Moore Designates Nov. 1-7 Ruritan Week

Governor Dan K. Moore has designated this week of Nov. 1-7 as Ruritan Week in North Carolina. Stephen Daniel, Lt. Governor of Zone 3 of the Rocky Mount-Durham District, said yesterday.

In making the announcement, Daniel provided a copy of the Governor's designation of Ruritan Week, which reads as follows:

Born in Virginia thirty-eight years ago, Ruritan National now has more than 200 clubs across North Carolina. These clubs have in excess of 6,000 members.

The first Ruritan Club to be organized in North Carolina was at Sunbury, on August 13, 1935, with Charter No. 15.

Ruritan has an enviable history of accomplishment in the area of creating greater understanding between farm and business interests in its home communities. Its unity of purpose and the projects of its member clubs have been of inestimable value to the citizens of North Carolina.

The chief aim of Ruritan is to make the community a more ideal place in which to live, to create better understanding between people, to promote industrial and agricultural growth, to aid in charitable work and to encourage education of all kinds. It is the Ruritan idea that harmonious cooperation with those organizations and institutions will improve the social and economic conditions in all walks of life and in all sections of the nation in which a Ruritan Club is established.

In recognition of this work and purpose of more than 3,200 members in 20 states, of whom more than 6,000 are North Carolinians, I am pleased to designate November 1-7, 1966 as RURITAN WEEK IN NORTH CAROLINA and invite the attention of all our citizens to Ruritan and its objectives.

Daniel also said that he would like to remind all Ruritan Club members of the District Convention to be held on Nov. 11 at 2 p. m. at the YMCA in Raleigh, with a banquet at 6:30 p. m. He said all wives of Ruritans are cordially invited to attend the convention.

World Community Day To Be Observed

World Community Day will be observed at Emmanuel Episcopal Church here today (Friday) at 10:30 a. m. The offering will be used for work in India, Pakistan and New Guinea.

The meditation will be given by the Rev. J. M. Stoney, rector of the church.

Mr. Stoney said that the offering to be taken at the service will make possible two major projects.

A new program in Family Planning and Responsible Parenthood, to be started by United Church Women through Church World Service, in India and West Pakistan.

And a new center for the training of women in the highlands of New Guinea in the South Pacific. United Church Women will build the center; the Australian Trusteeship Administration will staff and equip it; then United Church Women will provide scholarships to bring women to the center.

A Woman's Viewpoint

Weather Or Not

By ELOISE McLEMORE GRADY
In The Butner Creedmoor News

"When I was young, it was considered impolite to discuss the weather and its effect on the individual," stated the late Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. She said that people were expected to accept the weather as it was and never complain about it. In other words, you just sweated in silence. My how times have changed! The weather report is a big production now, and I am going to have to take a course in "New Math" to be able to understand all I hear about the weather.

I agree with her statement that it's useless to complain about weather that's too hot or too cold - too wet or too dry, but I do believe in the importance of discussing the weather. After two unforgettable experiences, I have a great deal of respect for the weather forecasts that are given the public via radio, TV, and newspapers.

Our first daughter was three years of age at the time, and on a winter's afternoon she and I left Smithfield around two o'clock to meet my husband at the Raleigh-Durham Airport. The weather report had escaped me in my busy day of cooking and taking care of a small child. I had cooked our supper and had left it in the oven, because I knew that it would be approximately seven in the evening when we returned. It had never occurred to me that two days and two nights later we would return to that supper.

It was raining when we left, but the rain soon turned to sleet and snow and by the time we reached Raleigh, there were very few cars on the road. So determined was I to reach the airport, though, that I kept going in that direction. Well, I did until I pressed the brake pedal rather suddenly and turned completely around in the highway. The only reason I didn't have a wreck was that I was the only one who was foolish enough to be on the highway at that particular time. (Everyone else had heard the warnings over the radio.) I was so frightened that I just kept going in the direction of Raleigh and did not attempt to turn back toward the airport. It was a horrible and slow trip to Raleigh, but somehow I made it and found a public telephone. I called the airport and found out that my husband would be coming to Raleigh by bus, since, of course, his plane was grounded. By the time my husband had reached Raleigh by bus, we were snowbound at the Sir Walter Hotel. The experience taught me a lesson which I shall never forget. Since then, I have lived by the weather report, and because of this my other unforgettable weather experience was a happier one.

October always brings memories of Hurricane Hazel, and as destructive as it was property wise there were very few lives lost. I attribute this to the radio and other news media and its warnings from early morning of that October 15th. Our local radio station announcer asked that all parents go to the school for their children. I lost no time in going first to kindergarten for one child and to school for the other. They were both waiting for me, for those in charge had heard the same warning I had heard and had dismissed the children. There was no panic, and we were safe in our home before the trees and telephone poles began to fall all around us. Had I waited, I could not have gotten the car out because of a huge pecan tree that had blown down across our driveway.

There are all kinds of human weather barometers - like corns that hurt when it is going to rain, and aches bones, but I have a new one. When my teased and sprayed hair becomes a mass of cotton candy, then I know the relative humidity is at least 95%.

Excuse me, now, for I have to get the weather forecast.
