RAINS CAUSE BIG Flooded Highway LOSS TO FARMERS

> Damage In Warren County Is Estimated To Be $375,000 As Result of Rains

> HEAVY LOSS OVER STATE

Damage to crops in Warren county from the heavy rains of the past several weeks is estimated at $375,-000, according to an article in the News and Observer on Wednesday by G. deR. Hamilton, Jr., in which he states that a survey of fifteen counties indicated that the total loss in Eastern Carolina would probable hit the twelve million dollar mark. His article follows: Slashing hail storms, coupled with destructive winds and persistent individuals were said to have caught rains, did nearly eight million dollars damage to crops in fifteen counties in eastern North Carolina in recent weeks and a survey yesterday indicated the total crop damage in eastern North Carolina because of weather conditions in the past month will pass the twelve million dollar mark

> As the estimated damage total rose throughout the east, heavy rains again drenched farm lands and not only indicated still further damage to crops, but lessened the chances that good weather would protect the remainder of the crops and allow some restoration of the damage already done. At State College, John V. Goodman, assistant director of the agricultural extension service, said a turn in the near future in weather conditions probably would "change the entire situation" because a substantial portion of the crop loss would be restored by regrowth. "But the picture today is certainly gloomy," added Goodman, gazing out of the window at a pelting rain.

"And if the weather doesn't change the picture will be much gloomier. There is no way to estimate the can calculate pretty well the damage done by wind and hail, but the rain is a different matter. Still, we know that it is taking a terrific toll."

Not only in eastern Carolina have crops suffered. Figures at State county have come reports of dirt College showed damage to crops in every section of the State except the far west. Damage was light. however, in the remainder of the west and in the extreme eastern portion of the State.

Hail and wind damage was concentrated, the State College reports showed, in the Albemarle section and in the heavy tobacco growing areas. The hail damaged about 1000 square miles of farm lands, the survey indicated.

Johnston County appeared yesterday, on the basis of the survey, to have been the hardest hit of the Hundley Promoted eastern counties. County Agent S. C. Oliver told The News and Observer that he believes the crop damage in his county will be not less than $1,9000,000, based on a loss of 5,500 acres of tobacco, 20 per cent ing to announcement made in Ral- of the planted crop; 10,000 acres or 13 per cent of the cotton crop, and 9,000 acres or 10 per cent of all Although Johnston County showed the greatest estimated damage, there were other counties in which the toll was tremendous.
