CHRISTMAS LIGHTS BRIGHTEN WARRENTON STREET

Carolina Sportswear Co. To Expand; Bids To Be Opened Monday

Bids for the construction of a 40,000-foot addition to the Carolina Sportswear Factory will be open at the Cleveland office of the parent company in Cleveland on Monday, Dec. 20.

Should the bids be accepted, construction is expected to be started in January, John Andrews, manager of the local plant, said yesterday. Target date for completion is next May.

The addition to the building will be on the back of the present building and will provide space for around 100 additional workers.

Andrews said that some 325 persons are now being employed by the Carolina Sportswear plant, with a maximum capacity of 350 persons. This figure will probably be reached, he said, with the beginning of a new season following the Christmas holidays.

Carolina Sportswear Factory, a subsidiary of Campus Sportswear Company, began business at Warrenton in 1956. Branch factories are also operated at Louisburg and at LaCross, Va.

Originally planned to employ around 150 persons, Carolina Sportswear Factory is the largest industry in Warren County.

Employment Of Architect For Vaughan School Is Approved

The building of a lunchroom at the Vaughan Elementary School came a step closer Monday night when the board of Education authorized School Superintendent J. Roger Peeler to employ an architect to draw plans for the project, in the discussion stage for several months.

The selection of the architect was left with the school superintendent but he was told to place a time limit upon the length of time that the architect may take in submitting the plans.

The board also discussed the purchase of a tract of land at Warren Plains for the construction of a school garage. Supt. Peeler was requested to contact Charles and Alex Katzenstein and to make them an offer for either three acres of an adjoining tract or for the entire 7-acre tract. Peeler is expected to contact the Katzenstein brothers in Greensboro during the weekend.

Long range plans for the use of 1963 state bond funds were briefly discussed with no definite action being taken. In addition to the discussion for the lunchroom at Vaughan, the need for a new building at John R. Hawkins school at Warrenton was briefly discussed.

The board approved the sale of the old Axtell Special School building to D. Y. Cooper for $75.00.

A request from the Littleton School committee concerning additional land and a fence for the school was discussed by the board members, but action was deferred until the Halifax County Board of Education may be contacted to ascertain if it would pay part of the cost.

The board accepted the resignation of Mrs. Kenneth Copley, commercial teacher at John Graham, and approved the election of James L. Soufas to replace her, and the resignation of Mrs. Harriet Banet as third grade teacher at Mariam Boyd and approved the election of Mrs. Nellie Gardner to replace her.

Coy Lewis, assistant school superintendent, gave a report on the Adult Education program. He described progress as fair. While 118 persons have enrolled in the basic education program, he said, poor attendance has hurt the program. In the vocational program, he said, 26 have enrolled in a bricklaying program at John R. Hawkins and attendance at these classes has been good.

The board appointed Supt. Peeler and "authorized representative" for the Elementary and Secondary School Act.

Day-time meetings of the County Board of Education was briefly discussed but no decision was reached.

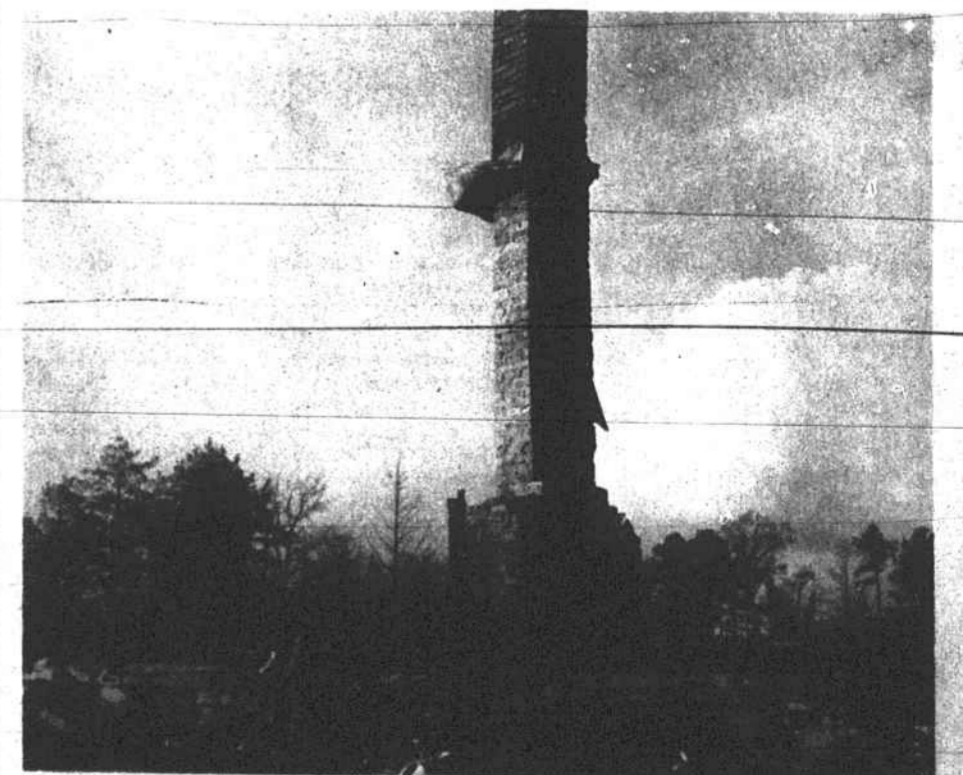

Date For Receiving Applications For Commodities Extended

The date for receiving applications for surplus commodities by the Welfare Department has been extended from Dec. 17 until Dec. 23.

Julian Farrar, supt., said that the reason for the extension is the slowness with which applications are being received. He said that so far the Welfare Department has certified approximately 650 applications, compared with 1035 applications at the same date last year.

EMBERS OF HOUSE WHERE MAN DIED

Man Loses Life In House Fire

Willie Payne Davis, an elderly colored man, was burned to death on Thursday night of last week when his home was completely destroyed by fire.

Warrenton Rural Firemen arriving at the scene saw the body of Davis lying near the front door, inside the hall of the home.

Davis lived alone in the two-story house in Warrenton Township, back of the Warrenton Box and Lumber Company. How the fire originated is unknown but Coroner N. I. Hathcock said this week that Davis had used a kerosene lamp with no chimney and it had been suggested that limbs of trees being used for firewood may have caught on fire.

The house, owned by Richard R. Davis of Warrenton, was nearly consumed by the flames when the firemen arrived.

Davis is survived by his wife, and several children.

Coroner Hathcock, who went to the scene, said that he felt that no autopsy was necessary.
