

IN WASHINGTON

WHAT IS TAKING PLACE BY

Rufus R. Rutherford
UNITED STATES SENATOR

There are many reasons for the belief that the Congressional "log jam" which has held up much important legislation, is about to be broken. Hearings on the President's court plan have been completed. The Chief Executive's budget message has clarified the situation with reference to Federal expenditures. It is clear that enlarged relief expenditures and new projects cannot be undertaken without new taxes. And there seems to be no sentiment in Congress favorable to new taxes.

As a result, leaders are endeavoring to cut appropriations and to hold down expenditures down to the billiard and a half recommended by the President. If possible, that amount should be reduced. Should these measures be successful, excise taxes scheduled to expire in June and July will be re-enacted, perhaps for another year, and that will be the extent of tax legislation during the first session of the present Congress.

However, should pressure from various Congressional blocs result in more and larger expenditures than are provided in the budget, it may mean tax revision before Congress adjourns. And tax revision during the summer months in Washington is a slow and difficult undertaking. Everyone hopes that it can be avoided.

In the final analysis, the course of the Congress will be governed largely by the desires of our people. If they want new expenditures, they must be prepared to foot the bills. If they want reduced expenditures, they should make their wishes known. These statements cannot be repeated too often. They are of almost importance to our people. Nevertheless, we have timely warning that the day is fast approaching when our system of producing revenue must be overhauled. Loopholes must be closed and inequities removed. Our tax bases must be broadened. Expediency in paying taxes must give way to equity. We should consider the effect of certain forms of taxes on business and, in turn, on labor and on the farmer. Much of the present conditions, and those we have gone through, may be attributed to the way in which we have pyramidized taxes Federal, state and local, without regard for their effect.

Therefore, we may anticipate, that tax revision in 1938—if necessity does not force it earlier—will be approached on a sound basis. Such an approach has been too long delayed, although the need for it has been recognized by the nation's fiscal experts.

For example, late in 1932, a subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee studying Federal and state taxation and duplications therein, made a preliminary report. Let me quote from the statement made by the able chief of staff of the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue.

"At the completion of some months of study of our taxation system as a whole, it is our opinion that very substantial improvements can be made therein, through cooperation between the Federal Government and the states. The tax burden is great and the public is fully conscious of this burden in these times of stress. A more equitable distribution of the burden and the ultimate reduction through a judicious curtailment in expenditures would doubtless not only be welcomed by the public but would also have a most beneficial effect on business."

We should ask ourselves the following questions:

Which taxes are most adaptable for the use of the Federal Government and which taxes are most adaptable for the use of the state governments?

What taxes may be properly imposed, if any, by both state and Federal Governments without serious objection from the standpoint of equity?

We must give our citizens a fair and just system of taxation, free from loopholes and inequities, and we must also give our people a full measure of value for their tax dollars. This will require the reduction in expenditures now sought by the President.

Teach Them Young, The Fine Old Art Of Making Strawberry Jams and Jellies

Why is your smile so bright?
Mistress Mary, not contrary.
Because my jell turned out so well.
And every glass is right!

By Alice Blake

VERY fine jelly is being made by very young cooks, these days. Jelly making is that easy now! Enough of this talk about the good old days, and the good old ways. Ten-year-old Mary-Ann captures more real, fresh fruit flavor in her strawberry jelly and jam than ever grandmother had in hers!

When that little girl of yours wants to play at cooking, give her a real job to do. Early training is all-important, according to child specialists, and today's game is tomorrow's talent. Recipes like these have been carefully tested, and if directions are followed exactly, will turn out a perfect product for your young cook:

Strawberry Jelly
5 cups (2½ lbs.) juice
7 cups (3 lbs.) sugar
2 boxes powdered fruit pectin

To prepare juice, grind or crush thoroughly about 3½ quarts fully ripe berries. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. (If there is a slight shortage of juice, add small amount of water to pulp in jelly cloth and squeeze again.) Measure sugar into dry dish and

Growers Make Plans For Seeding Legumes

Now that most farmers have seeded all the lespedeza they plan to grow this year, cowpeas, soybeans, velvet beans, and other legumes assume an important position as green manure crops and for soil improvement and erosion control.

Most of the legumes, whose roots contain bacteria which take nitrogen out of the air and store it in a form available for plants, will grow on almost all types of soil, according to A. H. Veazey, agronomist of the Soil Conservation Service.

Veazey pointed out that the lespedezas do best on the heavy soils and that cowpeas and soybeans need sandy soils for healthiest growth.

In a few weeks it will be time to seed cowpeas, soybeans and velvet beans. They should be planted during or just a few weeks after the corn-planting season, he said.

When the legumes are turned under as green manure, they not only add nitrogen to the soil, but also provide organic matter which aids materially in the conservation of soil and moisture.

Summer green manure crops should be followed by winter cover crops, Veazey said, and the winter crop that follows should be mowed down and left on the land as a mulch.

It is advisable, continued Veazey, to leave the land idle for 10 or 15 days after the green manure crop has been cut in order that the plant food may become more readily available to the winter crops that are to be put on the land.

Another important factor is that the green manure crop should be mixed with the soil, so as to encourage rapid decomposition and utilization of the plant food elements by the next crop, he said.

Farm Women Like Rural Broadcasts

Weekly radio programs presented by the Home Demonstration Department of the State College Extension Service are proving popular with rural home-makers, according to reports received at the college.

Specialists from the department, as well as home agents and farm women from various counties appear in person over Station WPTF, Raleigh, each Thursday afternoon at 1:45 o'clock as a regular attraction of the Carolina Farm Features program.

Information dealing with better ways of making home life more pleasant and daily tasks easier is given by the women specialists. Following is Dr. Jane S. McKimmon, assistant director of the Extension Service and former head of the Home Demonstration Department, who brings to the radio audience news items concerning the activities of rural women.

At regular intervals, farm women appear on the program and tell how they have been able to make better homes through the application of approved scientific practices.

Also proving popular is the 4-H Club program heard over WPTF on alternate Saturdays. Brief talks, music, and forums have been featured on these broadcasts.

Negro farmers in Moore county have organized a garden club to promote the growth of a home supply of vegetables among members of their race.

Sixteen Randolph farmers recently received 58,400 pounds of TVA triple-superphosphate to use in demonstrations with soil improving crops and pasture grasses.
