

Warren Home Economic Teachers At' nd Meet

Mrs. Carolyn Ricks of the Littleton High School, Miss Emily Burt Person of the John Graham High School and Mrs. Martha Overby of the Norlina High School attended a week of conference and study at the Woman's College in Greensboro from August 1-5.

The theme of the conference was "Looking at New Directions for Home Economics."

On Monday, Dr. Naomi Albanese, Dean of the School of Home Economics at Woman's College, chose as her subject "New Directions—A Challenge." She stressed that anything worthwhile was worth challenging and that home economics teachers in this growing age will have many opportunities to challenge new ideas.

On Tuesday, Dr. Herbert Kelly, Associate Director of the N. C. Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program, spoke on "Developing Personal Security in Family Living." He said that alcohol and dope addicts were not the only ones who scarred family security.

Miss Alice Strawn, Professor of Home Economics Education at East Carolina College in Greenville, on Wednesday morning reviewed highlights of the recent White House Conference on Children and Youth. She said she was much concerned over youth today and added that "Youths need help in scheduling time. They need to learn the importance of being a good consumer. Young people need more family life education and guidance."

Jeanne Ayers, educational consultant for J. C. Penny Company of New York, and Mamie Hardy, home economist for the Cotton Council of America, were the speakers at the Wednesday afternoon session. Jeanne Ayers spoke on "Consumer Education," and Mamie Hardy talked on "Cotton in Today's World."

"Management Is The Key" was the theme of Mrs. Madeleine B. Street at the Thursday morning session. She is Professor of Home Management at Woman's College.

The teachers met with their supervisors in area meetings on Thursday afternoon. Following these group meetings, the Warren-Vance group met and decided that their first meeting would be held in planning all-day workshop at the home of Mrs. Eva Macon in Henderson on August 10.

Friday, Miss Catherine T. Dennis, State Supervisor of Home Economics Education and President of the American Home Economics Association, discussed State Policies. In the afternoon Mrs. Pearle Wates, Assistant Regional Director of Civil Defense and Defense Mobilization, and Mrs. Sarah B. Weaver, Assistant Director Women's Division North Carolina Civil Defense, discussed the purpose and need for Civil Defense and pointed out how teachers can contribute to Civil Defense.

Mrs. Martha Bowers Overby, Home Ec. teacher at Norlina, said upon her return to Norlina that "There were many more interesting and informative speakers who gave us new ideas for our work. I am sure that all of us were inspired to come home looking at new directions."

Attend Funeral

Woman Wounds Herself In Wrist In Killing Snake

Mrs. Stacey Penny of Route 1, Willow Springs, saw a snake in a bush recently.

She obtained a pistol and discharged the weapon.

The bullet went through her wrist and then struck the snake's head and killed it.

Mrs. Penny received treatment at Rex Hospital in Raleigh.

Buggs Island Regatta Set

The Seventh Annual Buggs Island Lake Regatta will be held on Sunday, August 15th, at Occaneechee Park at Clarksville, Virginia, on Buggs Island Lake.

It will feature a boat race with all the big, powerful in-board boats trying for top points and trophies. Top racing drivers throughout the country will compete for trophies in the regatta sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 8163.

Al Bauer, nationally known referee for top boat races in the United States will be on hand to referee this event and to see that all participants give their top performance. He promises that all spectators will see plenty of thrills and spills.

Among the drivers to be on hand are: Carl Widenhouse of Concord, N. C., and his misnamed, ever to be reckoned with, 266 cubic inch class boat "Slo-poke"; Rodney Brogden of Newport News, Va., with his 225 cu. in. Hydro, the "Kitty-B"; Bus Lackey of Jamestown, N. C., and Carter Parrish, Jr., of Fredericksburg, Va., in the 125 cu. in. class.

The regatta will begin at 2:00 p. m. In Occaneechee Park, the site of the races, there is plenty of shade, picnic tables, and good viewing of the race.
