GARDEN TIME M. E. Gardner N.C. State College

Early fall is the best time of the year to seed the ever-green grasses such as fescue and bluegrass. The days are shorter and the nights cooler, both of which are important for good germination and growth.

We have discussed so many times the proper methods to employ in establishing the lawn, that a few reminders here should be sufficient.

Prepare the seedbed well. Thoroughly incorporating peat or old sawdust in the top 3 or 4 inches is desirable but not always necessary. Apply about 30 pounds of a 10-10-10 fertilizer per 1,000 square feet.

Seed Kentucky bluegrass at the rates of 1-2 pounds per 1,000 square feet. If fescue (tall fescue, Ky. 31) is used for seeding, sow at the rate of 3-4 pounds per 1,000 square feet.

Fescue does well in the open lawn and under medium shade conditions. However, it is desirable to seed Kentucky bluegrass with the fescue, in shaded areas, at 1/2 pound per 1,000 square feet.

Always use certified seed and sow in prepared soil area with a hand seeder or by hand. In any event, and regardless of the quantity of seed used, divide seed in equal parts and sow at right angles. This will give even distribution of seed and should result in a more uniform stand of grass.

On established warm season grasses, such as Bermuda, you can over-seed with Italian rye grass and have a pretty winter lawn. However, it must be remembered that Italian rye will die as soon as the weather gets hot, and will damage your established sod.

Both new lawns and established lawns should be treated for grubs. Use Chlordane according to directions on the container. The granular form is perhaps the most convenient to use.

De-grubbing lawns is becoming increasingly important now that the Japanese beetle has become so widespread in North Carolina. In addition to the Japanese beetle grubs, June beetle grubs and ants are also eliminated.

The best method of controlling moles is to destroy the grubs on which they feed.

NOW-GO JET-SMOOTH CHEVROLET for '63

If it didn't say Chevrolet on the flanks of the superb automobile you see here, you'd have a hard time proving it's a low-priced car.

IT'S EXCITING!

of others have started to sag and sigh: new flush and dry rocker panels under the doors to guard against rusting... self-adjusting brakes... Delcotron generator for longer battery life.

GO CHEVY II for '63-IT'S EXCITING!

GO CORVAIR for '63-IT'S EXCITING!

Hard as it may be to believe, this year's Chevy II is better, better than last year's and better than anything in its class.

Change it? Calm yourself, nobody's going to mess with a winner like this one! We did add self-adjusting brakes and a more fully aluminized muffler; interiors and outside trim are refined a bit, but the rest is pure Corvaire with all the over-the-road goodness that implies.
