Crowds Are Increasing At Fair

With good weather crowds are increasing each night at the Warren County Fair, which opened on Monday, and tonight (Friday) promises to be a banner night for fair lovers.

A highlight of the fair was school day on Wednesday when thousands of school children were present to enjoy the rides at reduced prices and to take part in a drawing for prizes.

Norlina school children won all three of the prizes. Bobby Lee Bolton won the first prize, a bicycle; winner of the second prize, a transistor radio, was Ervin Stallings; and Susan Dryden won the third prize, a Timex watch.

A similar drawing was scheduled for Thursday afternoon—the second school day of the week.

Attracting interest on Wednesday was the annual Calf Show (See FAIR, page 4)

Many Speeders Tried In Recorder's Court

A heavy foot on the accelerator was responsible for the majority of cases tried in Warren County Recorder's Court last Friday, with most of the cases the result of speeding charges.

Of the 22 cases before Judge Julius Banzet, 20 were for violations of the motor vehicle laws.

In the other two cases, Herbert Watkins, charged with non-support, was found not guilty and James Williams, Jr., was sent to jail for seven days, when he was found guilty of assault.

James Joseph Thompson was ordered to pay a $25 fine and court costs when he pled guilty to a charge of reckless driving.

The state took a nol pro with leave in the case of Lloyd Reginald Campbell, charged with having no operator's license.

Jonathan Valentine, found guilty of drunk driving and taxed with a $100 fine and court costs, appealed his case to Superior Court. Appearance bond was set at $200.

William Henry Brame also appealed his case to Superior Court and appeal bond was set at $200. He was found guilty of drunk driving and ordered to pay a $100 fine and court costs.

Julian Clarence Stegall, charged with drunk driving, pled guilty to a charge of reckless driving and was ordered to pay

School Sales Ruling Reversed By Bruton

Meeting Of Principals Cancelled

Fears of increased taxes or curtailed activities were erased Wednesday as the attorney general's offices reversed itself and said North Carolina public schools can sell food and soft drinks at athletic events.

Supt. of Schools, J. Roger Peeler said Thursday morning that the reversal of the ruling made last week by Dep. Atty. Gen. Ralph Moody would make unnecessary a meeting of school principals with the board of education scheduled for Oct. 11.

Following a notice of Moody's ruling, Supt. Peeler had notified principals of all Warren County schools to meet with the board of education at its October meeting to discuss with board members and Board Attorney Frank Banzet what course of action to follow. Peeler said yesterday that all action would be dropped.

Deputy Attorney General Ralph Moody in an opinion released to the press on Thursday of last week ruled that North Carolina public schools are prohibited from selling photographs, magazine subscriptions, insurance and soft drinks.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Moody outlined in four opinions to state officials the "government in business" statutes forbidding the sales.

He said the schools can sell food in cafeterias and "instructional supplies," such as pencils, pens, ink, stationery, notebooks, erasers, rulers and protractors.

However, Moody said in the opinion, "Schools cannot sell foodstuffs, pink sodapop, Alka Seltzer, aspirin, photographs, magazines, insurance, electrical appliances and all of the vast quantity of appliances and gadgets used in contemporary life and which are sold by merchants everywhere."

He did not comment on school yearbooks.

Mrs. John Burwell and Fred Hurst, chairman of the board of stewards, hold a plaque presented to Mrs. Burwell upon her retirement as organist at Wesley Memorial Methodist Church.

Retiring Organist Is Honored By Church

A Warrenton woman, for many years active in the affairs of the Methodist Church, was honored on Sunday at the morning service of Wesley Memorial Methodist Church after serving as church organist for 37 continuous years.

Mrs. John C. Burwell received the praise of her pastor, her bishop, her district superintendent and the chairman of the official board in a ceremony held at the Warrenton Methodist Church Sunday morning.

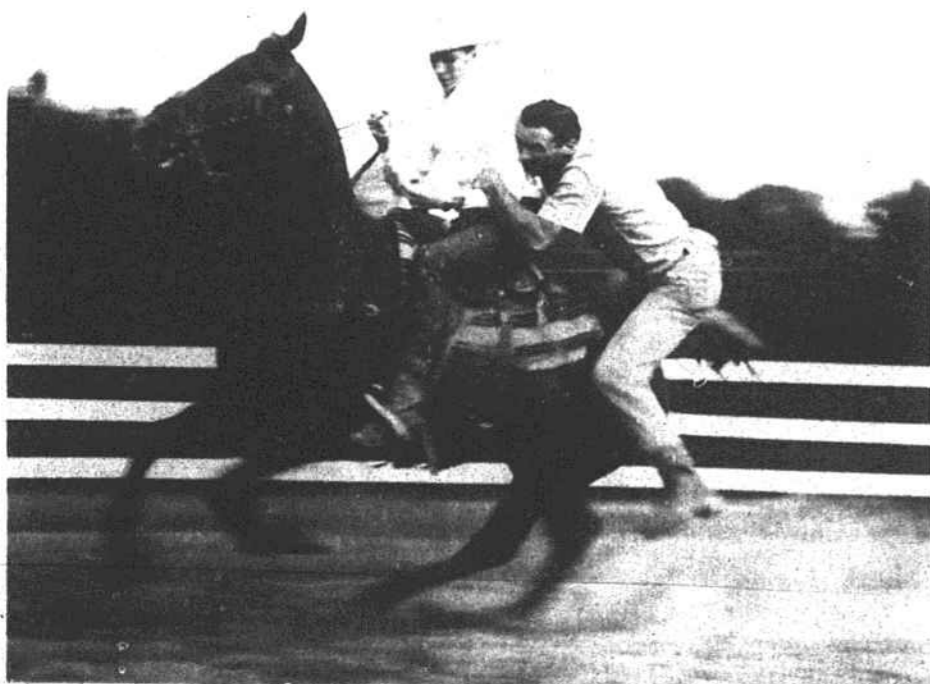

At a called session of the church conference, Mrs. Burwell was elected Organist Emeritus, and was also nominated as honorary steward of the Methodist Church subject to confirmation by the next quarterly conference.

Mr. L. T. Wilson, pastor of Wesley Memorial Methodist Church, commented on Mrs. Burwell's devotion to the musical and spiritual life of the church. Fred Hurst, chairman of the official board, presented Mrs. Burwell with a framed certificate of appreciation from the membership for her outstanding service to the Kingdom of God. Telegrams were read from Bishop Garber the Raleigh District, and a letter was read from N. W. Grant superintendent of the Raleigh District. A lovely arrangement of roses was presented to Mrs. Burwell by her family.

"Mrs. Burwell's accomplishments as an organist and musician are known far and wide among the churches of our state," Mr. Wilson said. "While she has retired as church or-

The bridge pictured above is carrying traffic on Highway No. 1 above Interstate Highway No. 85 a few miles north of Wise. Paving of I-85 at this point is completed and extends for several miles north into Virginia. This portion of I-85 should shortly be opened to traffic. A portion of this highway from Henderson to the Neuse River 10 miles north of Durham remains unpaved.

Interstate 85 Is "Under Design"

That portion of U. S. 85 Interstate highway from the Neuse river north through Granville and Vance counties is "under design," but it is impossible to get a precise letting date for the work to begin, according to Joseph M. Hunt, Jr., of the State Highway Commission.

In a recent letter to The Henderson Daily Dispatch, Chairman Hunt said, "It is anticipated that right-of-way acquisition will begin in 1966 on all sections of the road." He added that "it is difficult to predict exactly how long it will take to acquire the right-of-way; generally, right-of-way acquisition takes between twelve and eighteen months." The chairman stated further that "it is hoped that all sections of this particular route will be let to contract in 1967."

Chairman Hunt said "we are working on this project as rapidly as possible, and we will place it under contract just as soon as we can complete the design and acquire the right-of-way." The stretch of I-85 from Durham north to the Neuse river is virtually completed including pavement, and is expected to be opened to traffic at an early date. The Interstate road was completed from Henderson North to near the Virginia line and opened to traffic several years ago. It is also in use from Durham west by way of Greensboro to Salisbury and Charlotte.
