Taylor, for this timely addition.

Other Appreciated Gifts
A neighbor noting an empty coal bin just before the weather became pleasant enough to discard fires, sent home for coal enough to carry the library through the long season in May and as much more cold weather as we are likely to have. Another returned a dollar bill with his books, "for repairs," he said. The library is also indebted to Miss Edna Allen for a check for $5.00.

Books for the International Mind
New additions to the Mind Alcove are Alice Curtis Desmond's "Far Horizons" (Africa, Europe, The Orient and South America), and Paul Cohen-Portheim's "England, the Unknown Isle." The latter is one of the most interesting books I have read about that interesting country. The author, a Hungarian, was studying in England when hostilities began in 1914. Though he became to some degree a prisoner of war he was in no way embittered by his enforced sojourn. His evaluation of the Britisher, his manners, customs etc., is regarded by the English themselves as a true one. You will find it entertaining and worth while.

Children's Books
There were six books for children with the Alcove books. Young readers may get very clear ideas of child life in Arabia, France, Germany, Italy, and Sweden, from the books listed: "Avisha's Carpet," Martin; "Jean and Fanchon," Olcott; "Milly and her Village," Lehman; "Nicolina," Brann; "Building a House in Sweden," Cautley; "The World on a Farm," Warner, is more general. The scenes of the stories in that book are located some in Africa, others in China, India and Syria.

der his arm, "Showers of Blessings," and his comment if it were him he would have "Taint Going To Rain No More"; his embarrassment at Rocky Mount when they took him literally and placed a bath tub on the stage.

Marmaduke Items

We had a very severe hail storm for a few moments last Sunday night, although it didn't do much damage if any.

Several from this section attended the commencement at Warrenton Monday night, the building was packed to over flowing.

There were so many visitors in the home of Mr. H. C. Davis Sunday afternoon that we will try to tell you who they were. They were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Short and children, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Short all of Severn, N. Y., Mrs. Muriel Highsmith of Washington, D. C., Mr. and Mrs. J. Alton Davis and two children, Mrs. George Tucker and three children, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Ellington, Miss Clara and Dick Dickerson, Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Finch and baby, Mr. Hugh Finch, Mr. Sam Jones, Miss Elizabeth Jones all of Henderson, Miss Dan Moore of Greenville, N. C., Mr. and Mrs. Leon Dillard, Misses Gladys and Ruby Benson, Messrs. Elton Dillard and James Clark of Inez, Mr. Vernon Bragg of Franklinton, Mr. Eugene Alston of Hollister and last but not least, Mr. John Felts of Afton-Elberon, it seems like when it rains it pours. There were thirty-eight in all.

Miss Sadie Mae Alston of Hollister is spending a few days with Miss Bessie Powell.
Mr. S. K. Clark and son, Herbert, were callers in Hollister Sunday.
Mrs. Lola Bennett of Durham is visiting her sister, Mrs. C. A. Haith-cock.

Offers Savings To Aid Government
WASHINGTON, April 27.—A man who lost his only son in the war and saved $2,000 from war risk insurance payments today offered to turn this and his $57.50 monthly check over to the government as a loan to help meet expenses.

In a letter to Secretary Ogden L. Mills the man, Charles F. Thompson, of Philadelphia, said he would send the money at once if the government would accept it. He added he had given every "dollar I had" to aid the United States during the World War and wishes to do his share to help his government now.
Mr. Mills told Mr. Thompson there was no law under which the government could borrow the funds.
"I find difficulty in expressing in adequate terms the government's deep appreciation of the splendid spirit of patriotism which has prompted your proposal," he said.

Object To 'Hayseed' Movie Appearance
CHICAGO, April 27.—When it comes to movie heroines, farmers favor those with corn-fed curves and they want big, husky he-men heroes. This has been determined by the photoplay staff of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

They also want their movie characters dressed as farmers actually do and not after the fashion of the traditional hayseed. Chin whiskers on a cinema farmer will get the boo anywhere and a colored tablecloth in a farmhouse kitchen will bring in a mail sack of kicks from farmers' wives everywhere.

Auto Pusher Admits He's Unable to Drive

MILWAUKEE, April 26.—Patrolman Tewes saw John Roback pushing an automobile down the street. An explanation seemed in order. "I'm in no shape to drive this thing," he quoted John as saying. "I thought it would be safer for traffic if I'd push it."
John was without shoes and he had an explanation for that, too. "I took off my shoes," he said, "to keep my footsteps from bothering people."

John was help on a charge of being intoxicated, but he escaped the more serious allegation that he drove an auto while drunk.

Weekly Bible Lesson

By DR. J. T. GIBBS

(Due to the crowded condition of our paper last week we postponed Dr. Gibbs' sermon until this week. Sometimes the spiritual has to be sacrificed for the materialistic, but we trust that the teachings of the beloved Warrenton minister will come to you without interruption in the future.—Ed.)

And the God that answereth by fire, let him be God.—I Kings 18:24.

Ahab was king of Israel and a good church member so far as formally goes; but he could not see why religion should be allowed to interfere with business. So, as a ruler, he did what big business wanted him to do. His kingdom was founded by Jeroboam who rebelled against Solomon's son on account of high taxes and persuaded ten of the twelve tribes of Israel to make him their king on a platform of reform and economy. He listened to a few that were immensely rich and made two golden calves, and said: "Behold thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt." So his political religion for awhile sustained his throne.

But the time came when that policy was no longer successful. The people were still disobedient. Ahab's foreign alliances had made him stronger than ever. Then came the word of prophesy. Elijah stood before the king and said, "As the Lord liveth before whom I stand, there shall not be dew, nor rain these years, but according to my word." Clear as a bell, as definite as a black sheep on a field of snow, the challenge rang out in the ears of the startled king. You have sought prosperity; you have dedicated your life to big business, but you have forgotten the most important factor of your calculations. There may be trade for awhile, but there won't be any crops. Ahab found that the God of his fathers was not to be trifled with.

When the land had become desolate and Elijah came back the king was personally searching the whole country for a little grass to feed his horses that pulled his chariots. This time the prophet sent for the king, and Ahab obeyed the summons. Elijah ordered the king to send up to meet him on Mt. Carmel the 450 prophets of Baal and the 400 other heathern priests. When they met Elijah announced to the multitude of people who had come, that he alone remained a prophet of Jehovah, and that he had met the crowd of heathern priests to prove the true God in whom alone can be found present and eternal satisfaction. Two altars were built and two offerings provided. The test was fire in answer to prayer to consume the sacrifice. Only Elijah's prayer was answered and the people fell on their faces and said, "The Lord, He is God; the Lord, He is God."

Even the headstrong blindness of mankind could resist no longer. They confessed the truth, but the nation soon slid again into idolatry. It is hard for men to give up the vain struggle for wealth and power. Christ or Caesar is the issue today. Japan backs the prophets of Baal. Gandhi teaches that spiritual things are more lasting than the things of the body. At Geneva, the disarmament conference meets but not in the spirit of Christ's gospel of overcoming evil with good.

In our own land and time elections are bought and the honor of the nation besmirched. Persons are abducted and held for ransom. There is an underworld of criminals without wholesome fear of the law. There are gunmen who live by killing and robbing with no fear of God before their eyes.

The styles have changed. In idol worship. The golden calf has given way to the dollar mark. Baal has discarded his wooden image and taken a mansion on Fifth Avenue. Cacchus does business with bootleggers and is worshipped in the rich man's collar. But under whatever guise, the old idols of the human heart still holds sway. Multitudes still bow down and worship them.

The God that answers by fire must be our God, or the present depression will become desolation and ruin. To think differently is to disregard scripture and the history of the past.
