Board Extends Time For 1965 Tax Listing

The time for listing 1965 taxes has been extended from January 31 to February 13 by the board of county commissioners.

Extension of the listing time was made by the commissioners at their regular meeting here on Monday. Reason given was the bad weather during the final days of the listing period. The action of the commissioners was similar to that taken almost every year by the board and the reason given for the extension was the same.

The commissioners accepted, "with regrets," the resignation of Monroe Gardner as a member of the Warren County Planning Board, and appointed Selby Benton, Warrenton merchant as Gardner's successor. In his letter of resignation, Gardner said that his duties as chairman of the Warren County Industrial Committee and as a member of the hospital committee prevented him from giving the necessary time to the duties of a planning board member.

J. B. Martin, heating contractor, appeared before the board with County Agent Frank Reams and Sheriff Jim Hundley to discuss the need for more and better heat for the court house and Agriculture Building. One of the troubles is that when the Agriculture Building gets enough heat, some offices in the court house get too much, the group said. Martin suggested that it might be possible to put electric valves on two of the steam pipes, but said that he would have to make an investigation.

Martin appeared before the commissioners after the dinner hour and reported that he had investigated the system and found three pipes instead of two leading from the boiler. This made the electrical valves impractical, he said. Present conditions, he said, could be improved by placing a separate thermostat in the Agriculture Building, although this at times would require radiators being cut off manually in parts of the court house. The commissioners instructed him to install the thermostat.

Beer licenses were ordered issued to Jesse Claude Salmon of Littleton and to C. E. Fleming of Rt. 2, Warrenton upon receipt of state permits.

A. P. Rodwell, Jr., tax collector, reported taxes collected to date in the amount of $320,774.95. Of this amount $66,662.78 was collected in January.

The meeting of the board Monday was held upstairs in the Grand Jury room of the court house due to press of work in the auditor's office where the board meetings are usually held.

No Change Expected In Dog Law Method

A suggestion that enforcement of the dog law be placed under the sheriff's department with deputies doing the work of the dog warden is not expected to receive favorable action by the board of county commissioners.

The suggestion was made to the commissioners at their regular meeting held here Monday by William Brauer, dairy farmer who lives near Warrenton, as an economy move.

Brauer said that he had nothing against the present dog warden or his work but thought that the deputy sheriffs had plenty of time to do the work, thus saving the county a considerable sum of money without any less to the enforcement program.

Robert M. Stegall, the present dog warden, received a salary of $210 per month, plus mileage at 7¢ a mile. In December this amounted to $89.89 as revealed in the January published report of county expenditures.

Asked by the commissioners if he had seen Sheriff Hundley about the matter, Brauer said that he had. "What did Hundley think about it?" the commissioners asked. "He doesn't like the idea," Brauer replied.

Brauer's visit brought forth quite a bit of discussion about the dog question and its handling in Warren County, but no definite action or indication that the present system would be changed. Brauer received the thanks of the board for his interest and a promise that the board would give the matter consideration.

Chairman Amos Capps commented that the dog question was the most vexing and the hardest to find a solution to confronting the commissioners. Other commissioners nodded in agreement.

Surgeon And Wife Pay Visit To Town

Dr. Juan Rios, now with the Forsyth Memorial Hospital at Winston-Salem, and Mrs. Rios were in Warrenton on Wednesday and Thursday of this week on an investigation tour of the town and county.

Dr. Rios has been invited to consider the position of surgeon at the Warren County General Hospital. He came to Warrenton at the invitation of the Warren County Citizens Hospital Committee. Chairman Monroe Gardner, Mrs. W. L. Wood, Elmer Harris, William Hicks and Dr. Walter White were in Winston-Salem on January 27 when they talked with Dr. Rios and other members of the staff of the Forsyth Hospital.

Gardner said yesterday that, impressed by Dr. Rios and with his recommendations, they invited him to come to Warren County.

Dr. and Mrs. Rios were entertained at a luncheon on Wednesday and at a dinner on Wednesday night, attended by members of the staff of Warren General Hospital. During the afternoon Dr. Rios visited the John Graham High School and the Warren General Hospital. Gardner said that Dr. Rios was seemingly impressed by the local school and seems to have been impressed by what he has seen of the town and county.

Dr. and Mrs. Rios were entertained Thursday morning from 10 to 11:30 at a coffee hour at Colonial Lodge by the Warrenton Woman's Club. During that time many Warren citizens dropped by to meet Dr. and Mrs. Rios.

Dr. Rios is a native of Durango, Mexico, and was educated at the University of Mexico. He has been practicing medicine in the United States for seven years and for the past three years has been at Winston-Salem. Mrs. Rios, a native of Huntsville, Ala., is a nurse. They have one small son.

New Life In Roanoke

Roanoke Township, for many years held back from development due to a lack of a bridge across the Roanoke River, is showing new life as the result of the construction of a bridge across the Roanoke and the development of Gaston Lake.

Three new developments are now underway in this township, it was learned here Monday. A Rocky Mount group has a development of approximately 74 lots.

A group from Lansing, Mich., is developing 328 acres purchasing from a paper company.

North Shore Acres is being developed by Mrs. S. M. Gardner of Churchill and Warrenton.

Distribution of surplus commodities to needy families will begin in Warren County on next Tuesday morning.

Julian Farrar, Welfare Superintendent, said yesterday that the first of the commodities, supplied by the Federal Government, would arrive on Monday at a warehouse at the Warrenton Depot from where they will be received by persons who have been certified by the Welfare Department to receive the commodities.

Around 4,000 persons have already been certified to receive the surplus commodities, Farrar said. Certification is continuing, he added.

Farrar said that persons wishing to be certified should come to the court room in the Warrenton Courthouse on Wednesday and Thursday of each week during the month. They may come on these days from any part of the county. Lack of room at the Welfare Department was given as the reason for moving the certification station to the court house.

Persons who have been certified are asked to go to the warehouse at the depot on only the day marked on their cards. Farrar said that some 125 persons would be served on each of the three days the warehouse is to be open and would receive a month's supply of the commodities.
