

Norlina and Warrenton Meet As Baseball Season Begins

Halifax-Warren baseball coaches were expecting light to be thrown on their 1962 editions' chances for capturing the loop title yesterday (Thursday) as the spring sport season was given a formal welcome.

Norlina, the perennial champion which has won the league crown five times in the last five years, was to host Warrenton, the basketball and football conference champions, in a game that had the eye of many of the conference's sports servers.

Norlina Coach Bob Price, hand-hit by graduation, has come up with another crack offensive unit but is currently worried over his boys' ability to score.

"We have lacked the power we need during early season practice sessions and really won't know too much until we get a couple of games under our belts," Price said.

The Blue Waves, who took the field against the invading Yellow Jackets of Coach Preacher Parker at 3:30 p. m., were slated to start Billy Fuller, a senior righthander on the mound. Fuller, one of four returning regulars, is one of the squad's top hitters. Also back for another start are catcher Arthur King, centerfielder Lee Hicks and Tommy Burton, whom Price moved to third base this year.

On first was Wayne Lynch, while Charles Hayes or James Brantley were in a neck-and-neck race for the regular second sacker's job. Price planned to start Andrew Hundley, who can also be used as a pitcher, at shortstop.

In the outfield with Hicks, and Fuller when the latter is not hurrying, will be Dan Shearin or Herbert Burrows, along with Clifton Moseley.

Price's mound staff is composed of Fuller, John Allen and Buck Wiggins. George Perkinson and Sidney King add reserve strength.

Price cannot remember but one loss that his teams have suffered during the past three years of regular season play. That came at the hands of Davie a couple of years back, while last year's squad chalked up a perfect 14.0 slate.

Warrenton, losing only one senior—Bill Clark, a centerfielder—via the graduation route last year, should be stronger this season with more experience and the added presence of two good hitters—Herman Rooker and Steve Clark.

Rooker is Parker's choice at first base because of his height, and last season's regular first sacker, Chocky White, has moved into the outfield to take over the position left vacant by Bill Clark. Steve Clark will move into the shortstop's position, a spot he filled as a rookie.

At second base a real fight has developed between Billy Mitchiner and Billy Benson, and Parker is uncertain who will be starting at this post as the season grows older.

Third base will be occupied by Gordon Heathcock, while Bill Taylor will be behind the plate. Like Price, Parker plans to use his hitting pitchers in the outfield when they are not on the mound.

Clinton Neal and Larry Hayes will share the burden of the mound duty during the season, but Parker was uncertain who would start yesterday's contest.

J. Graham FHA Members Attend State Meeting

Ten members of the John Graham High School FHA Chapter, their chapter mother and advisor attended the sixteenth annual state meeting of the North Carolina Association of Future Homemakers of America held in the Raleigh Memorial Auditorium on Saturday. Some 4500 delegates from 440 chapters across the state attended the meeting.

Gov. Terry Sanford delivered an address on "Youth, Measure Your Values" during the morning session. The Moore County chapters presented a pageant in the afternoon, "Salute to the Stars and Stripes."

The day-long session, which opened at 9 a. m. with registration, featured the presentation of both the annual State Honorary Memberships and the State Homemakers degrees.

State Honorary Memberships were presented to Governor Sanford, C. W. McCrary, State Board of Education; Dr. Gerald B. James, Director of Vocational Education at the State Department of Public Instruction; Mrs. Helen L. Curry, assistant State Supervisor of Home Economics Education; and Mrs. Ernestine H. Frazier, State FHA advisor.

Miss Kacie Jordan, Cary Chapter, president of the State Association, presided.

The new officers were installed in the closing sessions of the meeting.

Those attending from the John Graham Chapter were: Becky Ellis, Sarah Ann Fuller, Margaret Gibson, Joyce Weaver, Donna Gottschalk, Virginia Robertson, Barbara Hight, Carolyn Miller, Betsy Frazier, Joan Short, Mrs. Lewis Fuller, Chapter Mother, and Emily B. Perkinson, Adviser.

In the outfield White will share the garden with Wilson Bolton and A. C. Collier.

Littleton, itching for its share of glory among the conference powers, tackled Weldon yesterday and will travel to Norlina on Monday. Warrenton will have Monday off and will not get into action again until Thursday when it hosts Aurelian Springs.

In other action next Thursday Norlina will travel to Davie and Littleton has an open date.

Flag Program

A program on the five Confederate Flags was given at the March meeting of the Warren County Chapter of the Children of the Confederacy held at the Episcopal Parish House on Friday afternoon with 10 children present. Giving the program were Misses Laura Bennie Davis, Harriet Benton, Nancy Williams, Jennifer Taylor and Billy Twitty.

Under the direction of Anne Twitty and Mrs. James Stoner, work was done on favors for the local hospital for Easter. Refreshments were served by Mrs. H. F. Twitty assisted by Mrs. Arthur Williams.

Man's Wardrobe Reveals History And Geography

WASHINGTON—From Baby Stuart cap to Bermuda shorts, fashions and fabrics are named for famous people and places. A man's wardrobe is a gazetteer of geography—and history.

His shoes are mostly oxfords, after England's Oxford University, says the National Geographic Society. His shirts may be of soft oxford weave, white or blue, or of striped, fine-cotton madras from Madras, India. Perhaps he owns a sports shirt of canton flannel, so called because it was first traded through the Chinese port of Canton.

His pants, by a strange quirk, perpetuate the name of a martyred and canonized physician, Pantaleon, who lived in Rome in the 3rd century. Saint Pantaleon became a favorite saint of Venice, giving rise to a stock Venetian character, "Pantaleon," in Italian popular comedy. From the actor's baggy trousers came the words "pants" and "pantaloon."

From Plays and Fox Hunts

The man who wears a fedora is unlikely to know that his casual felt hat was named for the feminine lead of the 19th-century play "Fedora," by Victorien Sardou. Though popularized for women by the Princess Fedora of the title role, the style was later modified and adopted by men.

A generation earlier, a hard-topped, bell-shaped riding hat was dreamed up by an English fox hunter, William Coke, whose traditional topper had been knocked off once too often in the chase.

First called a billycock for the originator, the sports hat became the all-round bowler when a hatter by that name reshaped the crown in a simple, elegant curve. It was nicknamed derby after it caught on at the Epsom Downs horse race founded by the 12th Earl of Derby.

Chesterfield overcoats also carry a peamage label and are still going strong after two centuries. The single-breasted style, with concealed buttons and velvet collar, was introduced by the fourth Earl of Chesterfield, 18th-century statesman wit, and man of letters.

Across the Atlantic, in 1886, dowagers of New York's wealthy Tuxedo Park Colony were shocked to see a young man appear at a ball in a tailless, scarlet dress jacket. The innovation marked the decline of white-tie-and-tails except for ultraformal functions.

The tuxedo, as it was widely christened, was an immediate success in black, blossomed later in summer white, and, reverting to origin, is occasionally made up in colors for the most dapper Beau Brummells.

Modeled by heroes
Clothing styles often take on the names of heroes who popularized them—the Lindbergh flying jacket (a kind of wind-breaker) and the fitted Eisenhower battle jacket, for instance.

Cardigans go back to England's seventh Earl of Cardigan, who is better known now for the buttoned sweater than for the fact that he led the tragic charge of the Light Brigade in the Crimean War.

Two types of boots and top-coat were named for three men who fought in the Battle of Waterloo. Knee-high Wellington boots recall the "Iron Duke" who defeated Napoleon there. Bluchers are half boots named for the Prussian field marshal, Von Blucher, Wellington's ally in the struggle.

The distinctive style of swinging overcoat with sleeves cut from the neckline is still called a raglan, after the first Baron of Raglan, who served as Wellington's devoted aide-camp and lost his sword arm at Waterloo.

Women notables, too, have left their imprint on the world's wear. A one-piece hospital bed jacket is called a nightgale in honor of Florence Nightingale, the English nursing pioneer.

Peter Pan collars and feathered hats copy the boyish costume of Maude Adams as the gay sprite in Marrie's whimsical play. A necklace with pendant ornament is known as a lavalier, reputedly for the Duchess de La Valliere, mistress of Louis XIV.

Capelike collars reaching below the shoulders are berthas, traced to the Frankish queen, Bertha, mother of Charlemagne. Bloomers were named for Mrs. Amelia Bloomer, American leader in woman suffrage and dress reform.

Styled For Youth

Boys and girls have their own famous-name fashions, among them Buster Brown collars from the early comic strip and Eton jackets after the student uniform at England's stylish preparatory school.

Mothers dress infants in the Baby Stuart cap—a shirred, close-fitted head covering modeled on one shown in a 17th-century portrait of the Stuart who grew up to be James II of England. Teenagers' blue jeans are from Genoa, the French word for Genoa, Italy, where a heavy cotton cloth, dyed blue, was made for medieval work clothes.

Place-name garments for both men and women include Bermuda shorts and Basque berets. There are cashmere sweaters (from Kashmir goats), Ascot ties (for England's racecourse), and Panama hats (actually made in Ecuador).

Some of the most striking styles of not-so-long ago are gone with the moths, to no one's regret. Who would resurrect the long frock coat named for Queen Victoria's consort, Prince Albert? Or Lillian Russell's hour-glass dress and plume-laden hat? To say nothing of little Lord Fauntleroy's velvet suit and lace collar, which, with the added indignity of long curls, were once forced on anguished little boys.

Warrenton Rural Fire News

By BILL CONNELL

The Jule Harrison house on the Norlina Road was destroyed by fire in a planned burning on Tuesday night, April 3, at 7:00. A warehouse will be constructed at this site. Time out one hour, 20 men and three trucks.

An N. C. State Law requires that no vehicle follow a fire truck closer than 500 ft. Please bear this in mind. Officers will enforce this law. If you must go to a fire, please walk the last mile.

Mrs. Cheves Named Warren Chairman For 'Lost Colony'

Mrs. Edward Cheves of Warrenton has been named Warren County membership chairman of the Roanoke Island Historical Association, it was announced this week by Mrs. Fred W. Morrison of Washington, D. C., chairman of the association's board of directors.

As one of a state-wide "committee of 100," Mrs. Cheves will join with other county chairmen this spring in actively promoting membership in the historical association, Mrs. Sam J. Ervin, Jr., of Washington, D. C., is state membership chairman.

Mrs. Cheves reports that association members and staff are now busy with ambitious plans for the celebration of the 25th anniversary of "The Lost Colony," Paul Green's outdoor symphonic drama presented each summer since 1937 at Manteo on Roanoke Island.

Mrs. Cheves said yesterday that she would like to get as many local members as possible in the historical association. Persons wishing memberships are asked to contact her.

It was also reported that the association is working

Local Members Attend District U. D. C. Meeting

Representing the Warren County Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and the Children of the Confederacy at the annual District Meeting No. 8 which was held in Oxford on Thursday of last week were Mrs. C. L. Purdy, chapter president; Mrs. H. F. Twitty, Division chairman of Monument Records; Miss Panthea Anne Twitty, president of the North Carolina Division, Children of the Confederacy; Miss Lucy Banzet, local Chapter President of the Children of the Confederacy, and Billy Twitty, who served as a page.

Miss Panthea Anne Twitty was a guest speaker, and told of the work of the C. of C. and the accomplishments of the chapters throughout the state. Mrs. Purdy gave the report of the local UDC Chapter, and Miss Banzet gave the local C. of C. report. Mrs. Twitty spoke on North Carolina Monuments and Markers.

Mrs. D. S. Coltrane of Raleigh presided. Mrs. R. G. Johnson of Burgaw, Division President, UDC; Mrs. Egbert Barnhill of Enfield, Division Vice-President; and Mrs. E. J. Meiere, Jr., of Lexington, Division Recorder of Crosses, Each spoke on the work of the organization in the state.

Approximately 80 persons attended the meeting and luncheon from Raleigh, Durham, Henderson, Smithfield, Spring Hope, Bentonville, Warrenton, and Oxford.

From 1948 to 1956 the number of grocery stores in the U. S. with annual sales of less than $100,000 declined sharply, while those grossing more than $1 million multiplied four-fold.
