THE NEW YEAR

Ring out, wild bells, to the wild sky. The flying cloud, the frosty light. The year is dying in the night; Ring out, wild bells, and let him die.

Ring out the old, ring in the new; Ring, happy bells, across the snow; The year is going, let him go; Ring out the false, ring in the true.

Ring out the grief, that saps the mind, For those that here we see no more; Ring out the feud of rich and poor; Ring in redress to all mankind.

Ring out a slowly dying cause And ancient forms of party strife; Ring in the nobler modes of life, With sweeter manners, purer laws.

Ring out the want, the care, the sin, The faithless coldness of the times; Ring out, ring out, my mournful rhymes, But ring the fuller minstrel in.

Ring out false pride in place of blood, The civic slander and the spite; Ring in the love of truth and right; Ring in the common love of good.

Ring out old shapes of foul disease; Ring out the narrowing lust of gold; Ring out the thousand wars of old, Ring in the thousand years of peace.

Ring in the valiant man and free, The larger heart, the kinder hand; Ring out the darkness of the land; Ring in the Christ that is to be. —Tennyson.

Cold Frame Advised For Early Vegetables

The construction of a cold frame in January will be a big help in the growing of early vegetables, says E. B. Morrow, extension horticulturist at State College.

At small expense, he says, a cold frame can be prepared to protect the young vegetables until they have become comparatively hardy and until the coldest weather has passed.

The frame should be located on the southern or eastern slope of a hall, when possible, to protect it from the north winds and to give the plants the best exposure to the sunlight. Bank dirt around the northern and western sides of the frame as an additional protection.

A frame is what the name implies, Morrow says: a frame-work of boards over which can be spread light cloth or canvass to protect the plants from the weather. The top of the frame should be approximately three feet above the ground.

The cloth should be arranged so that it may be rolled back on warm days to allow fresh air and sunshine to reach the plants. On extra cold nights, canvass or sacks should be spread on top of the regular cloth covering as an additional protection. If necessary, a lighted lantern left in the frame overnight will help keep the temperature above freezing.

In ventilating the frame, he says, be sure to avoid drafts and open the frame only on warm days. The soil should be kept moderately moist, but do not water heavily enough to make the ground wet.
