*That Justice May Ever Have A

Entered at the Postoffice at Warrenton, North Carolina, under Act of Congress of 1879.

Heaviness in the heart of man maketh it stoop; but a good word maketh it glad.—Proverbs 12:25.

THANKS ARE DUE HOTEL COMMITTEE

A report of work done at Hotel Warren since its purchase by the town at public auction several months ago was on Monday night made to the town commissioners by James B. Boyce, chairman of the Hotel committee.

Commissioner Boyce and the other members of the Hotel Committee, Herman Rodwell and Clifton Bobbitt, have performed a commendable service for the benefit of the citizens of this town, at a sacrifice of time which might have been devoted to their own affairs. We feel that, now the hardest part of their work is over, they have the satisfaction of knowing that they have performed a worthwhile job in a creditable manner. In addition, on behalf of our citizens generally, we offer them the thanks of the town of Warrenton.

Indications now are that the town purchased Hotel Warren at the psychological moment when, perhaps, the greatest value could be obtained for its money. Since that time business affairs have shown substantial improvement and even the pessimists grudgingly admit times are on the upgrade. By the judicious spending of a few extra thousand dollars the value of the town's investment has been greatly enhanced. With further business improvement bringing increased traveling, the value of the Hotel should continue to rise.

Two measures may be taken to further increase the value of Hotel Warren. One of these is the building of the road to Louisburg and its adoption as part of Highway No. 1, sending much traffic by the door of the Hotel. We feel that this is eventually going to be done. The other measure is the development of a consciousness of the fact that the Hotel is now owned by the citizens of the town, that it is their property, that its development will be reflected in their own pocketbooks through lower taxes, and that Warrenton should contain over a thousand stockholders, working, pulling and boosting its growth.

TWO DRINKING FOUNTAINS

Not so much to the well-to-do with friends in town and money to purchase cool drinks at public soda fountains, but to the thousands of less fortunate citizens of the county, particularly those of the colored race, comes as good tidings the news that two public drinking fountains are to be established on the court square. These fountains are to be installed and operated through cooperation of the town and county. We feel that the commissioners of town and county rendered a worthwhile service in ordering their installation.

MOSTLY PERSONAL
By BIGNALL JONES

"If any one should have walked into this office last Thursday night about 10:30 o'clock he would have no doubt been inclined to believe that this place had been turned into an institution for the feeble-minded and the Jones boys were the inmates.

"There was Duke up on top of the press swinging a broom with as much vehemence as he used to display when trying to contact one of the speedy balls that used to somehow get by him when he was out on the ball diamond facing Buck Loyd or Spain from over in the Palmer Springs section; P. D. was running up and down the floor with a stick, ducking the brooms as they swung over his head and swinging his club with about as much success as he has when trying to hit the same place twice when chopping wood with an axe; Bignall had some kind of club and was swinging in a manner that I have seen him display in trying to hit a hard tennis ball; and there I was with a broom up on a table—but never mind about describing the contortions that I was going through."

The above quoted paragraphs were pounded out by Howard, who, before the weather grew so hot, imagined that he was going to write his column, "Interlude," this week. The rising thermometer and press of other duties having discouraged a laudable ambition, and in view of my own threat at 9 o'clock last night to give our readers a vacation from my own column, he turned that part of his article over to me. He had not yet reached the point where he was to mention that a bat was the cause of the excitement.

In the interest of strict veracity that was very fortunate. A bat did enter the press room of the Warren Record on Thursday night of last week and a spectator might have imagined that he was in an institution for the feeble-minded, but such spectator, I am quite sure, has never tried to operate a machine with a bat flipping by his head. Had he, he would not believed we were so batty after all. That is beside the point. My quarrel is with the truthfulness of Howard's description of my action in trying to bat down the bat.

Duke was on top of the press swinging a broom with the vehemence displayed in days of yore in fanning at Buck Loyd's curves. P. D. was chasing up and down the floor with a stick in a manner that dampened the pride that I usually have in our relationship. Howard was on top of a table swinging a broom with the grace of the captain of the bloomer girls, reminiscent of nothing so much as the motions of a fat washerwoman. He would swing at the bat, nearly lose his balance, catching himself just in time after each swing to take another poke on the return trip.

As for me, true I had a stick and was striking at the bat. That much was perfectly true. But, in striking contrast to the antics of the other boys, my swing was one of perfect rhythm, with the grace and poetry of motion to be found in the swoop of an eagle from some lofty mountain peak, or the ripple of a bass as its parts the water of some shady nook.
