The child was thought to have been in her custody for about two months. The mother of the child is identified as Eva Coleman of South Hill, Va. A lie detector test given the Jones woman last Wednesday failed to shed any light on the child's death.

A preliminary autopsy performed by Dr. Dr. Mann confirmed that the child had had pneumonia prior to his death. He said the cause of death was a brain hemmorahage due to a truma. Bruises on the infant's forhead and top of head were found during the postmortum.
