Equipment Testing DDD Begins

has been completed and is now being tested to provide Direct Distance Dialing for telephone users in Henderson, Centerville, Franklinton, Louisburg, Norlina, Oxford, and Warren-

The announcement was made this week by Howard T. Pitts, local manager for Carolina Telephone, who said that the new service will be inaugurated on May 26.

"With this new D. D. D. service, telephone customers will be able to dial their own station-to-station long distance calls to points throughout the nation, 'Pitts said.

The telephone company is making an extensive effort to inform the public of the forthcoming conversion.

Company representatives are appearing before civic clubs and other groups to explain customer long distance dialing to telephone users. Brochures explaining direct dialing will be mailed to subscribers and will be available (See TESTING, page 2)

CITY MARKET SCENE OF EXPLOSION

Exploding Fumes Damage Building

Exploding gasoline fumes blew out the back wall of City Market , shattered window panes, knocked canned goods from shelves, broke several cases of wine, scorched woodwork and damaged a door, with no injury to the four persons in the building here around 9:30 a.m. Monday.

In the building at the time of the explosion were N. I. (Shot) Haithcock, owner, Mrs. Haithcock and little daughter, Linda, and Ervin Williams, an employee.

A gasoline tank was being door of the building when fumes were blown into the store by the wind. Haithcock was in the process of lighting a cigar when the explosion occurred. The gasoline distributor placed a vent pipe on the tank Monday afternoon.

Legion Post To Send Security Benefits In Warren Over $1,400,000 A Year

Warren County citizens are now receiving social security benefits at the rate of more than $1,400,000 a year, according to the district office of the U. S. Department of Health, Education, social Security Administration.

Two thousand, three hundred and ninety-seven men, women and children in Warren County were receiving social security benefits at a monthly rate of $117,919 at the end of 1966, Robert A. Flynn, social security district manager in Raleigh, reported this week.

More than $392,302,000 in social security benefits was paid to residents of North Carolina last year, up over 11 percent from the year before, he said.

Among those benefits in Warren County, Flynn said, 1,733 were older people receiving benefits as retired workers, the wives and husbands of retired workers and as the surviving widows or aged dependent parents of workers who have died.

"But social security is not just for older people, Flynn pointed out. Three hundred and ninety-eight young widows and children in Warren County were receiving benefits amounting to $14,609 at the end of December. One hundred and eighty-seven disabled workers were receiving benefits at a monthly rate of $8,664.

'Practically every young family in North Carolina has | survivors protection under social security that can be worth $75,000 or more, and equally valuable disability insurance protection," Flynn said.

The average worker, he said, can expect to collect more than the value of his social security tax contributions just in the benefits payable to him and his wife in retirement. If he does not live to retirement, his family stands to collect far more than the contributions he has paid; and the same will be true if he should become totally disabled for work before 65.

Monthly payments to the family of a worker who dies, leaving two or more children, can range from $66 to $368 a month, depending on the worker's average earnings under social security.

Social security survivors benefits, Mr. Flynn said, can be paid to the family of a young man who has worked and paid social security contributions for as little as a year and a half during the three years before his death, Benefits to the mother and children continue until the youngest child reaches 18, or indefinitely, if the child has a disability which began before his 18th birthday and makes it impossible for him to work and become self-supporting. Under a change in the law enacted in 1965, a child's benefits can be continued up until age 22 if he or she continues in school.

Under the schedule of taxes in the present social security law even the group of young Markers who will start Work in 1974, after the maximum tax rates for old-age, survivors, and disability insurance go into effect, will pay only (See BENEFITS, page 3)

Lt. Gov. Robert Scott Lions Club Speaker

Increase in urban strength in the General Assembly as a result of reapportionment could lead to a State tax on cigarets in future years, Lt. Gov. Robert Scott said - here Friday night. He said that the imposition of any such tax in the present assembly seems to him to be unlikely.

Scott's comment was made in a question and answer period following a talk to members of the local Lions Club and special guests at Colonial Lodge. He also said that he did not believe that an overall cut in State taxes would be possible in view of the demands of state agencies for funds.

Presented by W. R. Drake, who was in charge of the program. Scott at the beginning of his talk explained that as Lieutenant Governor he presided over the Senate, but has little part in shaping of legislation, and as a consequence was not too familiar with many of the bills offered. He said that most of his information comes from the news media, and is the same as that furnished the reading public.

Often mentioned as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1968 Scott said that some kind of rumor to this effect must have escaped from his political headquarters in Raleigh. His remarks had no direct bearing on his candidacy, and were largely confined to the functions of government in North Carolina, after he had expressed his appreciation to the people of Warren County for the support given his father, the late W. Kerr Scott, in his campaigns for Governor and U. S. Senator.

Lt. Gov. Scott likened the State government to a corporation in which the people are the stockholders, the legislature the board of directors, and the Government and Council of State are management. If it is to be a good corporation, he said, it must have the interest of the stockholders, who must see to it that a good board of directors is en and that good management is secured. The diviends of such a corporation are service to the people and the development of a better and stronger state.

People should be free to criticize the action of their government, Scott said, because such criticism is not only a right of the people, but, if constructive, may lead to more effective government. The people, he said, are much interested in highway construction and if we are to have the types of roads essential to serve the needs of the people, a new look at highway financing should be taken. Only one cent, he pointed out, has been added to the gasoline tax to finance road construction since the beginning of the Scott road building program, and this does not meet the need (See SCOTT, page 3)

RAY TRAYLOR
