Pump Breakdown Causes Bad Water

The unpleasant condition of Warrenton water supply the last few days of the past week was caused by a breakdown at the northend pump, necessitating the use of the southend well forcing unfiltered water into the mains, Harold R. Skillman, superintendent of the Water Company, remarked this week.

Mr. Skillman said that it took about two days to get a new piece for the pump, but that the northend plant was put back in operation on Saturday afternoon and mains flushed to clear the unfiltered water from the lines.

> Judge Small was an hour late in arriving here due to automobile trouble near Weldon, so he did not charge the grand jury in lengthy oration, but briefly instructed the body in the performance of its duties.

The court room has been packed throughout the week but the greatest crowd that has assembled in the hall of justice came for the trial of the defendants charged with the service station robbery. Mr. Ellington is suing the Weldon Coca Cola Bottling Co. for $5,000 damages. It is alleged that a coca cola sold to him contained a hairpin.

The Byron Brown Will case first came into court at the May term one year ago. The jury deliberated for 24 hours in trying to reach a verdict but the members were unable to agree and a mistrial was ordered. At each succeeding term of court the case has been docketed for trial but at the request of attorneys it has been postponed until this term. Court officials are fairly certain that it will be tried this time, and many seem to think that it will be commenced on Monday, according to schedule, on account of the fact that there are a great number of witnesses who have been notified to be here on that day.

Byron Brown, wealthiest negro of Warren county, died on January 1, 1930, leaving a will in which the bulk of his estate was left to his son, Grover C. Brown. Claiming that their father was not mentally capable of making a will at the time when he bequeathed his property, other members of the family are seeking to have the will broken.
