

Dr. Wallace White To Leave Warrenton

Dr. W. Wallace White, Warrenton physician, will give up his practice here around the 28th of December in order to take further training at the University of Iowa Hospitals for the next three years. Following this training, he will practice in Henderson.

Dr. White came here in the fall of 1958 when Dr. Robert R. Huntley left Warrenton for Chapel Hill to take a special course in advanced medicine. Dr. Huntley is expected to resume his practice here on January 4.

Notice of his intention to leave Warrenton was given by Dr. White Monday in a letter to all his patients. In this letter, he said:

"This is to notify you that I have decided to leave my practice in Warrenton for a specialty in Radiology. After three years of further training at the University of Iowa Hospitals, Iowa City, Iowa, I plan to go to Henderson as an associate of Dr. J. A. Boyd. I plan to leave Warrenton about December 28.

"Dr. Huntley will return to Warrenton January 1, 1960, and plans to reopen his office Monday, January 4. I will be happy to furnish case summaries to any of you who may plan to have a family physician other than Dr. Huntley.

"I want to thank all of you for the wonderful support that you have given me during my stay in Warrenton. I regret to leave Warrenton, but I feel that this is an opportunity which I cannot afford to turn down."

Farmers Urged To Turn In Marketing Cards Promptly

Warren County tobacco farmers were warned yesterday by T. E. Watson, ASC office manager, not to let their tobacco allotments suffer because of failure to return their marketing cards.

Watson said that marketing quota regulations require that tobacco marketing cards be returned to the ASC office as soon as sales are completed, or in no case than 30 days after the markets in the vicinity close. Failure to comply with these regulations, he said, could cause the allotment next established for the farm to be reduced.

"Please return your marketing card immediately," Watson urged. "Mail or bring it to the ASC office in Warrenton."

Dance To Be Held At Armory Tonight

Warrenton Jaycees are expecting a large turnout for a rock and roll show to be held at the Warrenton Armory tonight (Friday).

Allen said that music for the dance will be furnished by "The Five K's", an orchestral group from this area.

He said that tickets for the dance were currently on sale by members of the local Jaycee chapter and that admission tickets would be sold at the door. Cost of admission is fifty cents, Allen said.

Fate Of Recreational Plan Will Be Decided During Community Meet Dec. 1

The fate of a proposed summer recreation program for Warrenton will be decided on December 1 when delegates of town and school organizations, along with representatives of the town's civic groups and churches, meet at Hotel Warrenton here to thrash out the idea.

If a majority of delegates decide to lend support to the proposal, which has been afoot for some two weeks, officers will be elected and a concrete set of plans laid out.

The movement to launch the first complete supervised program of summer recreation for both children and adults in the history of the town, was begun several weeks ago when a local civic club kicked around the idea of "talking up" such a program.

Since that time the movement has gained rapid support of the towns citizens.

The Rev. Troy Barrett, pastor of the Wesley Memorial Methodist Church here, and one of the proponents of the recreational plan, has appeared before the town's Rotary, Lions and PTA clubs during the past week.

The Rotarians went on record as favoring such a program, and the Lions and PTA received the plan with approval.

"It is still in the nebulous stage, and the group which meets on December 1 will decide whether the plan has merit enough to be launched," the Rev. Barrett said yesterday.

If the proposal is approved, the first step of the governing body would appear to lie in the selection of a program. Most interested persons feel that a program lasting from five to ten weeks would be the most feasible.

Directors for the program could in all probability be secured from North Carolina State College, Southeastern Theological Seminary, Duke, or a host of other schools that give credit to students who are engaged in work of this type during the summer months. Another possibility is hiring of local persons to conduct the program.

The cost of such a program, which can vary greatly depending on the amount of activities included, would be nominal, the Rev. Barrett, who has had experience with similar programs in other North Carolina towns, said.

He pointed out that both Wendell and Zebulon in North Carolina have similar programs which are met yearly with enthusiasm.

If the program is inaugurated, a fund raising campaign must be conducted for the support of the program and its activities which would perhaps include swimming, golf, ping pong, tennis, baseball, softball, and a host of other indoor and outdoor sports.

One of the favorable things about the program, a spokesman for the group now advocating such a plan said this week, is that a vast number of children would be able to take part in the program as well as a number of adults.

Representatives of the groups which will meet at the local hotel on December 1 will be contacted in the near future, a spokesman for the recreational program said this week, and anyone desiring to have a voice in the program should make every possible effort to attend the meeting.

The group will be out by 7:15 or 7:30 o'clock, Mr. Barrett said.

Mr. Barrett also announced that the sermon topic at Wesley Memorial Church on Sunday before Thanksgiving will be "How Can We Bless the Lord?" The text will be Psalm 103.

Power Service To Be Off Sunday

Power service in the Warrenton, Norlina, Littleton, Macon, Vaughan, Wise, Middleburg, Manson, Drewry and rural areas will be interrupted Sunday, November 22, from 1:30 p. m. to 4:30 p. m., C. P. Gaston, local CP&L manager, said yesterday.

The interruption will include REA customers in the above named areas.

Gaston said that the interruption is necessary in order to complete work started on the Henderson-Virginia 110,000 volt line in August.

He said the job which started in August called for installation of heavier conductor on 20 miles of structure extending from Carolina Power & Light Company's 132,000 volt substation at Henderson to an interconnection with the Virginia Electric & Power Company at the state line north of Warrenton.

Warrenton Girl Awarded $35,000

Miss Teresa Harper of Warrenton was awarded $35,000.00 by a jury as damages against Pattie Vaughan Bolton and Isaac Harris, Jr., in a trial which required three days in the Court of Common Pleas of Richland County, S. C., at Columbia, S. C., on Wednesday.

The injuries Miss Harper sustained were received in an automobile accident in South Carolina last year where she was riding in an automobile operated by Mrs. Bolton which was involved in a collision with the car driven by Harris.

Court officials commented that this was one of the largest verdicts ever awarded in this area for personal injuries.

Miss Harper was represented by James D. Gilliland, local attorney, and William A. Dalis of Columbia.

Farmers Must Speak, Weaver Tells Bureau

Warren County farmers, seeing their number vanishing at a phenomenal rate daily, must act with speed and union if they want to insure their existence as farmers.

"You must act as a body if you hope to get up to par with the non-agrarian workers in this state and nation," Dr. D. S. Weaver, director of N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, told members of the Warren County Farm Bureau gathered at the Warren County courthouse on Tuesday night.

"The voice of agriculture, once a mighty force in the state and nation, is getting feeble each day," Dr. Weaver said.

He pointed out that while in this nation alone there are 8,000 new mouths to feed each day, the producers of food are leaving the farms at the rate of approximately 1000 per day.

Whereas this county, state and nation was primarily composed of farmers, today only eleven per cent of the population are food producers, he said.

Dr. Weaver traced the evolution of man, pointing out that man was in his primitive state a naked and hungry animal constantly searching for food and warmth.

Today, in this country, man has the technological devices that give him the equivalent of 83 slaves. Man has unparalleled prosperity. But man is still a hungry animal that must be fed, he said.

"Today the American farmer is feeding 23 persons besides himself—and there is every indication that this ratio will continue to rise with increasing swiftness," Dr. Weaver said.

One of the leading problems confronting the nation and the farmer is the scarcity of land, the speaker said.

The coming of the tractor onto the farm scene helped the land situation somewhat, as 65 million acres of land that had previously been used to produce fodder for mules and horses were converted into food producing lands. This land has been taken care of now and there is need for more, Dr. Weaver said.

He said that Warren County farmers, along with farmers throughout the state have excellent potential for becoming the nation's greatest food-producers. North Carolina can produce the largest variety of food of any state in the United States with the exception of California. And within a 700-mile radius of North Carolina live more than one-half of the U. S. population.

But if farmers of this county are to have financial equality with the other workers across the nation, they must join with the four and one-half million farmers across the nation and "speak the same language."

How important the farmer will be tomorrow will depend almost entirely on how the farmer speaks for himself today, Dr. Weaver said.

Dr. Weaver, a native of Ohio and a member of the N. C. State faculty for 36 years, was introduced by Frank W. Reams, Warren County Farm Agent.

Following Dr. Weaver's address, members of the Bureau elected the following directors for the coming year:

Dennis Harris, Charles Hoggood, Leonard M. Bender, J. Robert King, W. A. Connell, Jr., W. D. Martin, and Mrs. Ruth Bugg.

These directors will meet prior to December 1 and elect a new president to succeed Boyd M. Reams, who presided. Reams, in presiding over his final meeting, thanked the members for the loyal support given him during his one-year tenure.

Prior to Tuesday night's meeting members of the John Graham High School band a ten-minute concert under the direction of R. M. Davis, band instructor at the local high school.

Plans For An Educational Foundation Made Here

Plans for the establishment of an Educational Aid Foundation for Warren County were made here on Monday night. Application for a charter is expected within the next few days.

A decision to organize the foundation was made at a supper at Hotel Warren when Sam Warlick, promoter of the project, was host to a group of Warrenton citizens.

The objects of the non-profit corporation were explained to the group by Warlick as follows:

(A) To obtain and accept gifts, grants and contributions and to create a fund to be used to assist deserving and worthy high school graduates in obtaining a college education; also any gifts, grants and contributions so designated will be used to aid the high school band or other school activities so designated.

(B) To give financial assistance by making loans to needy, deserving and ambitious young men and women from Warren County who desire a college education and who otherwise might not be able to obtain one; also to assist and give full information on scholarships offered by colleges to anyone desiring them.

(C) To cooperate with, advise and extend financial aid to worthy college students for scientific, literary or educational purposes, and to render such other assistance for these purposes as the board of directors may deem advisable and proper.

Six men present at the supper were named as incorporators of the foundation and to serve as first directors of the corporation. These were H. M. Hardy, Howell Steed, John Mitchell, Howard Daniel, Dick Miles, Sam Warlick and Claude Bowers.

Following the issuance of a charter, the directors will elect officers and approve by-laws for the operation of the foundation.

Sam Warlick served as chairman of the organizational meeting and Dick Miles served as secretary.

Present at the meeting were Sam Warlick, Howell Steed, Frank Reams, Bignall Jones, Frank Gibbs, Harry Cohen, W. A. Miles, Howard Daniel, Leonard Daniel, Claude Bowers, Dick Miles, John Mitchell, Richard Davis, and Selby Benton.

State And Power Company Reach Agreement On Dam

WASHINGTON—North Carolina and Virginia Electric & Power Co. reached an agreement Wednesday which they said would protect the quality and quantity of water below Veeco's proposed hydroelectric project on the Roanoke River.

The agreement, announced after a day and a half of conferences here, will be incorporated in Veeco's application for authority to build its $0 million dollar Gaston Dam and Reservoir near the North Carolina-Virginia border.

Also resolved, spokesmen for the state and company said after the conference at the Federal Power Commission, were problems pertaining to Veeco's Roanoke Rapids power project now under construction. The latter is about nine miles downstream from the site of the proposed Gaston Dam.

In general, the agreement involves the establishment of a schedule of minimum water releases by Gaston Dam.

It was feared concerning the amount and quality of downstream water that caused several North Carolina agencies and others to intervene in the FPC hearing on the Gaston proposal. That hearing, recessed to enable the parties to try to reach an agreement, will be resumed Dec. 15.

"The solution of the problems is an unprecedented forward step in adapting flows released downstream to dissolved oxygen conditions resulting from major impoundment of a river," said Patrick A. Gibson of Richmond, Va., counsel for Veeco.

"The agreement is so drawn as to provide protection to the interests of the present and future industrial development of the lower Roanoke River," said Sen. Virgil Whitford.

Barrett Talks On Recreation Needs At Lions Meeting

The need of a community recreation program for the summer months was illustrated here on last Friday night at the regular meeting of the Warrenton Lions Club at Hotel Warrenton.

The Rev. Troy Barrett told members of the Lions Club that such a program has been found to be an effective way of building community life in towns of similar size throughout North Carolina.

Mr. Barrett told the members in attendance that a community meeting would be held at the local hotel on December 1 to decide whether to further pursue the recreational program.

Following Mr. Barrett's outline, plans were presented to four new members of the local club, John Andrews, Henry Shearin, Allen Tucker and Bernard Smiley.

In making the presentation, Lion Billy Lanier told the new members of their duties as members of the Lions Club. The members were welcomed into the club by Lion President C. V. Whitford, who presided over the meeting.
