THE WOMAN SPEAKS

"There was a dancing flame once, before Death had outblown it; a grief I overcame once, and thought I had outgrown it.

"But it woke me from my sleeping with a hard and bitter cry; O child of tenderest keeping, you had come back to die!

"The ancient sorrow disappears, as leaves beneath the rain, but from the sodden drift of years some wind blows back the pain.

"If the old griefs could only lie safe in a churchyard bed; if those who love could only die one time," the woman said.

A Daytime Frock

Pattern 8203: For general all-around usefulness, choose the becoming and slenderizing design pictured here. The rippling jabot collar adds to the appearance of length as do also the side panels of the skirt and the flaring sleeves and underuffs.

A printed dark blue voile is suggested for this frock, combined with a white chiffon collar and vestee. Or a printed silk, either in black and white or with light background and colored design combined with white for contrasting would make up attractively. It could also be made of dark triple sheer with only a white vestee.

For PATTERN, send 15 cents in coin (for each pattern desired) your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE to Patricia Dow, Warren Record Pattern Dept., 115 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Raleigh, June 21.—The wedding of Miss Lucy Marshall Johnson of Raleigh and Augustus Washington Knox Jr. of New York City, formerly of Raleigh, was solemnized at 6 o'clock last evening in the Church of the Good Shepherd. The wedding took place on the wedding anniversary of the bride's mother.

Candlelight from burning cathedral candles illuminated the setting for the wedding, the altar being decorated with graceful arrangements of Easter lilies. Tall palms formed a background of green.

Prior to the wedding, a half-hour program of violin numbers was played by Mrs. George Gardiner Fry of New York City, the former Miss Emilie Rose Knox of Raleigh, a sister of the bridegroom. She was accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Frederick W. Staudt and the program was composed of "Meditation" from "Thais" by Massenet; "Old Refrain," Kreisler; "Kathleen Mavourneen"; Schubert's "Ave Maria"; "Estrellita," and "Moonlight and Roses." The wedding march from "Tanhauser" by Wagner was played as the processional for the wedding party and Mendelssohn's wedding march was used as the recessional. As the vows were spoken, "O Perfect Love" was played.

Ushers for the wedding were William H. Hughes, James Kilgore and Dr. R. Y. Winters of Raleigh, and Robert Gray of Fayetteville.

Little Miss Eliza Knox Chipley of Raleigh and little Miss Katherine Smedes Nicholson of Port Washington, Long Island, nieces of the bridegroom, were the dainty little flower girls. They wore quaint frocks of white lace and insertion, fashioned Empire style. Little Miss Chipley's frock was worn over pink and her sash was of pink ribbon. Little Miss Nicholson's frock was worn over blue and she wore a sash of blue ribbon. They carried miniature nosegays of mixed flowers in pastel shades.

The maids of honor were sisters of the bride.

frock of blue tucked chiffon. The dresses were tight fitting to the knees then flaring and extending into slight trains in the back. The necklines were high in front and low in the back and the sleeves were short and slightly flared, rippling gracefully. The maids of honor wore small turbans of meline to match their frocks. Each hat was edged with a band of plaited meline and an upturned flare in the back gave a flattering touch. Miss Elizabeth Johnson carried a bouquet of briarcliff roses tied with blue silk net and her sister's bouquet was of briarcliff roses tied with pink. Their slippers matched their frocks and they wore long white kid gloves.

The bride entered with her cousin, Norman H. Johnson of Richmond, Va., by whom she was given in marriage. Her wedding gown of white lace was fashioned along severely simple lines, the skirt flaring slightly and the neckline being V-shaped in front and very low in the back. Over the gown was worn a coat of the same material, with long tight-fitting sleeves, finishing to a point over the hand. In front, the jacket
