"MEMORY'S GARDEN"
In memory's garden the poppies grow,
Blood red blossoms be it ever so.
Out of the past just for a day,
They bloom again in bright array.
In memory they bloom of sacred deed.
Who sleep undisturbed in their narrow green bed,
While little white crosses a vigil keep,
In that silent city of peace and sleep.
They honor, too, with their bright red bloom.
Those still carrying on in a living tomb.
Who spend their day on a hospital cot.
Fighting the greatest battle they've ever fought.
Blood red poppies, a sacred trust.
Symbol of sacrifice, love and just,
God grant that they may bloom for aye.
In memory's garden on Poppy Day.
—Penna Downey, Detroit, Mich.
