

Tobacco Varieties To Be Discussed Here

Warren County tobacco growers can get detailed information on varieties available for their 1966 crop from a tobacco specialist on Dec. 15 at 10 a. m. in the Warrenton courthouse, L. C. Cooper, agricultural extension agent, announced yesterday.

Roy Bennett, Extension tobacco specialist, will discuss the 1966 official Tobacco Variety Tests from North Carolina State University at Raleigh. Included in the tests were 16 varieties, two of which will be offered for planting for the first time in 1966.

Cooper said the new varieties, Speight G-7 and NC 2512, were tested under the Regional Standards Testing Program which was begun in 1963 in an effort to help improve tobacco quality. The variety 2512 met standard requirements last year but sufficient seed for use have not been available until now.

Other varieties in the tests this year, in addition to Speight G-7 and NC 2512, were Hicks Broadleaf, NC 95, NC 2326, Bell 15, Bell 29, Coker 187-Hicks, Coker 298, Coker 319, McNeil 12, McNeil 20, McNeil 30, Speight G-5, Speight G-36, and Va. 115.

Bennett will present information and answer questions on all the varieties the department has available for 1965 planting.

Forecasting a 5 per cent gain in new starts with an even larger dollar volume jump Mr. Klamman noted that major population changes will begin to assert themselves as early as 1967 and will be a strong influence on the construction industry by 1970.

The current weakness in the housing market and especially in the apartment house areas is largely a West Coast phenomenon, he added.

Airlines can be expected to advance to a better than 60 per cent load factor in 1966. James Dowd of Eastern Airlines, speaking for the transportation industries, saw major growth in every one of the segments from rail to air freight.

Limitations in pilot training were a factor which might hold down 1966 growth in passenger-seat miles on the airlines. But lines should gain slightly and rail-passenger declines should slow down, he said.

This is the year for color TV, but black and white TV along with radio sets should continue to share in the public's buying spree, David M. Blank pointed out.

For the national TV networks, advertising revenues should move out ahead of gross-national-product changes in 1966, though radio revenues won't have much more than a 4 to 5 percent gain, he added.

Miss Coghill Weds Vance Carlton Way

Miss Edna Marion Coghill became the bride of Vance Carlton Way in a two-thirty o'clock ceremony at Brown's Baptist Church in Warren County Thursday afternoon, November 25.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Chesley Coghill of Route #2, Henderson, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Kathleen Porter Way of Henderson and Orlando, Florida, and the late Claude Way.

The Rev. Jack Wilson, pastor, performed the double ring ceremony. Preceding the exchange of vows a program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Jack Wilson of Inez, organist. The traditional wedding marches were used for the processional and recessional of the wedding party.

Decorating the church were floor stands of emerald fern and standing baskets holding arrangements of mums, pompons and gladiol. Seven-branched candelabrum held burning cathedral tapers while white flowers and ribbons marked the family pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a street-length gown of ivory brocade taffeta styled with fitted bodice and fashioned with a scalloped neckline embroidered with seed pearls, elbow-length scalloped sleeves and A-line skirt. Her tiered veil of French illusion was attached to a petal crown edged with seed pearls and she carried a lace covered white prayer book topped with a white orchid and showered with feathered carnations.

Attending as matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Douglas Holmes of Marion, Virginia. Her street-length dress of pale blue brocade taffeta was designed along princess lines and featured elbow-length sleeves and scoop neckline. As a headpiece she used a Dior pillbox with matching veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of bronze mums and pompons.

James R. Daniel of Henderson was best man to the groom. Ushers were A. C. Coghill, Jr., and Thomas Coghill of Route #2, Henderson, brothers of the bride.

Following the ceremony the couple received their guests.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride wore a brown tweed jacket dress with matching accessories. For a corsage she lifted the orchid from her prayer book.

A graduate of Aycock High School and Henderson Business College, the bride is presently employed as a secretary in the office of Rose's, Inc., in Henderson.

The groom was graduated from Henderson High School and Henderson Business College and attended Louisiana College. He is presently employed at B. M. Newman's Grocery in Henderson.

The couple will reside in Henderson.

Cake Cutting

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth centered with a white arrangement of white mums flanked by burning green tapers. The punch bowl was placed on one end of the table and the wedding cake on the other. Lime

Economic Outlook Is Reported Greatly Changed

By CHARLES J. STOKES
In The Christian Science Monitor

The economic outlook for 1966 has changed dramatically for the better in recent weeks. This is the consensus of many business economists who assembled in Chicago for the annual meeting of the National Association of Business Economists.

At the popular forecast sessions for which the association has become known, Tilford Gaines, vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago, noted that recent increases in the interest rate picture were connected with the generally improved economic forecasts.

He traced this change to the impact of military spending, the better reporting of profits and other basic economic information by the Department of Commerce as well as clear indications that the investment boom in manufacturing showed no signs of abatement.

Douglas Greenwald, reporting for McGraw-Hill and Dodge, foresaw at least a 10 per cent increase in investment spending in 1966, continuing five years of sparkling gain in plant and equipment outlays.

He observed that industry, now operating near 80 per cent of capacity, will probably stay within this range for the year ahead—a fact which implies that industry will have little if any trouble absorbing and putting into use the new facilities.

In fact, Mr. Greenwald pointed out, the evidence suggests that despite the heavy investment spending, industry is falling further behind in its attempts to modernize its overall facilities.

For the automobile and steel industries, the forecasts by Alan Greenspan were far less optimistic. Mr. Greenspan looked for new-car sales of about 9 million in 1966 and possibly as few as 8.7 million units.

With heavy steel inventories, some inventory runoff is bound to force a cutback, depressing

Cigarette Publication On Taxes Is Released

Fred S. Royster, President of the Tobacco Tax Council this week announced the release of the 14th Annual publication of the Tobacco Tax Council entitled, "Cigarette Taxes in the United States."

Royster pointed out that in the fiscal year 1964-65 tobacco taxes imposed by the federal, state and local governments hit an all-time high of $3.6 billion. On cigarettes alone the federal tax amounted to $2,069,695,000; state taxes to $1,372,960,000; and municipal taxes to $64,717,000 making a total of $3,507,372,000. While the total domestic consumption of cigarettes.

The average price per package of cigarettes for the states as a whole is now 30.0¢ with an average of 16¢ tax on this package. Cigarette taxes imposed at the three levels of government operated to make the cost of cigarettes to consumers more than twice as high as it would be in the absence of these taxes. In 32 states more than one-half the price of a package consists of special excises imposed on cigarettes. The pack-a-day smoker pays an average tax annually of $58.40 in cigarette taxes.
