

THE TORCH

A department conducted for The Warren County Memorial Library By MABEL DAVIS The Librarian

Memorial Volumes Received Friends have been kind to us this week. To them we are indebted for the following fine new books: "Scrambles in Japan and Formosa," a book of travel by Murray Walton, whose appreciation of Japan is the outcome of seventeen years residence there, and "Dwight Morrow," a biography by Harold Nicolson, given to the library by Miss Rowe Jones in memory of Mr. McRary Jones and Mr. William H. Dameron. These books will interest men, we think, and others who enjoy travel and a good biography.

We are indebted to Misses Julia and Belle Dameron for four fine books given in memory of their parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dameron: "The Philosophy of Life," by A. M. Baten; "Astronomy—The Splendor of the Heavens Brought Down to Earth," by A. M. Harding; "Great Works of Music and How to Listen and Enjoy Them," by P. H. Goepf, and "Many Laughs for Many Days," by Irvin S. Cobb.

Other fine books received during the week are "Boswell's Journal of a Tour to the Hebrides with Samuel Johnson," given in memory of Mr. Clement C. Hunter by Mr. and Mrs. William Polk; "Stories of the Operas and Their Composers," by Ernest Newman, and "Great Works of Art and What Makes Them Great," by F. W. Ruckstuhl, given in memory of Mrs. Hannah B. Arrington and Mr. Pettway Burwell by Mrs. H. A. Boyd and Miss Mariam Boyd.

like freaks. All the automobile men told me their two major aims and most difficult problems are more economy in fuel consumption and getting rid of spring squeaks. They've got farther with the squeaks than with the gas consumption.

Some day motors will be made which will carry an ordinary medium-sized car 40 or 50 miles on a gallon. Then we won't all kick so hard at the mounting taxes on gasoline.

In Memoriam

OLIVER FITTS PALMER

Oliver Fitts Palmer, eldest son of William Howard Palmer and Mary Twitty Palmer, was born March 12, 1892, in Warren county, and passed into "The Great Beyond" October 9, 1936, in the Veterans Hospital at Keocoughton, Hampton Roads, Va., at the age of 44.

Funeral services were conducted from his old home, "Millbrook," by the Rev. O. I. Hinson and he was laid to rest in the family cemetery near the home where so many of his loved ones are sleeping awaiting the "Resurrection Mary." His parents moved to Buffalo, N. Y., when he was a baby and he was reared and educated there.

Notwithstanding this environment all during his youth and boyhood days, he was a true Southerner and never happier than when spending his vacation with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Palmer, at the old ancestral home. He was an eager listener when his grandfather would tell him about the "War Between the States" and learned to love and admire Lee and Jackson and especially our Confederate Chieftain, showing the "Rebel Spirit" when just a lad.

On history class one day there was something in the lesson very uncomplimentary about Jeff Davis. This Ollie resented openly, and his teacher said, "I want my class to know that Oliver is a Southerner and also that I glory in his courage."

Upon reaching manhood he came south to work and was associated with his kinsman, Mr. Ed Boyd, in the tobacco business at South Hill, Va. While there he joined the Army and was at Camp Lee in training for over seas duty when the Armistice was signed.

Coming home restless and unsettled he decided to go west to Oklahoma. Here he met Miss Mary Primrose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Primrose, and a year later they were married. To this union one son was born, James Primrose Palmer, who is now a resident of Enfield, Okla.

Ollie Palmer, as he was familiarly known, was a man of fine personality, kind, generous, tender-hearted and charitable—a favorite wherever he was known. He had his weaknesses and short-comings, but these were far overbalanced by his fine quality of heart and mind. ONE WHO LOVED HIM.

1—The workability of the huge "reserve fund" provision. This contemplates a $47,000,000,000 fund in 1939 and critics have attacked it as unsound economically.

2—The multiple tax problems, arising from the fact that if a man has several jobs, the first $3,000 he receives annually from each employer is taxed.

3—The circumstance that some banks are exempted from the law because of membership in the Federal Reserve System, while most non-member banks are covered. A committee of the American Bankers Association is collaborating in this

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dumas

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON Christian Brotherhood. Lesson for November 29th. Philimon 4-20.

Golden Text: Galatians 3:28. Paul's lovely little letter to Philimon is a cheerful, personal note to an intimate friend whom the apostle calls "our dearly beloved."

Who was Philimon? A wealthy resident of Colossae, a slave-owner, he had probably visited Ephesus, and had there heard Paul preach, and had become under the spell of the apostle's gospel, a convert. A charitable soul, an earnest Christian, he was especially noted for his hospitality, his home serving as a meeting place for a group of Colossian Christians.

Who was Onesimus? He was a house slave of Philimon's, and therefore a mere chattel. There is reason to believe that he robbed his master. Paul evidently was suspicious of this (see vs. 18). At any rate Onesimus ran away, and thereby became an outlaw. Landing in Rome he came under the beneficent influence of Paul who sent him back to his master with this charming letter.

The epistle is very precious for several reasons. In the first place it is a reflection of the beauty of Christian hospitality. Note the suggestive phrase, "the church in thy house." Philimon graciously opened his home to his fellow-believers.

Secondly it testifies to the freedom that comes to the soul through Christ. To be sure, Paul does not tell Onesimus to renounce his status as a slave. Paul nowhere attacks the institution of slavery. "Return to your master, and resume the old service" is the apostle's counsel.

Best of all, this exquisite letter is a revelation of the lovable heart of Paul. We here observe his overflowing affection, his boundless capacity for friendship, his delicacy, tact, and tenderness. Never forget that Paul was intensely human. A very tender friend, he knew how, like Canon Barnett, of London's Toynebee Hall, to take time and strength for the reclamation of the good.

study. It has been suggested that all banks abide by the law, even if voluntarily.

4—The feasibility of "health insurance." Winant indicated a factual report may be made.

Misses Mary Terrell and Leah Terrell will spend Thanksgiving in Washington, D. C., with their sister, Mrs. Harold G. Chaffey. Miss Leah Terrell will leave from there for Rochester, Minn., where she is to nurse with the Mayo Clinic.
