

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dunn

Ahijah and the Divided Kingdom. Lesson for July 1st. 1 Kings 11:29-39.

Golden Text: Proverbs 16:18.

In the Third Quarter we plunge into the Old Testament, and acquaint ourselves with troublous episodes in the checkered career of God's people. We find the kingdom of David and Solomon rent in twain, with good and bad kings alternating in both the north and the south. There is plenty of idolatry, oppression and war. Against these we witness the protest of Elijah, and the flaming eighth century prophets of whom Isaiah was the greatest. At the close of the Quarter we study the mysterious and appalling judgement that befell the Assyrians at the time of their siege of Jerusalem.

Our first lesson introduces us to the disastrous civil war that rent asunder the strongly established monarchy of Solomon. Successful in consolidating the twelve tribes, in completing the overthrow of the Canaanites, and in the promotion of foreign alliances, Solomon enjoyed a reign of peace marred by few mishaps. But the unity and goodwill of his long reign of forty years were soon disrupted after his death. Rehoboam, his son, was indiscreet and arrogant in his answer to the chiefs who demanded that he should lighten the yoke of forced labour pressed so heavily upon their shoulders by Solomon. In consequence of his insulting reply, ten of the tribes staged a successful revolt, making Jeroboam, a warlike prince of Ephraim, their king.

The lesson text narrates the story of the interview between Jeroboam and the prophet Ahijah who belonged to the sacred sanctuary at Shiloh where the youth of Samuel was spent. It is Ahijah who informs Jeroboam that he is to be promoted into the leadership of the ten stalwart tribes of the north. Best of all, continues the prophet, he is to reign as king. Jeroboam had been hoping for this very consummation, and now it was to be realized. If only he had been faithful to the trust reposed in him!

"I quit because the job was bigger than it ever was and the salary has been cut $25," Chief E. L. Green said when interviewed in regard to his resignation which he tendered the board of town commissioners last Saturday morning.

FARM BRIEFS

In many counties rains have stimulated the growth of crab grass until it is about to get ahead of the farmers, farm agents report.

Rowan county farmers report that the wheat is coming out good in spite of the hard winter and that fairly good yields are expected.

Wilkes county has completed the organization of its corn-hog association and is in good shape to conduct an effective reduction program, according to county agent C. B. Baird.

The unusual interest of young people from 18 to 25 years of age in the farm meetings of the Derby community in Richmond county is worthy of attention, says Farm Agent A. D. Robertson.

Davidson county growers are showing more interest in obtaining what seed known to be of good origin in order to maintain a high quality of grain. Fulcaster wheat and Lee oats do well in that vicinity.

Will Store Spuds For Late Market

The possibility of increased demand for small potatoes later in the year has brought out a need for proper storage facilities.

Due to current low prices, growers in the eastern part of the State have agreed not to market before July 4 any potato smaller than one and seven-eighths inch in diameter.

The drought condition in the middle west may reduce the crop enough to create a considerable demand for North Carolina potatoes later in the year, including the smaller spuds, said M. E. Gardner, professor of horticulture at State College.

Cold storage, of course, would be the best way of preserving the potatoes, he said, since humidity and temperature could be regulated as desired. However, most growers will have to use other facilities.

To get the best results, he suggested the following:

Store only in cool, dry places. Do not store potatoes which have been cut or bruised while digging. Protect them from strong light and the direct rays of the sun—this is important, he said, since potatoes exposed to light become green and unfit for food.

Store the potatoes in barrels or baskets and in such a manner that the air may circulate freely among them at all times. Protected sheds, barns, sweet potato storage houses, tobacco barns, or similar buildings not being used for other purposes will make suitable storage places for the spuds.

To achieve that delicious white-and-gold appearance of fried eggs, fry them in a piping hot skillet with a tight cover over it.

When you are making gelatin, use a pitcher to mix the powder and water; then when the ingredients are ready to put into the mold you will find it simpler to pour.

She also told of the Jell contest the National Auxiliary is sponsoring, trying to reach the total of 1,000,000 glasses of jell. This jell is to be distributed to those in less fortunate circumstances. The Auxiliary voted that each member of the local unit give 2 glasses of jell.
