LOVE

young love is sweet like the Springwhen the bird songs fill the air. When the flowers and leaves are

And the earth seems fresh and fair. budding. It is ike a sparkling brooklet,

That goes rippling full of glee, Dancing along in the sunshine, In its journey to the sea.

But love grows stronger and braver. As two journey side by side. As two journey sand blessings, Together what e'er betide.

The brooklet grows to a river, Still flowing on without rest. To lives that are linked together, True love is a constant guest.

But sweeter by far than young love, Or love of maturer day, Is the love that has been faithful, And true all along life's way.

To two who have trod life's pathway Comes a time of peace and calm; They sit and wait in the twilight, Which falls on their hearts like balm.

So all along on the journey, Love lightens the load we bear, Makes brighter the gleams of sun-

Brings joy to a life of care. Tho sweet is the love like Spring-

Yet the sweeter love is old. It has grown thro many sorrows, Pure, like the furnace tried gold. -HANNAH M. DAVIS, Warrenton, N. C.
