That Justice May Ever Have A Champion; That Evil Shall Not Flourish Unchallenged.

Entered at the Postoffice at Warrenton, North Carolina, under Act of Congress of 1879.

I have preached righteousness in the great congregation; lo, I have not refrained my lips, O Lord, Thou knowest.—Psalm 40:9.

A man should never be ashamed to own he has been in the wrong, which is but saying that he is wiser today than he was yesterday.—Swift.

ROAD NEWS GOOD NEWS

It will come as good news to people of Warren county and to citizens at Warrenton in particular that the State Highway Commission has promised the extension of Route 43 from Liberia to Essex and that work on the Warrenton-Louisburg road will be pushed forward to completion at an early date as is possible.

The surfacing of Route 43 will give citizens of eastern Warren county and western Halifax a good route to the county seat of Warren. The Warrenton-Louisburg road will not only give persons in the southwestern part of the county a better road for their business and pleasure trips to Warrenton, but is also important as a tourist road, materially shortening the distance from points east to Raleigh as well as lightening the present traffic on Federal Highway 1. Both roads have additional value as school truck and mail routes.

MOSTLY PERSONAL

By BIGNALL JONES

A long string of cars was traveling around 50 miles an hour on the Emporia-Norfolk highway on Saturday afternoon. Suddenly a car two cars ahead of the one in which we were riding swerved directly across the highway. Howard swung our machine around to the right on the wide shoulder of the road and we missed a crash. I looked back. The car that had been traveling east was still on the concrete but it was headed west.

An easy chance for a wreck in which half a dozen cars might have been piled together, avoided just because at that point the shoulders of the road happened to be wide.

The trouble about trying to crowd a week's vacation in a week end at the beach is that the recovery process is too slow. But Howard and I only had a week end to spare, so we took that. I think we crowded just about as much action into a short space as was humanly possible. A ride to Virginia Beach, a swim, supper, another dip into the ocean, a dance, five or six hours of sleep on Saturday night, more swimming on Sunday, an all-night ride on Sunday night by way of Edenton and Greenville, arriving here at daybreak on Monday morning.

Young Enoch Sawyer and I have one thing in common, I discovered as he watched me operating a linotype one afternoon this week. I asked him if there was anything I could do for him. He replied, no; that he liked to watch people work. And so do I. I also find that the hotter the weather the more pleasure I derive out of the occupation. Nothing unusual about that, however, as I have seen at least two dozen of our citizens standing around during the hot spell watching a man digging a hole in the street.

HOME HINTS

By NANCY HART

Heavy aluminum frying pans or griddles will clean up most easily by placing them over a hot flame. Grease or burns and the worst stains will come off and the pans will clean up brightly.

Keep bamboo furniture in good condition by going over it occasionally with equal parts of linseed oil and turpentine.

An easy way to polish windows is to rub them with a chamois dipped in a full strength or strong solution of rubbing alcohol.

If you like your bronze ornaments clean and polished, rub them with a little furniture polish and wipe them clean with a dry cloth.

Save time and trouble in washing a stack of dishes by passing each dish under the hot water faucet before regular washing. The worst of the grease goes down the drain and the washing is much easier, requiring fewer changes of water.

A decidedly attractive way of preparing baked potatoes is to remove them from the shell after cooking, mash them with butter, salt and pepper and a well-beaten yolk of egg. Then replace them in the half-shells and brown them in the oven. They taste better and they're much more easily handled at the table.

Even the most delicate fabric may be cleaned of ink-stains with a teaspoonful of lemon salts diluted in a saucer of hot water. Soak the fabric a short while, paint over it with a brush dipped in a solution of glycerine and water and follow that with a few drops of ammonia solution.

When roasting lamb or beef, shake a pinch of cinnamon on the bottom of the oven before putting the meat in, and allow it to remain while the meat is cooking. You avoid the heavy odor of the oven usually associated with cooking either of these two meats.

THIS WEEK
In Washington

Washington, July 19.—When the Secretary of the Interior, Harold Ickes, called his staff of 4,000 employees together the other day and warned them against "soldiering" on the job, it sent a cold chill down the backs of nearly half a million Federal job-holders, even though the thermometer in this hot and humid city stood at 100 degrees in the shade. The idea that the departmental staffs are expected to do any real work in the Summer is shocking, even to the seasoned civil servants. To the recent political appointees, who got on the Federal payrolls because they were efficient workers in the campaign of 1932, it is almost paralyzing. What sort of a reward is it, anyway, to have to do some work as well as drawing a salary?

The idea is gaining strength here that Mr. Ickes is about as efficient an administrator, within the sphere of his department's activities, as has been seen in Washington for some time. He intends to get things done if everybody in his department has to sweat to get 'em done. What started him off on his disciplinary program was an incident that occurred when he went into the office of a minor bureau assistant and saw the occupant of it with his feet on his desk, reading a newspaper and smoking a cigarette.

How Work Drive Started
The young man didn't know Mr. Ickes by sight, so when the Secretary of the Interior asked, mildly, "Is this the way you usually receive visitors?" the nonchalant reply was: "What's that to you?"

Then the Secretary identified himself, and one young man in the Federal Service has been shaking in his boots ever since.

That incident started Mr. Ickes on a quiet tour of inspection of the Interior Department. He found, as he told his assembled staff, many men and women in the cafeteria, after the time they were supposed to be at their desks, eating their breakfasts on Government time. He found many others spending more time in the rest-rooms than in their offices. Some of the feminine employees had got the feet-on-the-desk habit. Those things, he told them, must stop. The heads of departments and bureau chiefs are working overtime, days, night and Sundays, in all of the Federal offices, and he expected the subordinates to at least put in a full day's work. The hours are not onerous, seven hours a day for five days a week, and he didn't see any reason why they couldn't stand that amount of work.

Mr. Ickes, however, reckoned without the Washington climate.

Every new administrator who comes to Washington, especially from the North, always tries to speed up the Federal machinery. Hundreds of earnest men have tried it ever since the National capital was established in this swamp on the banks of the Potomac. All that any of them have ever succeeded in doing was to wear themselves out and finally succumb to the climate.

Air-Conditioning Essential
Some of the new Federal buildings are air-conditioned, equipped with modern mechanism to keep the temperature and humidity at a comfortable degree all the year around. But none of the old ones and not all of the new ones have yet set up this modern method of enabling people to work in comfort. Both houses of Congress have air-conditioning systems, and so has the President's private office. Mr. Hoover had that done when the structure was rebuilt, after the fire that destroyed it in 1930.

Now President Roosevelt is having his offices enlarged, and the whole wing of the White House will be air-conditioned. Some parts of the new Commerce building, the offices occupied by the Secretary and some of the higher officials, are also so equipped, but Congress has never been willing to appropriate money to extend the system to entire buildings.

Under the present Governmental system, whereby the President is handed a few billions to spend about as he pleases, it is expected that a fair slice of the Public Works Administration funds, which Secretary Ickes manages, will go toward removing the last excuse of Government clerks for loafing on the job. Not that it will put an end to loafing, but they will have to discover new excuses. No business institution in the world operated for profit could keep out of bankruptcy if its employees did not work two or three times as hard as most of the Federal civil servants ever work.

The City Beautiful
The completion of the new Post Office Department building adds another to the majestic group of structure which are making Washington what its planner dreamed, more than a hundred years ago, the most beautiful city in the world. A good many Republican leaders are getting pretty sore, however, over the claims being broadcast by Democratic partisans that the present Administration is responsible for all the new architecture. So far all that the Democrats have done is to continue to carry out plans which were completely formulated years ago, and to finish some of the buildings which had been begun under the previous Administration.

Some of them are not quite finished yet. The contract for window-shades for the new Post Office Department got tangled up in Government red tape somewhere, so Jim Farley and his aides keep the glaring sun out of their offices by the simple, if not decorative expedient of pasting sheets of typewriter paper on the window-glass!

In Memoriam

MISS KATE WILSON
Miss (Aunt) Kate Wilson departed this life on Tuesday at 4:45 o'clock p. m. June 26, 1934. She was born June 4, 1851, in Halifax county near Weaver's M. P. Church. Aunt Kate had been an invalid for life and confined to the house thirteen months and her bed 24 days. All that loving hands could possibly do was done, but God knew best and it was His will to take her away. Her chair by the window is vacant and her old and wrinkled face is seen no more, but we are planning to meet her in a better land some day soon.

Aunt Kate united with God in her early girlhood and attended services regularly as long as her health permitted. Thirty odd years she had been living with her brother, A. B. Wilson, when God called her home with Him.

She leaves to mourn for her one sister, Mrs. W. A. Whitley of Roanoke Rapids and two brothers, A. B. and J. J. Wilson, of Littleton. A number of nieces, nephews and friends also survive.

Funeral services were conducted at the Wilson family cemetery Wednesday by her pastor, R. L. Vickery, assisted by Rev. H. C. Hilliard, Christian preacher of Bethlehem Church.

The pallbearers were: Bud Stembridge, W. A. Moore, A. J. Stansberry, H. C. Jones, Henry Manning and R. T. Lynch. Flower girls were: Alma Lynch, Beulah Lynch, Mary Shearin and Lella Wilson.

Her Niece,
NANCY WILSON.

DETROIT-
the nation's motor capital
-goes FORD V-8 3 to 1!

DETROITERS help to build most of the cars made in this country. They know what goes into them... and what their owners can expect to get out of them.

That's why Detroit's 3 to 1 preference means something to car buyers in every city in America. It is powerful evidence of the value these wise buyers know is built into this car. The truth is, that the more high priced cars you look at, the more Ford V-8 features you'll see.

The only V-8 engine in a car under $2500...
...torque-tube drive... improved clear-vision ventilation... dual down-draft carburetion...
... safety glass, and steel welded bodies...

Put this new Ford V-8 to your own tests, under your own conditions. Then you'll know why the men who build motor cars choose it.
